THE FIRST HOUSE IN ASTROLOGY: YOUR APPEARANCE AND HOW OTHERS SEE YOU

Watch The First House of Astrology on YouTube.

The first house is the most important part of your natal chart because it determines in which houses all the rest of the signs and planets will be located. An ascendant is its starting point, which concerns your appearance, health and vitality.

Most people only look at their sun sign, but actually your ascendant is very important to understand as well. The sign in which the ascendant is located determines your physical appearance and how in general you appear to the world, whilst your sun sign indicates who you really are, though this might be different to how you are seen by others.

For example, if you have your ascendant in Scorpio, it will make for a powerful and secretive personality. The native is likely to have a prominent nose and shapely eyebrows. He will have lots of magnetism, and people will be sexually attracted to them.

If your ascendant is in Sagittarius, you are an eternal student and teacher. If your ascendant is in Libra, it gifts a beautiful appearance. If your ascendant is in Taurus, it will again give a beautiful appearance, especially a lovely face, as well as the desire to gain material goods for comfort. It will also gift the love of that which is beautiful, as Taurus is ruled by the planet Venus.

THE INFLUENCE OF PLANETS NEAR THE ASCENDANT

Planets located near the ascendant influence your appearance too. Therefore, planets located in the first house alter the classic appearance that each zodiac sign gifts.

The planets that are located in the first half of the first house will influence your appearance the most, while those located in the second half will influence the way you act and think.

For example, if you have Mercury located in the first half of the House, you will be one of those people who can look very different every day, and you will have both male and female qualities perfectly blended together, as the planet Mercury is both male and female.

THE STRANGE INFLUENCE OF MERCURY

I will tell more about how each planet will alter a person's appearance a little later, but here I should only note that when it comes to Mercury, it's greatly influenced by any other planet near it, to the point that it takes the other planets' qualities completely.

Thus, a pure Mercury influence can be fully felt only if it stands 7 to 12 degrees away from other planets, degrees depending on each planet as all of them have a different orb size.

Also, and this applies to all the other planets too, you should pay attention to how the planet is influenced by the sign it's located in, as it sometimes is greatly neutralized by a disagreeing sign, and sometimes it's made more powerful by the agreeing sign. To do this, you can consult this table of planets in exaltation, detriment and fall:

Sign	Houses of the Planets	Exaltation	Detri-ment	Fall
♈	♈	♌	♎	♏
♉	♉	♍	♏
♊	♊	♎	♏
♋	♋	♏	♏	♏
♌	♌		♏
♍	♍	♏	♏	♏
♎	♎	♏	♏	♏
♏	♏		♏	♏
♐	♐		♏	♏
♑	♑	♏	♏	♏
♒	♒		♏	♏

WHAT DISAGREEING PLANETS DO TO THE PERSON'S APPEARANCE

It's important to keep in mind that disagreeing planets, or the ones whose qualities are very different, will produce a mixed type of person. For example, Saturn is a planet of restriction, so it can keep a person's body slender.

But if Jupiter, the planet of expansion, is also located in the first house, it can cause some weight gain. So the mixing, or harmony, between the sign of the first house and the planets located there (if there be any) will produce the specific appearance of a person.

Here are some other significations of the first house, apart from the appearance and general behavior:

- It can represent the head and face of man, and injuries that might be done to those areas or marks located in those places.
- In horary astrology, a branch of astrology that uses horoscopes to answer all sorts of questions, the first house may signify the masses, a general state of the country about which the inquiry is made.

- This House also represents memory, one's likes and dislikes, mental and moral tendencies, and even native's health throughout life (health is also assessed by looking at the Sixth House). The first house can give an accurate indication about the duration of one's life as well.

(The quality of the last years of a person's life can be seen by assessing the Fourth House whilst the way that one will die – the Eighth.) Possible accidents are indicated in the first house also, especially those that might affect the head as I told already.

WHAT THE FIRST HOUSE STANDS FOR

In general, the first house can be described as the House of Self. It shows who you are and your life in summary, so to speak.

It symbolizes your mannerisms, style and your temperament. This is the House of your outward behavior and how the world perceives you. It speaks of how you act in public and how others see you.

It shows what you want in life and how you go about achieving it. This House serves as a lens through which all the other Houses are interpreted.

Here are some characteristics of planets located in the first house, together with examples of planets located in the first house of various celebrities.

THE SUN IN THE FIRST HOUSE

Behavior: firstly, it's important to note that having Sun in the first house is a very positive thing unless it is in close proximity with other planets. Because if it's close to other planets, then it will burn that other planet; which means that the influence of that planet will be weakened to the gain of the sun. So, for example, Venus close to the Sun would mean that the person may use sex to succeed in career. As you can see, the qualities of Venus are abused. They aren't as important to the native as the qualities of the Sun.

With such a Sun placement, it's very important for you to express yourself. You will feel fulfilled in life if you learn to become a good example for others to follow. By your good example people will feel inspired and energized to change their lives.

You should use your determination to leave your mark in this world, and it's very likely that you will not be happy with anyone helping you, because you want to make success out of yourself only through your own efforts. This drive to succeed independently gains you respect of others, which you love to feel.

You like to stand out from the crowd. You are likely to study many subjects so that you are considered knowledgeable and admired by others. If the Sun is well-aspected, it's likely that you had pleasant childhood and this healthy environment helped you to develop yourself in later years.

Sun located at a safe distance from other planets gives a native a shining and beautiful personality, lots of self-confidence and great leadership abilities. People tend to want to follow such leaders because they perceive light in them. Natives are likely to have clearly defined ambitions and the ability to achieve them.

The person sees life as a game to win, and if the Sun is located in a fiery sign, the native's drive and energy are even more heightened. There is a risk of too much self-confidence and arrogance with such a placement. Although self-confidence is a good trait, one should also practice humility and try not to be domineering.

There is a big need to express oneself and shine like the Sun to be adored and loved by others. This adoration and a great follower count is what builds the native's self-confidence. He is as unique as the Sun and dislikes following other people or trends of any sort. He is in his own league.

Because he is so self-confident, courageous and optimistic, he is likely to achieve great heights in his career even at a young age. Excellence at school, from a very early age, is very possible. He is likely to get smarter faster than other children and achieve great heights in his career very quickly.

He tends to spot and seize opportunities and be generally lucky in life. Good aspects to the planets Venus and Jupiter further increase his warm personality and magnetism. It's not so much what he does but who he is that wins people's hearts. Like the Sun, such individuals cannot pass unnoticed.

Appearance: Sun in the first house gives a large, strong, tall and well-proportioned body; a round and large forehead, large, piercing eyes. It gives good health, ruddy complexion, often blond hair and the tendency of hair loss in later years.

A native tends to quickly recover from illnesses and accidents, even when his Sun isn't well aspected. It's likely that the native will pay a lot of attention to the body, and therefore the body will serve him well even in old age.

With such a placement a native is likely to look similar to his or her father; the father is likely to be a role-model.

Here are some celebrities with Sun in the first house:

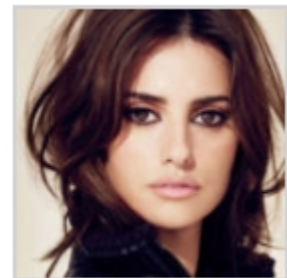

Kate Winslet

Grace Kelly

Penelope Cruz

A prominent and afflicted Sun can make a person domineering, arrogant, proud, and a hater of all people. His judgement will be wrong, he will be restless and troublesome.

He could become a spendrift and may become financially dependent on other people; but he will think others to owe him for the kind of person that he is. He is also likely to crave for admiration and then get unhappy that he doesn't receive it, not understanding that admiration has to be earned.

THE MOON IN THE FIRST HOUSE

Behavior: You are likely to be moody and emotional, but this isn't always the case because it depends on which sign the moon is placed in. For example, if Moon is in Capricorn, you will be able to control your emotions and will appear self-composed to the world.

You are intuitive and sensitive to your environment. The approval of others matters to you. If something deeply upsets you, you may turn to food to heal your hurt heart.

Emotional ups and downs will be considerably reduced if Moon is located in a fixed sign (Taurus, Leo, Scorpio or Aquarius).

You are likely to go by your feeling and intuition rather than by your thought. You may feel what others are about, and you tend to avoid individuals that wish you ill because you feel their bad vibrations.

The Moon located in the first house may make the native quite passive, unless there is a strong masculine planet located nearby or is in a positive aspect with the Moon. The behavior is likely to be quite changeable and dependable on the phases of the moon. Sometimes for no apparent reason the native can be moody for a few days.

A man with Moon in the first house will have some feminine characteristics but not to do with sexual orientation. In general, natives with the Moon in the first house will tend to have a strong relationship with their mothers and have many of their characteristics. They tend to be easy to manipulate and tend to like darkness and moonlight.

In relationships, physical affection and the feeling of safety is very important. The natives tend to be romantic and are likely to buy many gifts for their lovers and show their affection in other ways. They are psychic and can understand others without talking to them. They usually get prophetic dreams. They find it hard to hide their emotions.

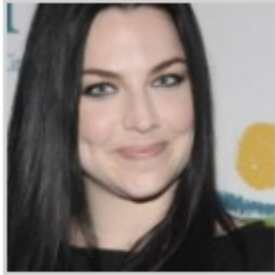

If the Moon stands alone in the first house, or away from other planets, it's likely that such people will not want to become independent but will enjoy being dependent. They will prefer following others rather than having others follow them. If the Moon is afflicted, this presents danger because the natives may start following wrong people or ideologies and take on negative qualities as a result.

With the Moon in the first house it's important to learn to set boundaries between others, your environment and yourself. Also, for those who are overly influenced by the Moon, it's important to emotionally mature and not make decisions based on emotional highs or lows; because seeing life through those emotions doesn't allow them to see the way it really is.

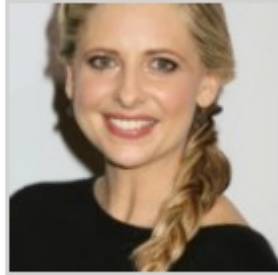

Appearance: the Moon usually gives a beautiful stature, fluctuating weight, white or light complexion, dark hair, round face, grey eyes and much hair. Natives like to change their appearance and style often and tend to follow fashion trends. Usually one eye is larger than the other, hands are short and plump, and in general the body is likely to be plump. The native might be rather slow.

Here are some good examples of celebrities with Moon in the first house:

Amy Lee

Sarah Michelle Gellar

Nolwenn Leroy

Friedrich Nietzsche

(The first and third examples especially show the classic white complexion given by the Moon.)

A bad lunarian is someone who hates work, is very lazy, is of a changeable temperament and who has no ambition. If the Moon is badly aspected, they might be hysterical and overly emotional, and those phases will come and go with moon phase changes.

MERCURY IN THE FIRST HOUSE

(Keep in mind that Mercury takes on the qualities of planets close to it.)

Behavior: You live through your mind rather than feelings and emotions. You analyze everything that happens to you and your logic isn't clouded by your feelings.

You are quick, like variety, and are restless and always active. You love discussing ideas with others, reading books and finding out information about topics that interest you. All your life you will be learning new things to expand your knowledge.

Because of your open-mindedness and the ability to adapt, you usually look younger than you really are. You love engagements which keep your mind active. You accept challenges that help to develop your intelligence. You process information and learn new things quicker than most people.

You like to study other people and analyze their behavior. You tend to speak a great deal and it's dangerous to entrust any secrets to you. Sometimes you talk all the time without allowing others to express their opinions.

Appearance: Mercury gives a straight, lean, tall body; high forehead, narrow and long face. It may gift a long nose and beautiful eyes. For men, a sparse beard but voluminous hair on head is something to be expected. In general, it causes long arms, fingers and hands.

Here are some good celebrity examples of Mercury in the 1st house:

(David Beckham has his Mercury at the last degrees of the twelfth House, thus mercurial qualities are carrying over into the first house.)

Joseph Stalin (young)

David Beckham

Meghan, Duchess of

Alain Delon

A bad mercurial person is a classic long-fingered thief, especially if Mercury is badly aspected by Mars. They are usually way ahead of others in thinking because their ability to think is very quick. Often, however, this ability is used for evil if Mercury is afflicted.

VENUS IN THE FIRST HOUSE

Behavior: Venus in the first house makes you charming, beautiful and friendly. You are likely to be sensual and have some artistic talent. You may love music, poetry and other forms of art, as well as beautiful surroundings and everything that is pretty.

You like making new friends, but you also feel the need to meet the expectations of others which might make it difficult for you to accept who you really are. Self-acceptance is important if you want to be at peace with yourself.

You tend to be polite and sensitive with others, which wins you friends.

If Venus is positively aspected, it makes you kind-hearted and able to get along with all sorts of people. You are likely to have a great sense of style and spend quite a lot of time in taking care of your appearance. If, however, Venus has an aspect to Uranus, it can make your personal style a little strange.

If a man has Venus in his first house, he will be gifted with some feminine qualities or it might make him into a womanizer, especially if Venus is negatively aspected. If Venus is badly aspected by Pluto, such a man may be stalked by women and experience other obsessive behaviors from them.

Relationships, especially love relationships, are very important for people with this placement. They will not like to find themselves alone for a longer period of time.

Although usually people with this placement are aware of their beauty, this might not be the case if Venus is badly aspected. So, for example, instead of seeing the whole picture, they will focus on some small thing they consider unattractive in their appearance.

Sometimes such individuals can even choose to have a plastic surgery done to correct a perceived fault, but that isn't usually the case. What mostly happens is that they just complain about their perceived unattractive qualities.

Sometimes they have problems with self-esteem and raise too high standards for themselves. They usually want to be liked by everyone and suffer greatly if someone dislikes them.

A possible difficulty with this placement is inactivity. You may lack motivation and ambition to achieve, and you tend to wait for things to happen without taking any action on your part.

Appearance: Venus in the first house gives a beautiful well-shaped medium stature, fair complexion but not as fair as the one given by the Moon. It gifts beautiful eyes, round and plump face, voluminous hair. It gifts a well-shaped mouth, often dimples in cheeks.

Good examples of celebrities with Venus in the first house:

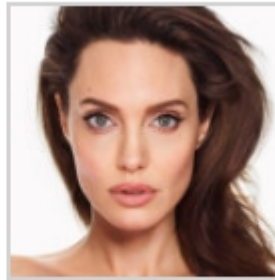

(Angelina Jolie has her Venus at the end of the Twelfth House, which means that its qualities are carried over into the first house as it's very close to it.)

Beyonce Knowles

Hugh Grant

Angelina Jolie

Selena Gomez

A bad venusian is a classic Don Juan – a person given over to sensual dissipation. If Venus is located in the Pisces sign or has an aspect to the planet Neptune, he is likely to not see life for what it is and be unable to see his own self in real light as well. So, for example, a person might be very beautiful, but will perceive himself as unattractive.

Also, quite a lot of people with Venus in the first house have narcissistic qualities.

MARS IN THE FIRST HOUSE

Behavior: A dynamic, assertive and impulsive personality, sometimes to the point of aggression or the tendency to be rash in action. He is likely to be fearless, with energy reserves impossible to fully use up, straightforward and independent.

Independence is very important to him and he feels the need to dominate his immediate environment. He tends to see life as a battle field, and tries to win the game of life. Mars makes him open, honest and intuitive. He is not afraid of challenges but wants to take them on to emerge a winner. He is very likely to achieve his desires.

He probably likes martial arts and sports. It's very important with such a placement to learn to control the explosive energy and to channel it into something useful. If native's environment doesn't stimulate him, he is likely to want to change surroundings for more variety.

These individuals can accomplish in one day more than others, but that doesn't mean that they cannot be procrastinating. They may tend to delay doing things that don't interest them. They may resent people for being slow, yet they should keep in mind that it's them that are very fast, whilst most people cannot be as energetic.

They are likely not to listen to the advice of older people and if their Mars is badly aspected by Saturn, Uranus or Pluto, the native is at risk of developing self-destructive behaviors. In general, they should strive to control their aggressiveness because if they allow it to have its way, it can destroy their health as well as cause problems to other people.

Women with Mars in the first house will be good at succeeding in occupations usually associated with men. They will have a lot of masculine qualities which will make them master masculine fields of work. If Mars is afflicting Venus or Uranus, it means the person may prefer the other sex or may be domineering in relationships.

Natives with Mars in the first house should take care not to injure their head and face. They are prone to high fevers when sick. They in general should guard against injuries of all sorts due to Mars influence towards rashness and high self-confidence. Nevertheless, even if they are injured, they tend to heal very fast.

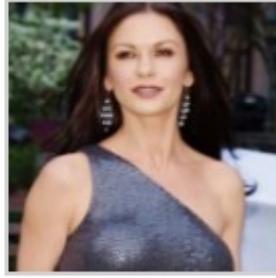

Appearance: Mars near the ascendant gives energy and dynamism, a medium stature, athletic and strong body, large bones, greater tendency towards leanness than weight gain.

It can gift a round visage, ruddy color, curling, sometimes red hair. Piercing eyes, confident countenance, fearless and active disposition can be the gifts of Mars as well.

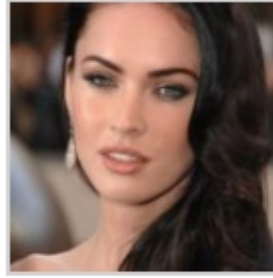

Good examples of celebrities with Mars in the first house:

Bradley Cooper

Catherine Zeta-Jones

Megan Fox

Sandra Bullock

A bad martian is a classic a classic trouble-seeker or a violent criminal.

JUPITER IN THE FIRST HOUSE

Behavior: Jupiter usually influences people to be happy, optimistic, moral, generous and they tend to have a good sense of humor. They will tend to attract with their happiness many people into their lives. Also, since Jupiter is a very positive planet, it brings a lot of luck to the native in all areas of life.

You are likely to do everything in a big way, as Jupiter is the planet of expansion. You are likely to love traveling, or at least reading books about travels. This need for exploration can also be fulfilled by exploring the mysteries of the universe or uncovering occult secrets. Sometimes the native spends more time abroad than at home with such a placement.

You tend to inspire people and have the ability to stand on your own feet, and therefore this influence of Jupiter should definitely be used to the fullest to become completely independent. Jupiter also gives you an ability to fully support yourself financially and in other ways.

Sometimes natives with this placement tend to be over-confident and lazy. They can be self-indulgent and over-generous sometimes which can make them to be taken advantage of. Since Jupiter is the planet of higher learning, law and religion, natives with such a placement might take great interest in any of these subjects.

Jupiter also gifts a great ability to recover from disease, great vitality and usually a long life. The native is best described as benevolent, and this beautiful quality attracts many people to him or her.

Appearance: if Jupiter is not afflicted in the first house, it can give the body that's more plump, a beautiful complexion, oval or long visage, high forehead and large eyes, as well as the tendency of baldness in later age in men. If it's near the ascendant, observe which sign it's located in and what body part that sign represents; because Jupiter will tend to make that body part beautiful.

Since Jupiter is the planet of expansion, weight problems may appear in natives with such Jupiter placement (in the House of Self). The closer this planet is to the ascendant, the more likely the person to have weight problems.

Good examples of celebrities with Jupiter in the 1st house:

(Rihanna's birth time is not confirmed yet it's listed as having Jupiter in the first house. It's likely since she easily gains weight. Whitney's Jupiter is away from the ascendant but still in the first house (conjunct the Moon.)

Marlon Brando

Renee Zellweger

Rihanna

Whitney Houston

It's tough to find very bad jupiterians, but an afflicted Jupiter may make one a spendrift, may influence one to be arrogant, hypocritically religious or a religious extremist. It may give negative qualities of ignorance and carelessness. Natives may be intolerant and dogmatic and they might look down on the belief systems and negative qualities of others.

SATURN IN THE FIRST HOUSE

Behavior: a native will be restricted in some way and he will need to learn to function in harmony with those restrictions to reach ultimate fulfillment. He is likely to be inhibited, serious and reserved. There is air of nobility is felt around him, and he tends to be cautious in almost everything that he does. This makes him miss opportunities that come his way, because he thinks about what action to take for too long, and the opportunity goes away.

He is likely to be shy and prefers stability over excitement. He likes structure and doesn't mind working hard. He is reliable and self-disciplined. Sometimes life forces him to work from a very early age and become an adult too quickly. The second half of life tends to be easier than the first.

He is likely to become a workaholic. If he doesn't break out of that inhibited nature, he is likely to be a magnet of troubles. It will help to break through if he lowers his expectations about himself and others, because they are likely to be unattainable. Also, it's important to cultivate optimism so that Saturn doesn't draw him into melancholy.

With Saturn located in the first house a native can also be quite domineering, and generally unable to see another's point of view. It's important to fight this trait by learning to accept the differences of others, and to strive to be more flexible when it comes to working with other people.

If Saturn is badly aspected or is in a disagreeable sign, it's likely that childhood was very difficult and unhappy. They were usually restricted in some way by their parents, like about not showing how they feel to the world. Parents are likely to be strict, conservative and sometimes religious extremists. They are likely to have experienced bullying at school too. Often this placement indicates that the birth experience of the native was difficult.

Natives will feel better after the return of Saturn to its natal position, which takes place at around 29 or 30 years of age. Then the native is likely to come out of that oppressive shell and be more who he really is.

People are strongly advised against marriage before the age of 31 with this placement, because only after Saturn return will they really understand what they want from life. In love relationships, he is likely to attract older people, especially if Saturn opposes some planet located in the seventh House of union. Relationships tend to be long-term, sometimes lasting a lifetime.

Having Saturn in first house shows that you have a karmic debt to pay from your previous lives. When they are repaid, Saturn blesses you and the life improves considerably.

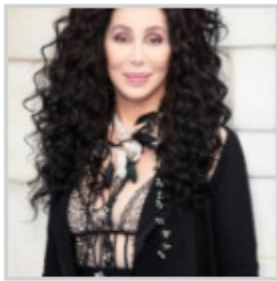

Although Saturn is considered a malevolent planet, if you have this planet in your first house and it's located in an agreeing sign, as well as positively aspected by Jupiter, Sun or Moon, it actually promises good body constitution and usually a long life. A good aspect to Mercury is also very favorable.

If it stands alone in the House, and it's located in a disagreeable sign, then it can give problems with health and a reserved and cold disposition. (I've already provided a table to check if signs agree or disagree with planets above.) If it's badly aspected to Neptune, you may dislike people in general.

Appearance: Saturn gives a downcast look, small and sometimes dark eyes, often dark circles around eyes, short stature and slender figure.

Good examples of celebrities with Saturn in the first house:

Cher

Ellen DeGeneres

Camilla, Dutchess of Cornwall

Carl Jung

A bad saturnian type is a classic dark person who hates the world and doesn't mind doing evil. He can do evil for no reason, unlike a bad martian who would do evil from some human passion. A bad uranian could, like saturnian, be mean for no valid reason (Uranus is the father of Saturn in Greek mythology).

URANUS IN THE FIRST HOUSE

Behavior: Uranus in the first house makes a person individualistic and rebellious against established institutions. They will love freedom more than anything else. If Uranus is in your first house, people think you to be totally unpredictable – because you are! People find it hard to label you in any way, as you are undefinable. Your mind is restless and powerful, you are interested in technology, and your life is full of unexpected events.

When Uranus is well aspected, you will experience many events that seem lucky, and if it's badly aspected, you will experience quite a lot of bad luck. You like to shock people with your appearance because this helps to break preconceived notions of the masses. You are often interested in the occult, science and technology.

Often people with Uranus in their first house become activists for some cause to change the masses. They might like being with people, but they are well-aware how different they are, and this can make them feel alone even when in a company. They will do well in the field of technology.

Their lives are usually filled with sudden and extreme changes that can be positive or negative. They usually do everything differently to how the masses act. It's very likely that they will not want to get married as they will not believe in the traditional establishment of marriage.

Appearance: If you have Uranus located in the first house, the closer it is to your ascendant, the more you are likely to dress in a way that is very unusual, and your style will in general be very unconventional. This is because by dressing this way you want to show that you stand against fashion and stereotypes. If Uranus is located in the twelfth House, this uniqueness will be more manifested in the way that you think rather than in the way that you dress.

Good examples of the first house Uranus celebrities:

Johnny Depp

John Lennon

Kurt Cobain

Mother Teresa

An ill-aspected Uranus makes one overly eccentric who is likely to be considered really weird by others.

NEPTUNE IN THE FIRST HOUSE

Behavior: Neptune makes you compassionate and very sensitive to your environment. People think you to be mysterious. You may have musical ability.

However, this planet also makes you less protective from negative influences. People with this planet in their first house risk detaching from reality, so it's very important to avoid any mind-altering substances, especially if Neptune has bad aspects to Mars, Pluto, Saturn or Uranus.

It's very difficult to figure out the person with this placement. Even his eyes cannot reveal who he or she is. Neptune can also make a person blind to his or her negative qualities and in general if Neptune is in a bad aspect to some planet, that's where the person will not be able to assess things correctly.

For example, if Neptune is squaring or opposing Venus, the person might choose wrong partners in life and will tend to idealize them/not see them for who they really are.

With strong Neptune in the first house there might be disharmony between your needs, as the first house is all about Self and your own needs, but Neptune encourages you to dissolve the ego so that there are no boundaries between the Self and the environment.

This makes it difficult to develop and understand your identity. With such Neptune placement it's not advisable to judge about yourself from the way that others think of you, but instead you should be more protective of your energy so that you yourself understand who you are (as being without boundaries makes you take on the qualities of others, which makes you not understand yourself).

With such a placement it's vitally important to choose friends wisely as you tend to take on their qualities. It's most important to avoid people who are addicted to alcohol or drugs, because with your Neptune placement it's very dangerous to take mind-altering substances.

Great sensitivity to the people and the environment could be a blessing too; if you strive to spend time in the environments that you like and spend time with or at least watch videos of those people who have excellent character features, you will take on those pleasant qualities from them for sure.

Often an individual with Neptune in the first house lives an unstructured life, has many vivid dreams, and they tend to live in their own dream world. They usually cannot be put into any archetype and cannot be defined in any way; they often change their personalities because they absorb many influences from their environment.

These people have gates wide open to other worlds; they understand what other people feel, and they are at risk of being spiritually abused, so they should be careful in setting boundaries. They should avoid any hypnotic treatments as they are susceptible to being hypnotized more than others, and this can be used to their disadvantage.

These people need a lot of time alone, to recover from feeling so many different energies of others. This will also allow them to understand and feel the boundaries of their personalities and to understand who they are much more than when they are surrounded and attuned to people around them. They also need more sleep than others to fully recover.

Appearance: Neptune close to the ascendant in the first house gives the native hypnotic and dreamy eyes, like seen from the celebrities below. Usually it gifts beautiful appearance in general.

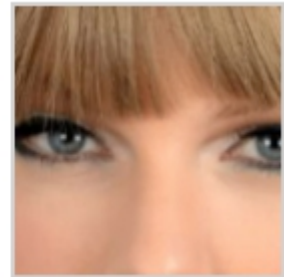

Alicia Keys

Marilyn Monroe

Shah Rukh Khan

Taylor Swift

An afflicted Neptune can make one lose touch with reality and live in a dream world, or become addicted to mind-altering substances.

PLUTO IN THE FIRST HOUSE

Behavior: Natives will have a very strong will power, and if they desire something, they would do everything it takes to get it. They are likely to make drastic changes in their personal lives, to do with the Self or the change in location. Their explosive intensity can be used either for good or evil. Sometimes they may destroy people with that intensity used for evil, so they should be aware of that and be easy on others.

With this placement, it's very important to express emotions as they come; because if you suppress them, they might explode with such power that others are hurt too.

You are aware that you hold great power, and your actions cannot remain unnoticed. You usually do not like to share personal information with the world, and people know that you hold back a lot. Usually with such Pluto placement you are likely to have had a difficult childhood.

You like to be alone and are often interested in things that the world holds repulsive, scary or negative. Your main goal is to acquire personal power and various departments of life can be employed to achieve this goal, such as love, beauty or career.

Appearance: if you have Pluto located in the first house, you will have intense sexual magnetism on the darker side, and people will find you secretive and intense. Your eyes are likely to be very intense and magnetic. But again, in all these considerations we also have to take into account what sign the planet is in, as well as aspects to other planets and what other planets are in the House.

For example, Pluto in Scorpio in the first house will give a really intense, deep, complex and magnetic personality, but Capricorn in Pluto will give a less intense personality due to the cold and calculating nature of Capricorn.

Some of the well-known personalities that have Pluto in the first house are:

Aishwarya Rai

Meryl Streep

Leonardo DiCaprio

Keanu Reeves

A bad plutonian is someone who tries to gain influence over the masses for evil. Many politicians are bad plutonians.

THE SECOND HOUSE OF ASTROLOGY: YOUR WEALTH

Watch The Second House of Astrology on YouTube.

The second house concerns the wealth of the native, whether he is going to be rich or poor; it concerns all the movable goods belonging to the native (whilst immovable property should be judged from the fourth house) and the native's safety and security. It also represents basic necessities.

This house cusp being on the fixed sign indicates a person earning money from some skill. (Fixed signs are Taurus, Leo, Scorpio and Aquarius.) The cusp found in a mutable sign indicates a flexible person able to make money through many talents and by employing various skills usually without having in-depth knowledge in any particular field, but knowing a few things about everything. Mutable signs are Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius and Pisces.

The second house tells you about your ability to handle money as well as your earning power. It can also show what projects or abilities may bring wealth. Some astrologists believe that this house also signifies people's values – what they hold dear.

This house rules the neck when it comes to looking at the native's health from the chart. In horary astrology it may signify common people. It's a succedent house – the one following the first angular house. Succedent houses hold less importance than the angular houses, though they are more important than cadent houses.

The best planets to have in this house are either Jupiter or Venus, Jupiter being the best. Jupiter in this house makes one lucky in wealth. Venus also makes one lucky in wealth, but it influences one to buy lots of things, and if badly aspected, sometimes things that one doesn't need.

Having in this house Sun or Mars will encourage the person to spend money.

The best sign to have in this house is Taurus as it is in harmony with wealth and luxury. Signs such as Sagittarius or Aries are not as fortune, as the native will tend to have less money and may have the habit of spending more than necessary or spending on impulse.

Here is the description of what different planets indicate being located in this house.

SUN IN THE SECOND HOUSE

The Sun has a lot to do with your identity and how you see yourself, where you shine in the world. And if it's placed in the second house, this means that material possessions are very important to you and you derive your sense of identity through how much you earn.

Such a placement could indicate a wealthy father, or one born in wealth and taking his material possessions for granted. If Sun is positively aspected, this financial ease should last a lifetime.

If the Sun is located in the second house, it means that you will never feel happy unless you can shine in the area of your finances. Which means that gaining wealth is what will make you feel content and happy about yourself.

Sun is the third most beneficial planet in this house (the others are Jupiter and Venus). It definitely helps the native to attract wealth, and usually a lot of it. Sun, similarly to the planet Venus, encourages not only to gain wealth but to spend it too.

So if you look at your chart and follow Sun's aspects to other planets and in which houses they are located, you can discover which areas of life will demand most of your wealth. Once you know this, you can take appropriate actions to prevent too much spending in those areas (if that creates financial problems, of course).

Having such a powerful luminary placed in the second house makes the native derive their sense of who they are from their financial well-being. This is especially the case if you find more planets in the same house. It could even lead to the extreme where the entire life revolves around bettering one's financial condition.

If positive qualities of the Sun are developed, such as high morality, the Sun will help the native to gain even more wealth. And if they are ignored, the native may be even influenced to use immoral ways to obtain wealth.

With such a placement the native is likely to be the collector not only of things but of people as well. He may see close friendships as possessions, and may suffer quite a big shock when some such person leaves his life. His sense of self-esteem, therefore, might be based not only on wealth, but on being in control of the people close to him.

MOON IN THE SECOND HOUSE

Moon is not a good placement to have in the second house, for it influences the finances to go up and down. At least an individual with such a placement can be sure that if he experiences financial losses, he will experience gains as well.

This placement also indicates that the person is emotionally attached to his finances and that he derives his security through his financial well-being. The native is likely to have inherited this need for financial security from his mother.

Sometimes the native is financially dependent on his mother or some mother figure in one's life. This is especially dangerous for men, because if they don't learn to stand on their own two feet they will remain passive characters unable to achieve anything significant.

The moon, especially if in conjunction or aspecting Venus, may influence the native to spend on items of luxury. A lot of money may be spent on home decor and family. Quite a lot of money can be spent on food and cooking in general as well.

The native may have his own business and work from home. The occupation may be something to do with cooking. There might be monthly spending periods where the native exceeds his financial limit and then suffers until the debt is repaid.

Like Sun in the second house, the native with such a Moon placement is likely to be overly attached to the people close to him and may see them as his own possessions. The native will feel equally emotionally attached towards the objects that he likes. It's very difficult to part with things that he likes, and if the Moon has many negative aspects, it can create a person who hoards everything.

MERCURY IN THE SECOND HOUSE

Mercury influences your approach to money to be mental and logical, which is a good thing. You will have many ideas of how to increase your wealth and are likely to make great investments. This is especially true if Mercury has good aspects to other planets.

You have a talent to think of ways to make money. It's likely that you acquired this talent because of your interest in many things and reading of many books. You've absorbed lots of information and can use it to make money. You are great with numbers and in occupations requiring the use of mathematics.

If Mercury is badly aspected, it may make the native use his great intelligence to acquire wealth in illegal ways, such as through stealing. He is not likely to be caught due to his quick mind.

Such people might become teachers, especially those who teach about how to make money. This is more likely to be the case if there is some aspect from Mercury to the planet located in the ninth house. And even if Mercury is badly aspected, the native will still be able to achieve financial success, though not through luck but through much hard work. But if negative aspects are present, the native must be careful with anything to do with legal systems.

Stock trade is great for this placement and the probability of gaining wealth through some sort of speculative profession is even greater if this planet is somehow aspected or connected to the fifth house of hobbies and pleasure.

Such a planet placement also gives the native an ability to make money through communication or a written word. People with Mercury in the second house are likely to have great memories and they see business challenges as an interesting game to win, rather than something depressing.

They aren't likely to get upset if they lose jobs; they are smart enough to think of ways to earn money between jobs. They are also likely to have several employments at the same time, or several means of earning money in general.

VENUS IN THE SECOND HOUSE

I personally find Venus placed in the second house to be the sign of a collector. Sometimes it can be a collector of women in a man's chart. By that I mean that the man will have high self-esteem if he can conquer the hearts of many women, and will usually be possessive towards all of them, considering them their property. The probability of this being the case increases if there are Venus aspects or it somehow is connected to 8th, 11th or 5th house.

In general, having Venus in the second house is one of the most positive placements there is. It indicates financial well-being, and may bring great wealth. Extravagant spending is indicated as well. You love buying things you consider beautiful. Your spending habits are based on emotions to a great degree.

If Venus has only positive aspects, this means that the person was born into a wealthy family. They might love wealth very much, not for money itself, but for what it can do for them. Also, the native derives his self-esteem through wealth, so he should be careful not to get involved into anything questionable in order to increase wealth, especially if Venus is badly aspected to some planet located in the 12th House.

You may become wealthy as a result of marriage or relationships. Sometimes in a man's chart this placement indicates that he will gain money through women. You are likely to enjoy luxury in many ways and you love acquiring things that are beautiful.

Men with this placement in their charts will pamper the women that they love with gifts. Sometimes gifts are given with some expectation attached. Sometimes money is spend to acquire friendships. Such a placement might indicate that a man spends money on women who love him for the money and not for who he is. It can indicate spending money on sexual favors. For women, this placement could indicate their absolute love of that which makes them look beautiful.

Acquisition of wealth through arts and beauty is a great possibility with such a placement. The native will have a great taste of style and will be gifted in finding and acquiring beautiful objects. Since the native loves to be admired, sometimes he tries to win the appreciation of the public through the things that he owns. They become symbols of his status and who he is.

In general, unless Venus is afflicted in a great way, this placement gives an easy life when it comes to finances.

MARS IN THE SECOND HOUSE

Mars in the second house can either signify wealth or can mean a lot of spending. For example, if your second house is in the sign of Sagittarius, and you have Mars there as well, then you are likely to spend money impulsively. It's even worse if the planet Venus conjuncts Mars, because then you will spend money on things that you really don't need and your collection of those things will keep growing.

However, the planet Mars can also provide lots of energy to this house, making you ambitious and able to work very hard. This would cause you to earn a lot of wealth. It's also likely that wealth is the most important thing in your life, and you don't feel adequate if you don't do well in finances.

Mars is ambitious and intense. People with this placement are likely to hate working for others and will try to succeed in their own businesses. They see life as a sort of war, and when they win, they also spend money to celebrate their success. They are not likely to lend anything to anyone as they are possessive of what they own.

They tend to be selfish when it comes to money and might spend it on impulse. Men with this placement consider their wealth to be part of them, and if they don't have enough, they may not even feel fully men. For women with this placement financial security is very important and they are also likely to be possessive.

Sometimes natives just buy stuff to mark some event in their lives and may not even use that thing. Also, their desire to possess certain things can be great, and they would do almost anything in order to gain them. Since Mars is the planet of war, it might make the native interested in collecting things associated with it. Also, he might be heavily invested in sports.

If Mars is aspected by Pluto, Mercury or Neptune, it might influence the native to acquire wealth in dishonest ways. Also, if in general the planet Mars is badly aspected, it could mean that during its transits the native will lose some of his wealth. This especially applies if there are some bad aspects of Mars to the eighth house. If that is the case, one is strongly advised against borrowing any sort of money.

To counteract the drawbacks of the planet Mars placed in the second house, a native may choose to give some of his money to good causes on a regular basis, and to channel the energy of aggression into sports or similar activities, so that no impulse spending and rash financial decisions manifest.

JUPITER IN THE SECOND HOUSE

Jupiter in the second house is the best placement there is. It's even better than Venus, because Venus makes one likely to buy stuff that he doesn't need, whilst Jupiter influences the wealth to expand. Also, Jupiter is the planet of luck, so natives having it located in this house will tend to be simply lucky in this department of life.

For example, they may be lazy but they somehow end up earning money anyway. They just don't seem to ever face lack.

If Jupiter is somehow connected to a malefic, one has to be careful in money matters. For example, if it's connected with Uranus, it might be that the native is doing something illegal and this may result in him being caught. Such temptations must be fought.

If Jupiter is also the ruling planet of your chart (if your Ascendant is Sagittarius or Pisces), then it means that financial security is very important to you and you even base your sense of self on it.

Jupiter is the planet of expansion, so if it's badly aspected, it may make you into a spender. But in general, this planet is so lucky that you are likely to regain your wealth despite of it being afflicted in some way. Also, the more you trust in yourself and the more energy and inspiration you put into your work, the quicker your wealth will grow with such a placement of Jupiter.

SATURN IN THE SECOND HOUSE

Although Saturn is considered a malefic planet, its presence in the second house isn't necessarily bad. It depends in which sign we find this planet, as well as what aspects to other planets it has.

For example, Saturn in Capricorn in the second house makes one serious in making money and not prone to spending on emotional basis. Cold calculation in love affairs that Capricorn may give might be something unwanted, but cold calculation in money matters saves the native from making many financial mistakes.

Other good signs for Saturn to be placed here are: Scorpio, Libra and Aquarius. If it also has aspects to good planets, such as Jupiter, it even further improves the situation. Then Saturn can give almost permanent stability in financial matters. Here, of course, an ideal scenario is given, to show that a negative planet placed in a chart sometimes doesn't do harm.

Saturn located in the second house can mean that you grew up in a poor family and learned your parents' limiting ways of living and being. Instead of increasing your usefulness to the world in order to afford greater comforts, you were taught to decrease your expenses if you want to buy more things.

With such a placement you are likely to work hard and spend a lot of time in securing your financial safety. This can lead to great financial gain, but it would be easier to achieve such success if firstly poverty beliefs are eliminated. Also, with such a placement the native usually succeeds later in life, after years of hard work, but the wealth he earns will last.

The native will be careful with his wealth and will not make unthoughtful decisions which put it at risk. He is likely to save a lot, and may not even spend his hard-earned money to enjoy himself. Sometimes saving money is taken to extreme and the native turns into a stingy person.

Sometimes the thoughts about money make the native feel depressed, and life becomes sorrowful. It's important in such a case to start appreciating small things in life and to find joy in how you spend your free time or in other ways. Because what's the point of living if it's all about gathering wealth and worrying about possible future lack.

URANUS IN THE SECOND HOUSE

Like Pluto, Uranus (which is the most unpredictable planet) in the second house causes sudden and unexpected changes in your financial well-being. For example, you might receive unexpected earnings, but also unexpected expenses.

Financial change is likely to happen when you least expect it, like when everything is going according to how you want it to.

However, this placement also gives you an ability to make money in the most unusual and ingenious ways. Also, even if Uranus causes you to lose money, it also gives you adaptability when it comes to finances and helps you to survive difficult times.

It's very likely with such a placement that your financial situation often changes. Uranus may even cause you to lose everything. But it also gifts you an ability to start all over again and achieve success yet once more.

In general, you tend to use your knowledge in a way that causes you to earn money. Advertising or putting your innovative ideas into action in some way contributes to your financial well-being.

You have an unusual approach to money and your belongings in general. You have a possibility to make money through technology, like designing gadgets or your job having something to do with electricity or computers.

You are likely to spend a lot of money on newest gadgets and technology in general. You will want to be the first one in owning some new gadget, and you will easily master new technology. You might even review newest gadgets or have a blog about technology, especially if there's some aspect of Uranus to the ninth house.

If there is a bad aspect to the planet Mars, the native might be robbed or lose money in some violent way. In general, money isn't that important for people with Uranus in the second house, and they are likely to spend it on things that are considered unusual by others. Even if the native is rich, he may live like a poor person, or in some eccentric way, not paying attention to how much money he has. In general, there is a kind of detachment from finances.

NEPTUNE IN THE SECOND HOUSE

With Neptune in the second house, the native doesn't value money and if he could, he would live without any of it. He has different understanding of how the society should function and sometimes this involves distancing oneself from money altogether.

The native just doesn't care about material things, and therefore the topic of money is not important to him. And even if he has money, he doesn't pay attention to how much of it there is, or how much he spends. This makes it easy to sometimes deceive such people, especially if their Neptune is negatively aspected by Mercury or Mars.

They are likely to spend most of their money on entertainment, including arts. Sometimes even basic needs are neglected to satisfy the craving for that which is creative and beautiful. A native may spend all his money in such pursuits, and yet not be too much affected by the fact. Instead, he would start all over again in saving.

Sometimes the native may create a philosophy of a cashless society or something similar, like giving up all that he owns or running a self-sustaining farm, especially if good planets, like Sun and Jupiter, aspect Neptune from the tenth house.

Another thing that can happen with such a placement is that the native will undervalue his work, and will tend to charge less than what his work is worth. For him, friendship and love is more important than material considerations, so he spends more money in spreading philosophies of equality or love than caring about bettering his financial situation.

A negative possibility with Neptune, the planet of dreams and illusions, located in the second house is that if it's close to Mars or forms a square with some negative planet from the twelfth house, this can mean that the native makes money by selling drugs. Since a negative planet in the twelfth house can mean imprisonment, it is wise for such people to give up all illegal activities.

Natives with Neptune in the second house are likely to have artistic jobs, but they won't pay well. Street artists, for example, are likely to have this Neptune placement. A positive aspect from Jupiter, Sun or another good planet might cause the native to get more income from such pursuits.

Since Neptune is the planet of dreams and illusions, natives with its placement in the second house would do well to consult an expert when it comes to starting their own business or making some great financial choice. Neptune tends to blind an individual in whichever area it's located or to whatever planet it's connected. So with such a placement the Native is at risk of making wrong business and financial choices.

Since Neptune is a slow planet, it can bring procrastination into this house. Also, it's important to have savings for old age with such a placement.

A native isn't likely to have steady income, but might do well in occupations such as the sales of antiques and paintings.

PLUTO IN THE SECOND HOUSE

The presence of the planet Pluto in houses sometimes makes people greedy or obsessed about that area of their lives. And this definitely applies when Pluto is located in the second house. It means that money will be very important in the native's life and he might be greedy for more and more of it.

Since Pluto is a secretive planet, so to speak, the native with such a placement is likely to want to keep his financial affairs private.

In childhood the native may have suffered from lack of money, especially if Pluto is badly aspected by Mars, Saturn or Uranus. This has created a deep wound which the native tries to fill with receiving and spending of money.

Sometimes such a placement makes people hide their wealth from the eyes of others and never use it themselves.

Obsessions influenced by Pluto in the second house don't end with money only. The native will consider his personal belongings things that he likes and even people that are close to him, and he will strive to always keep them within his sphere of influence. It's very difficult for him to let go of something that he considers his own.

Pluto also may influence the native to get income from secretive, unusual and dark sources, such as connected with the occult, politics, death, violence, crime, or sex. As Pluto is a planet of change, death and rebirth, huge financial ups and downs is a big possibility, and the native won't be able to prevent or change such events in any way. They are there for the native to learn lessons rather than to resist them.

This is how Pluto teaches; and if the person learns lessons associated with such catastrophes, he will be reborn to understand himself and the world better. Also, if the native learns the lesson, Pluto will cause the inflow of wealth into the person's life, and sometimes even more of it than the native had initially. The lessons to learn, however, are going to be tough, like learning to be detached from money, to never take money for granted, or to put it in its rightful place rather than make one's life all about wealth.

THE THIRD HOUSE OF ASTROLOGY: YOUR SELF-EXPRESSION, SIBLINGS AND IMMEDIATE ENVIRONMENT

Watch The Third House of Astrology on YouTube.

The third house of astrology concerns your brothers and sisters, neighbors and relatives. It's also associated with self-expression, communication, including sending emails. Finally, it signifies short trips, and whether you tend to stay in one place or move quite a lot. So this house is about your immediate environment.

The natural ruler of this house is Gemini and the ruling planet of this sign is Mercury.

If a movable sign is located in this house, it means that the native will travel a lot, or in general will have an active life. But when it comes to travel it's about small trips rather than long journeys which are indicated by the ninth house. Movable signs, for your reference, are Aries, Cancer, Libra and Capricorn.

On the other hand, if you have fixed signs in this house, it means that you aren't likely to move about much. Fixed signs are Taurus, Leo, Scorpio and Aquarius.

Moon is considered malefic in some houses, but in this house, and if it's located in a movable sign, it gives an interesting life and many changes and trips. It gives negative traits too, which you will find listed in the Moon description part of the text.

Here is the significance of planets located in this house.

SUN IN THE THIRD HOUSE

Sun is a powerful placement in any house, and in the third house of communication and self-expression it will encourage you to shine in your communicative abilities and your creative abilities in general. You will want to achieve renown through creative self-expression, and if the Sun is badly aspected, this can even turn to boastfulness or being unhappy that others don't appreciate you in a way that you want.

You are likely to have an inquisitive mind and you love seeking knowledge. You know that you are intelligent, but this can turn into boastfulness if you are not careful. The practice of humility is very important with this placement.

You are able to express yourself clearly, and you might be a good public speaker. It's likely that your siblings or neighbors play an important part in your life. You love learning from your immediate environment, and you probably were a bright child, able to learn things fast, and learning to express yourself through words earlier than other children.

You love talking and you are naturally curious, but it's important not to reveal any secrets entrusted to you, and sometimes they will be hard to withhold.

You are brilliant at sharing knowledge and teaching people, and the more you do this, the more your own knowledge and understanding will increase. But never overburden yourself with too much information, so that you don't suffer from any mental imbalances.

You may prefer selecting what to study on your own, without getting involved with formal education. Also, the Sun placed in the house of self-expression gives you optimism and general positivity. People love spending time with you.

This placement promises many short trips, and the trips will be successful if the Sun is well-aspected. The native is likely to love driving, riding, cycling, or simply using public transport.

MOON IN THE THIRD HOUSE

It's a rather difficult placement for the Moon (though it can be very positive as well – please read further down) and it will influence the native to have his reason clouded by emotion or how he feels about a situation. It creates people who love living in fantasies, or at least they indulge in a lot of imagination. It also creates a sort of people who love to discuss things that aren't important, like small daily events that don't matter.

This placement creates people who like changes and who cannot stick to routine for long. Their feelings and emotions decide how they will express themselves rather than their intelligence. The native will have a life full of change, especially involving many trips. Change not only will happen to do with the immediate environment, but also opinions. The native is likely to keep changing his views and preferences of people to hang out with.

The strength of this placement is similar to the placement of Neptune in the first house, which is the ability to absorb information very quickly. The native will even be able to copy speech patterns and the behavior of others, making him an excellent actor.

Moon in this house can gift great skill in arts. This placement sometimes means that the native has siblings who are emotional and sensitive. Neighbors will be frequent visitors to the house, and in general the native may enjoy organizing social gatherings in his own home and cooking food to guests. When interacting with people, the native should guard against (s)mothering them!

MERCURY IN THE THIRD HOUSE

The third house is an excellent placement for Mercury. This planet gives superior intelligence to the native and an excellent way of expression through speech or writing. With plenty of original thinking and a sharp intellect, such a placement creates public speakers and writers.

If Mercury is afflicted in this house, however, the native may use his speech to spread false information and might experience difficulties to do with legal matters, such as signing of documents and similar activities. Such a condition of Mercury can also influence people to use their clever speech to achieve selfish goals in one way or another. They can easily convince people/win them over to their side, whether Mercury is afflicted or not.

You are likely to be interested in many things and this sometimes scatters your energies, because you don't feel like you have enough time to just focus on one thing to the exclusion of all the other interesting things to learn or activities to try.

More likely than not you have a great sense of humor. You are often surrounded by friends or if you are alone, you will tend to keep the communication going through text messages, calls or internet.

You feel best when you move, so you are likely to visit cafes, parks or other public places rather than sitting at home. Often you will be found walking, driving, or using public transport as you love to move; and the faster, the better. In general, life is almost guaranteed to be interesting with such a placement.

VENUS IN THE THIRD HOUSE

You are interested in subjects to do with arts and culture. You are able to express yourself in a beautiful and elegant way. Since you are gentle in your speech, you may get intimidated if someone addresses you with a language more on the rough side.

You appreciate literature and poetry, and with this placement you might be a gifted writer or speaker. You might also have a beautiful voice, if Venus aspects Neptune. There is a danger in using your excellent speech for selfish purposes, especially if your Venus is afflicted.

From a very early age you loved learning, and probably had a great time at school. You are likely to have been able to learn subjects rather quickly, or at least those you found interesting. If you have siblings, you probably get along with them and they might be artists or just of a beautiful appearance. They might also have quite a few love affairs.

With this placement it's difficult to be passionately in love because you tend to over-analyze your romantic relationships. So there's a lot of thinking going on which outweighs feeling. It's important for you to find a person who can listen to you and who is communicative in a relationship.

Venus in the third house gifts you many short trips and kind siblings as well as good neighbors. You probably have a loving relationship with people close to you, and you choose your intimate partners from your immediate environment. Those relationships, however, usually don't last long.

A native with this placement will love visiting beautiful places, such as parks, and may feel depressed if he is deprived of such experiences. Environment is very important to them and they feel best when in a harmonious place. This love of harmony carries over into other areas of life as well, and people with such a placement will stay away from impolite people and arguments.

MARS IN THE THIRD HOUSE

The placement of this planet in the house of communication and self-expression may make the native love debate, and sometimes he may even get into quarrels. Sometimes the impulsive planet Mars makes you speak without much thinking, and this may insult and hurt some people, or cause you trouble.

With such a placement it's quite easy to make you angry, and you will not spare words when you are. Another danger with this placement is accidents, especially to do with short trips and transport. So you should take care when using transport especially driving your car or riding a motorbike, and be careful when you go out in general. You are especially advised against speeding.

If you have siblings, you probably were at constant war with them in your childhood. You also have difficulties with your neighbors, and the disagreements are usually caused by you, especially if your Mars is badly aspected. If Mars has many bad aspects from other planets, it's highly likely that you will start quarrels because you simply enjoy them.

This placement also indicates challenging time at school (maybe you had been bullied), lots of problems when you were growing up and being raised in a dangerous or troublesome environment.

You are an impulsive person and tend to take quick actions without fully thinking them through. If Mars is well aspected, you will be good at making things from iron or dealing with sharp objects, sometimes the objects of war.

Another good occupation is something that involves motivating other people and making them take action. Your speech is powerful, and through it you can make people take action. However, it's important not to allow Mars to become uncontrollable – you should only say things that don't hurt others and don't cause destruction of any sort. Another occupation that suits the native is something that requires quick thinking in emergency situations.

JUPITER IN THE THIRD HOUSE

You love gaining all sorts of knowledge and visiting different places. You are interested in different philosophies and cultures. You love to broaden your mindset and gathering various pieces of information helps with it. You probably have great relationships with your siblings and neighbors, unless your Jupiter is afflicted.

You are likely to have many books at home. When you use the internet, you open many tabs because you want to obtain lots of information in as short a time as possible. The danger here is the consumption of useless information together with useful. It's important to be discriminating so that not to introduce chaos into your mind which will stress you out.

Also, you should take time to stay away from learning new information after the consumption of much of it. Because your mind needs to process the information it acquired – that's the only way the gotten information will truly benefit you and will be able to be applied.

You are happy when you intellectually evolve, and you are likely to maintain good relationships with people around you. You are an eternal student – you feel joyful in studying about subjects that interest you.

Your life is full of happy events and pleasant surprises. You take many trips and are active. You like talking, and you can spend hours chatting directly with friends or via internet or phone.

You probably liked your time at school (unless Jupiter is badly aspected) and you found and do find it easy to learn new things.

SATURN IN THE THIRD HOUSE

This placement sometimes means that your early education was delayed or you learnt to speak later than other children; or it can indicate that your speech is slower or you have difficulty in speaking or expressing yourself. You probably don't like to speak much, and you express yourself in short sentences.

You dislike constant interaction and when you are entrusted with secrets, you keep them well.

Your creativity is expressed through determination and discipline. You don't express yourself with excitement but with reserve. You are likely to be very intelligent but it's difficult for you to express yourself in words. You should work, therefore, on expressing your intelligence through the spoken word, and this comes only with practice, so don't be afraid to try again and again.

Your school experience might have been unpleasant, and maybe your siblings gave you problems as well. You probably struggled a lot with your homework, and you needed to invest much more effort to learn new things than other children.

You might have grown up in a restrictive environment which is responsible for your inability to fully express yourself. You can break out of this restrictive shell if you forgive those who limited you in your past and experiment with different ways of self-expression. You should try to overcome your shyness as well.

You are likely to feel that your immediate environment limits you. Saturn in this placement also makes it hard for you to learn new things, but once you learn them, they are likely to stay in your head for a very long time – sometimes you will never forget some of the things that you learnt. Also, the planet Saturn gives you a strong will to complete what you set out to achieve no matter how hard the task might be.

URANUS IN THE THIRD HOUSE

Freedom is very important to you, especially freedom of self-expression. You don't want to be like the masses, and your thinking is very different from the rest. You value individuality and don't want anyone imposing their views on you.

Depending on which aspects Uranus has and whether it's afflicted or not, your different way of thinking might be either accepted or rejected by the masses. They may praise you for the brilliance of your mind, or they might think you to be plain mad. Sometimes this placement creates emotionally unstable people as well.

People usually consider you strange and probably you had difficulties fitting in at school. You dislike formal institutions such as schools or universities, because you think them to restrict your freedom. You might rebel against them. You are likely to be against traditions and established religions also.

Your siblings might be unusual characters too. They might be geniuses or have mental problems, depending on the aspects of Uranus. Sometimes a completely unexpected separation or some other shock might happen between you and your siblings.

If your Uranus is negatively aspected by malefics, you may become a magnet to strange people. But in general people will find you very interesting, and unusual events, sometimes of a spiritual nature or connected with travel, will happen quite often to you.

The presence of this planet in the third house can make one a writer of occult subjects or an artist of some sort. Since it's the planet influencing electricity, technology and the internet, the native may choose to create a blog about technology, have an occupation to do with these mentioned subjects, or just have a hobby associated with them.

NEPTUNE IN THE THIRD HOUSE

If you have Neptune in your third house, it means you are a very creative person and will do best in creative occupations. You might be a poet, astrologer, dancer, painter, actor or a filmmaker. If there are no other planets who influence you to think practically and logically, this placement can also produce an artist who is unable to make a living from his talents.

Also, some people may believe you to be mad, because you express yourself in a way that doesn't seem logical or is just too different from the crowd. You may find it difficult to fully express what you mean, because you perceive how limiting the language is.

Because Neptune is a very receptive planet, you can absorb a lot from your environment. This can be dangerous at times, because you may absorb bad influences, and also Neptune makes it easy for you to be hypnotized. Such a placement might make you subscribe to false ideologies as well, and become a member of some religious sect.

You might do well not only in creative occupations but also those to do with exploring the subconscious mind. You may be able to truly help individuals who are mentally disabled, or you may be an excellent psychologist.

With such a planet placement it might be difficult for you to focus on one subject, and sometimes confusion rules your mind. You are better with abstract ideas than with details.

As Neptune is the planet which breaks borders, you are likely to feel brotherly love for your neighbors and other people close to you. It's also a planet of confusion, and it can manifest through your brothers or sisters not being your blood siblings, or through having siblings you don't even know of. This confusion also carries over into the area of work, sometimes making it difficult to stick to appointments or being responsible enough for important positions or the signing of documents.

With such a placement it may also be difficult to stick to a school schedule, and the native may daydream during the time for study and might neglect homework. His mind functions in a different way, and it's difficult to squash creativity and operate in an ordinary way.

Natives are likely to travel a lot and they should live in places close to some body of water. They should ground themselves regularly in any way that they can so that they don't lose touch with reality, as they love living in their own mentally created worlds.

PLUTO IN THE THIRD HOUSE

You are very influential in speech and the written word. Your communication of any sort radiates power, so with such a placement it's very important to choose your words carefully as they will have a huge impact on others.

It's likely that your childhood wasn't easy and in some way you were not allowed or could not express yourself. This might have led you to accumulate large amounts of knowledge to prove yourself an excellent speaker or just an intelligent human being. This need to consume knowledge and prove yourself intelligent is always there.

This restlessness when it comes to self-expression may manifest in too much talking or obsessions about certain subjects. You perceive some kind of emptiness in the area of self-expression which propels you to take action to fill it.

Your emotional security is based on this accumulation of knowledge. It's hard for you to face the fact that as you grow, your beliefs about things can no longer remain the same. It's a challenge because you depend on your knowledge, and letting go of that which you have outgrown might be difficult.

It's important not to create problems with your siblings, especially if Pluto is badly aspected. The siblings might have some dark secrets or obsessions, and the best thing to do is to live with them in peace. The same advice applies to your relationships with relatives and neighbors. To avoid destructive situations, it's best to maintain total peace or to stay away from such people if you cannot maintain peace with them, especially if your Pluto is badly aspected by Saturn, Uranus or Mars.

Another scenario could be that gathering of too much knowledge makes you faced with many opposing views which makes you lose ground. Sometimes mental instability results from this accumulation of too much information.

With this placement you have a natural ability to obtain through your speech what you want. People find it hard to deceive you because you know what questions to ask. You know how to use your speech to your advantage, such as using it to sell something.

Pluto located in this house influences the native to be on his toes when it comes to forming friendships. He has a deep-seated fear of betrayal, and cannot trust people easily. And he not only questions people, but everything in general. For example, he won't get into anything new or believe anything new until thorough research into the subject is done. This naturally makes the person very difficult to deceive.

The native is likely to be very independent in self-expression and therefore most of the things that he knows were not imposed on him but he chose the kind of information he wanted to learn. It's difficult for him to be taught by others – he prefers to be his own teacher.

THE FOURTH HOUSE OF ASTROLOGY: YOUR CHILDHOOD, REAL ESTATE AND THE END OF LIFE

Watch The Fourth House of Astrology on YouTube.

The fourth house represents your childhood, what kind of relationship you had with your parents, and it especially represents either the mother or the father, astrologists cannot agree. I'm personally leaning towards it representing the mother, or at least the more passive parent who stays at home, whilst the tenth house represents the more active parent, usually the father.

This house represents not only your childhood and relationships with parents, but also how you are likely to treat your own family too. It stands for your general home life as well as the house that you live in.

The fourth house also stands for what your roots are and what you hold dear. It shows where your emotional security is, and reveals that which you hide from the world. It's also the house that tells about your end days – whether they will be peaceful or not, and how you will live the last years of your life.

Here are the meanings of each planet located in the fourth house.

THE SUN IN THE FOURTH HOUSE

Having this luminary placed in the fourth house makes the native take pride in his roots. He might feel happy about his parents and the kind of home he was brought up in. The native's family might be famous, wealthy and/or aristocratic.

He might be so close to his family that he doesn't know who he is as an individual. In such a case it's important to stay away from one's parents for some time to understand who one truly is.

He is concerned with having his own family, because that's where he feels most at home and where he shines. He needs a stable family home to feel secure in life.

He will continue his own inherited tradition and will uphold the customs of his parents and grandparents. He might also uphold not only family tradition but the tradition of his birth country as well.

However, if the Sun is afflicted here, it means that the native may be boastful about his roots and unable to get along with his parents. He may try to control his own family.

A possibility with such a placement is that the native may gain some benefits, could be financial, from his parent(s).

The mother of the native might have been strong and domineering. She might have been controlling to such an extent that left the native thinking himself to be insignificant. Again, distance, as well as forgiveness, might make the native understand who he is as an individual.

This placement also promises more wealth and security in old age, whilst at the beginning the going might be tough. The native may want to invest in property or land, or engage in activities related to real estate or natural resources. This is going to prove successful if the Sun isn't afflicted. Inheritance of lands, homes or businesses is also a high possibility.

THE MOON IN THE FOURTH HOUSE

It's a strong placement for the Moon and it influences the native to place special importance on family matters. The native is happy as long as the family situation is good. But if there's discord there, the native suffers greatly, to the extent that he cannot be fully functional at work or concerning other matters.

It's usually the mother who is the most influential person in your life. You are likely to be living near the body of water or would like to live near it. Another possibility is living near the body of water during your childhood.

You like cooking and probably cleaning as well. This love of cooking and an interest in subjects relating to home life may make you excellent at careers to do with food, interior design, real estate or housekeeping.

If the Moon is afflicted, family discord and instability of home is expected, as well as frequent moving houses or other great changes in your childhood. There might be close emotional bonds with your parents, especially the parent who was more passive and stayed at home. Attachment to your home and parents will always be there; matters to do with your parents and your childhood impact your life to a great extent.

You probably talk a lot about your family and share memories about them fondly. It's a high possibility that you own items possessed by your ancestors or at least have a collection of old photographs to do with your roots. Maybe you have a few precious items owned by your grandparents which you wish to pass on to your own children.

Men with such a placement will sometimes choose wives that remind them of their own mothers. Unless there are other chart indicators showing otherwise, the native is likely to want a long-term relationship and avoid any relationship that doesn't lead to this goal.

Because family matters so much to you, if the Moon is afflicted which means that your childhood wasn't harmonious, you are likely to want to quickly start your own family to provide them the emotional security and an ideal home life that you lacked. There is a risk, however, that you will end up repeating the same mistakes that your parents did, so there should be no rush in starting your own family but you should think about it very carefully and make such decisions slowly.

MERCURY IN THE FOURTH HOUSE

This placement gives a possibility of you being born in the home of intellectuals. Both parents are very intelligent and probably educated in great institutions. Lots of ideas are discussed at home, you are likely to read and discuss day's news, and a huge library at home is a possibility as well. If Mercury is afflicted, not debates but arguments might take place in your home.

Your intellectual parents are highly concerned with your education and try their best to teach you using various methods. Discussions, puzzles, solving riddles, reading books and other means are employed to develop your intelligence. You are likely to follow the same or similar tradition when you start your own family.

It's likely that your parents invite friends to their home to discuss a wide variety of topics. You yourself might be interested in matters to do with your family roots, local real estate, environmental issues, weather or lands. You might, for example, write about such subjects or your job might be connected with dealing with such subjects in some way, usually through some means of communication.

Working from home is a high possibility with such a placement too. You are also likely to research your roots, customs of your country, and details about your ancestors either professionally or just out of interest.

You might be truly attached to your roots and may find it difficult to leave your country even for a short period of time. If Mercury is afflicted, the situation gets worse, making you close-minded towards other cultures and only thinking that your own country and culture are best.

This placement doesn't indicate a stable family life but is more likely to influence the native to have to move homes quite a bit. He might even have his home on his shoulders and be a backpacker without any permanent place to stay. Another option is people who live on wheels. Sometimes a traveler lifestyle is adopted not as a result of personal preference but because of employment requirements.

This placement also indicates that as a child you might not have received real affection as this was replaced by logic and communication. This might make it difficult for you to express affection as well, and you may tend to over-analyze your love relationships instead of allowing yourself to feel. The person who taught you most was the one who stayed at home, probably your mother. She is likely to be a teacher or her work can have something to do with giving information to others.

VENUS IN THE FOURTH HOUSE

You are emotionally attached to your home and roots. Your relationships with parents and siblings should be beautiful unless Venus is afflicted.

You are emotionally attached to your parents. Your childhood is likely to have been full of happiness and affection. This upbringing made you a loving and compassionate person, and people love you for the person that you are.

One of the parents, probably a mother, really cared for you and made your childhood full of fond memories. With such a placement it's possible that your family financially supports you.

There will be a strong wish to have your own family that resembles the structure your parents gave you and the culture you grew up in. If Venus is afflicted, your own family might not appreciate all the efforts you put into creating a nice family atmosphere.

There is harmony in the family and you are likely to be a wonderful host. You express your love to the family not only through how you treat them, but also by trying to make your home look beautiful. You feel happy and at peace when you make your home look charming and cozy.

You will probably spend quite a lot of money on home decor. It's also important for you to make sure that people who visit your home find it lovely.

You are likely to inherit property from your parents. Your end of life is going to be harmonious and peaceful (unless Venus is afflicted). In general, you prefer staying at home to going out. And if you have enough funds to make your home look beautiful, you would definitely prefer staying in.

You are likely to be an excellent gardener, and will love not only plants but the land itself. You appreciate the beauty of your homeland. The best choice to purchase property is going to be in your homeland and close to where you were born, unless there are other indications in the chart showing that purchasing it elsewhere is good also.

In general, purchasing of property and lands is going to be successful, and you may choose this activity as your business as it's likely to make you prosperous. Another good option is doing any kind of work from the comfort of your own home.

With this placement you are likely to try to avoid any sort of quarrels at home, which might cause some issues to remain unresolved and the suppressed energy will eventually come out in even more violent ways; so it's advisable not to avoid discussing things that family members disagree about, so that the conflict doesn't escalate into something much more negative.

If the home is beautifully furnished and tidy, you will feel emotionally secure and will go about daily activities in a positive state of mind.

MARS IN THE FOURTH HOUSE

There is much intensity when it comes to family matters and the native might desire to dominate family members. This can lead to disagreements or even violence, especially if Mars is afflicted.

Natives tend to invest a lot of time and skills in this area, such as fixing broken things, repairing the house in general, or doing something physical to do with improving home matters. There might be rash decisions with regards to starting a family.

The whole family might be leading an active life and be into sports or at least be very competitive. The native's outbursts of pent-up anger in the family are expected as well.

It can indicate a domineering mother too. Parents might be sports people, working for the police or having careers to do with defense or war. There is also a possibility of the family being involved in a generational illegal occupation, such as gun smuggling.

Family might be the number one in the native's life and he may treat anyone threatening its well-being very harshly.

An afflicted Mars in this house may indicate that there was much disagreement between the native and his parents, and that sometimes the situation can only be improved between the parties if the native moves away from the family.

When it comes to home ownership, an unafflicted Mars promises it. However, if it's afflicted, there might be problems associated with owning home, like legal problems, quarrels regarding ownership, the property being damaged by fire, or other accidents.

When it comes to health, Mars in this house provides great recuperative powers and lots of energy well into the old age. It gives a vigorous body and an inclination to exercise. There will be strong survival instincts.

A thing that one must be careful about with such a placement is not getting injured at home, as this placement of Mars might make this a frequent possibility, especially being injured by sharp tools, objects made of iron, or fire.

JUPITER IN THE FOURTH HOUSE

This is a wonderful placement to have, indicating good family relations, joy in childhood and a desire for learning. The native will feel safe and lucky living with parents. Family life is harmonious and happy. Parents are likely to be wealthy or at least financially secure.

The house itself where you grew up might have been large, and the family could have been large too. Your parents might have organized some cultural or religious events at home, or gathered people to discuss philosophic, religious or cultural topics.

The family likes to discuss foreign travel and if it's within the means, travels abroad out of love for different cultures.

Parents are likely to be educated and religious, instilling good values in the native. The native may have financial luck in his mature years.

However, if Jupiter is afflicted in this house, this could mean that instead of parents being financially secure, they might be deep in debt; and instead of instilling good values, they would impose on children their extremist views of religion.

Another negative outcome could be that the family was so providing and lovely that the child ends up being spoiled. He might become lazy and not care about self-growth. He might expect everything to be provided for him on a silver plate. If he doesn't try to develop, especially spiritually, he would miss out on even greater blessings from Jupiter who's responsible for religion and philosophy.

With this planet placement the native is likely to want to have a stable family life after marriage. He will instill the same values to his children as he received them from his parents. He will try to make his home safe and secure for a spouse and children. He will likely to own his own property as he feels secure when owning rather than renting. Also, his real estate purchases will provide joy as well as security.

If Jupiter is well-aspected, the native should choose to have property close to home, as those investments would be most successful.

This placement can indicate a mother that was very hospitable and always made sure that you ate enough food. She might have been overweight. She was a true hostess, loved by all people visiting your family house.

Jupiter in this house will influence the native to want to have a large family. Maybe his dream is to have many children, or just to have a house that's full of friends and activities.

SATURN IN THE FOURTH HOUSE

It's not a good placement for this planet. It indicates burdens in childhood and limitations imposed by parents. They might have been very strict or conservative. They might have been emotionally unavailable. Their attitude towards you caused your low self-esteem, and it's important to work out these issues so that they don't affect your future. Low self-esteem will cause you not to trust yourself.

Your parents might have made you feel that you are not wanted, and the emotional need to be liked or loved might make you seek the approval of everyone around you. You will feel crushed when people don't like you, and happy when they love you. But that's not healthy – you should feel worthy even if people don't actively admire you. So you should heal the wounds of your childhood to function in a healthy way. Learn to accept yourself and be at peace with who you are.

Saturn in this house may indicate a strict or even cruel father. He might even have physically punished you, and this either will result in you being cruel to your own children as well, or you will heal from the wounds and not repeat such behavior with them.

Another possibility is that Saturn can represent an old and unhappy mother who doesn't express love for her child and this leaves an emotional wound. The native might have even suffered abuse from his mother or even both parents, especially if Saturn is afflicted by malefics or forms conjunctions with them.

Another possibility for such a placement is a native being raised by his grandparents because his parents were busy working or were burdened with other responsibilities. The grandparents gave less attention and affection, and thus the child grows up feeling unloved. Sometimes it even indicates an orphan who's adopted just to do chores for older people.

Sometimes parents struggle to make a living which makes the native's life miserable. It can also mean that you will have to take care of your parents or some other person and that it would be a burden for you. This is a big possibility when you are aged 28 to 30, and the responsibility might last only a few years or be there for life. Whatever way it is, this is something to do with repaying your karma so it's important to do this duty.

It can also mean that you yourself will be somehow limited in your old age, especially if Saturn is afflicted. It could mean, for example, that in old age you would hardly leave your home or would join some religious order where seclusion is a lifestyle.

As the fourth house shows information about lands and houses, having Saturn in it can indicate problems with property. It could be that there would be delays in selling or purchasing real estate, or a house being old or hard to sell. Things change if Saturn is well-aspected by benefics, and this may cause you to acquire an old house, but the investment might be solid.

URANUS IN THE FOURTH HOUSE

You are likely to be born in an unconventional family that failed to give you a sense of stability. One of the parents is very unusual. Some unusual events can take place in your home. The family house, for example, might have been used to gather people for discussions about occult subjects.

Another possibility is having an unconventional family – maybe you live with people who aren't your blood relations, yet your parents accept them as family members. Whatever the situation is, it's not a healthy one. It will affect the native in a way that he will feel the need to be unconventional in some way, like to suddenly make great changes, even moving houses or moving abroad for no apparent reason.

If Uranus isn't afflicted, you grew up in an unconventional family but this affected you positively. This possibility even further increases if Uranus is positively aspected by benefic planets such as Jupiter. This placement can also indicate an occult ability inherited from ancestors.

If Uranus is afflicted, instead of occult gifts, the native might be susceptible to mental instability that is in the genes. If this is the case, the native should also carefully monitor his own children as mental problems run in the family. This possibility increases even more if Uranus is in conjunction with the Moon or Mercury, or if there are negative aspects from Uranus to these planets.

If Uranus is afflicted, this can indicate an unexpected change of circumstances, like having to move house out of the blue. Even if Uranus is not afflicted but located in a mutable sign, this could be a possibility. Mutable signs are Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius and Pisces.

Another possible outcome could be unpredictable family members, some difficulties with native's family, or upsetting events in childhood. The child might rebel against his parents. The parents of the native, however, won't leave a lasting impact on him. He will form his own opinions which might be completely different to the opinions of his parents.

When it comes to home ownership, Uranus again influences the native to behave in an unconventional way. For example, he may not care about owning property. He might buy property that is repellent to others but he feels good about it. He might even prefer staying in hotels or renting places rather than purchasing something of his own. His home might look really different from those of others.

Whatever the situation with his home is, it's going to be unconventional. One more thing that could be said about his home preference is that he would be completely miserable if he had to stay in a house he owns for the rest of his life, as change is something really important to him and makes him feel alive.

The native has craved for independence from an early age and felt different from the rest of the society from the time of his childhood. It's likely that he left his family home very early. He feels the need to always change or move, and this is caused by the conditions that he experienced in his childhood home.

If Uranus isn't afflicted, there could be unusual events in the family but they won't be of an upsetting nature. The family will be technologically advanced, and you yourself might love everything to do with technology and be the first one to buy some new gadget. You may also have the habit of changing the interior of your home frequently.

NEPTUNE IN THE FOURTH HOUSE

You are strongly connected with your roots (family) but the degree that this connection impacts you might not be known to you consciously.

One of your parents might be very intuitive. If Neptune is afflicted, this may manifest as a chaotic family life. There may be some secrets or mystery associated with your early life.

You have lived or would like to live near the body of water. It's ideal for you to live near water as it will help you to relax and you will feel at peace. This placement can mean that you will change homes quite a lot, and if Neptune has a negative aspect to Mercury, you have to be very careful in purchasing property as you might be deceived.

You also have to be careful about what kind of people you take into your house. Although you may feel compassion towards those who are drug addicts or alcoholics, you are strongly advised against trying to heal them or accepting them in your home, because they will end up using you. Help can be provided in other ways, such as by financially supporting some organization who helps people in such trouble.

You are tuned into nature. You understand it better than other people. If Neptune is afflicted, this may manifest as mental problems later in life whose roots cannot be found. If the planet is really badly afflicted, it could be that mental problems arise from a chaotic family life or unstable or simply mad family members.

Sometimes this placement indicates that you grew up in a family whose one parent was absent. Another possibility is that a native might have been an orphan, or that your parents didn't fulfill their roles, like those who get into new age and act as friends to their children, or even try to learn wisdom from their own children, thus reversing the roles.

Your parents might have been addicted to alcohol or even drugs, especially if Neptune is badly aspected by Pluto or Mars. They might have been members of some religious sect, or at least one parent was. In any case, the child did not have a normal relationship with parents so he lacks some basic behavior and communication skills and feels like having raised himself.

Whatever the scenario was, the native has grown up feeling confused about his roots. It's very likely, however, that he will tend to not want to see family problems in their true light and may idealize his family members who were not role models in any sense of the word.

Another possible scenario of the family life with such a placement could be that you find it difficult to live without your parents. You prefer the ease of life and safety experienced in the family. Independence in such a case can be achieved if you refuse to wear rose-colored glasses and see your family with all its negative aspects as well.

The end of life spent in some spiritual way can also be indicated by such a placement.

PLUTO IN THE FOURTH HOUSE

Pluto in the fourth house represents a classic domineering family member. There might be power struggle at home.

If you haven't learnt tough lessons of your childhood, you will end up repeating the same pattern as you had at home when you were growing up. With this Pluto placement you have suffered a domineering parent, probably a mother who wanted to control all the aspects of your life, and if you haven't learnt the lessons such tough experiences gave you, you will end up repeating the same mistakes your parent(s) did. You must forgive everyone who made your life a misery if you want to break this cycle.

If Pluto is badly aspected by malefics, you might have even been physically abused by your family member(s). Afflicted Pluto creates a terrible home atmosphere which causes you to either break or become a stronger human being. Sometimes aspects from this planet to the Sun, Saturn or Moon can indicate an early loss of one or both parents. The Moon usually stands for the mother, and the Sun or Saturn for the father. The loss might not be death but any sort of loss, like the parent leaving the family. Of course, it can indicate a literal death as well.

With this placement there is a possibility that you will want to control the members of your own family at any cost. It gets even worse if the planet is afflicted, as other family members are likely to dislike or even hate the fact that you want to dominate them. If, for example, Pluto is in opposition or square to Uranus, this may make the native violent and unpredictable.

So with this placement it's very important to try to tame that domineering side and channel this energy into more productive purposes, like providing for family or improving your domestic situation in other ways.

This placement also gives a strong bond with the earth. The native may like spending time in natural surroundings, and may be good at jobs such as mining or anything else to do with the earth, even leaning towards the occult side. Interest in the hidden side of nature is likely to develop in later years.

This connection also might be not only with the earth but with one's country as well. This placement may make one into a patriot and sometimes into an extremist who would kill for his country. This placement also can show that you will leave your home country and move to live in a foreign country, or at least change houses, but the change will greatly affect you.

There might be some secrets in the family or mystery associated with it, especially if Pluto is located in Scorpio. The presence of Pluto in this house can also indicate unusual family, maybe in terms of breaking of traditions or just unconventional family members.

THE FIFTH HOUSE OF ASTROLOGY: CREATIVITY, CHILDREN AND LOVE AFFAIRS

Watch The Fifth House of Astrology on YouTube.

The fifth house shows how the native likes to spend his free time, how he expresses himself creatively, and whether he is likely to have short-term love affairs or not. Also, it can indicate the wealth of the native's father.

Basically, this house rules things to do with art and pleasure; it shows what the native's understanding of a good time is and how much he is able to enjoy life. It also shows information about the native's children, if any.

It's the house which also shows whether the native has any gambling habits and if he's going to be successful in matters to do with speculation.

Here are the meanings of each planet located in the fifth house.

THE SUN IN THE FIFTH HOUSE

This placement gives to the native the urge to be known for his self-expression. He wants his talents to be noticed, and he truly enjoys life. He thinks that having fun and enjoying pleasure are life's essentials.

They are likely to be interested in many sources of entertainment, such as music, sports, arts, theater, cinema, shows of all sorts and other activities that are fun. They shine in parties and they are at risk of spending too much money on entertainment or it leading them into the paths of drinking or even using drugs, especially if there are negative aspects to Mars and Neptune.

They would be excellent at careers to do with entertaining people, and since they love children, they would also be excellent teachers. The native is discouraged from getting into any kind of speculative businesses and is discouraged from gambling as such a pursuit is more than likely to result in losses.

People are fascinated by them because they are usually happy and energetic. They are competitive also and usually win. They are active and are likely to be good at sports, both men and women. In fact, this placement gives to a woman some masculine qualities of high energy, high drive and ambition. She's not afraid to compete with men and usually wins.

If they don't work on self-improvement, they might come off as shallow and immature. Sometimes they become too obsessed with themselves appearing egotistical to others. They also may have too much confidence in themselves and overestimate their abilities. Thus, sometimes they experience failure simply due to this overestimation of what they're capable of.

They also find it fun to play with children. Sun placed in fire signs in this house may indicate that they have low fertility or may not even be able to have any children at all. Also, it shows that if the native will have children, it's very likely that the first child will be a boy.

In relationships they are passionate and can be truly romantic. They also are likely to be generally faithful to their partners or have medium-length relationships until they find the right person. Natives may tend to be dramatic sometimes, and the ego may get inflated. Sometimes they may appear as though acting on stage rather than dealing with reality.

THE MOON IN THE FIFTH HOUSE

Moon is a changeable planet and this quality manifests in whatever house we find it. So in the house of pleasure the native is likely to be changeable in what he finds enjoyable, including love relationships. His preferences are based on emotions and imagination. This changeability somewhat decreases if the moon is located in one of the fixed signs – Taurus, Leo, Scorpio or Aquarius.

The native is likely to have many love affairs and be emotionally involved with more than one person at the same time. He seeks emotional intensity and sometimes gets into relationships just because he enjoys the feeling of being in love. Sometimes there's an unconscious seeking of ways to dramatize the relationship so that the native might feel intense emotions.

In later years he is likely to continue preferring younger people in love relationships but this might end in a really bad way.

His childhood is likely to have been lovely and fun, and the native is attached to his mother.

He will probably look younger than he is and will easily attract people he's interested in. He may become emotionally dependent on his partner. The native's family might start getting involved in his love relationships. Whether the native is a woman or not, they understand and get along with women.

This placement is a rather dangerous for gambling, so if the thirst to gamble cannot be extinguished, the native is advised to seek for ways to satisfy this thirst through gambles that don't involve losing much money.

The native will like entertainment where food is involved, such as family gatherings, going out to restaurants, and parties where food is offered. He is likely to keep his creative abilities only as hobbies because although he is talented, he is too changeable to make any of his talents into a career.

The native is not likely to like order or any chores that repeat themselves every day. The only such regular thing he doesn't mind and actually likes doing is cooking.

This placement also indicates that the native is fertile and is able to have many children. This possibility is even more strengthened if the fifth house is located in one of the water signs – Cancer, Scorpio and Pisces. The native will love children in general and will want to become a parent at some time in his or her life. It's likely that the first child will be a girl.

A little danger with such a placement with regards to raising children is that a native may repeat the same mistakes with this children that his parents did with him or her. This is because the Moon may keep the person fixated on the past. So this is something to keep in mind and consciously try not to repeat the same scenario.

MERCURY IN THE FIFTH HOUSE

This is the placement that influences the native to express himself intellectually through some form of communication. It produces writers, critics, copywriters and those involved in changing people's opinions in some way. The trouble with this placement is that the native sometimes doesn't finish what he started.

They can express themselves in a way that affect people emotionally, thus they are excellent at careers to do with advertising or politics. They are also good at long-term strategy and can win speculative games because of the ability to understand the underlying order when other people think there isn't any.

Since they love getting involved in playing with children, the native would do well in careers dealing with developing the intelligence of children. He will find interesting ways to make them learn, and the children will find his approach fascinating.

The native's children are likely to be very intelligent and the native will spend a lot of time helping to develop their intelligence. Needless to say, communication skills will be most important in their relationship. This placement also makes natives excellent teachers of children in general. They will also love to play intellectual or strategic games.

The native is likely to be attracted to intellectual people and finds it easy to form new relationships due to his excellent communication skills. This placement may also indicate the native being interested in people who are younger than him. Many short love affairs is a possibility with such a placement too, as well as the need to date more than one person at the same time.

If Mercury is afflicted, this can make the native almost dangerous, because excellent communication skills remain but they are used for evil. The native may pretend, manipulate, lie, cheat and hurt many people through communication.

He is attracted to someone who is even more intelligent than him, because the native always enjoys developing his own intelligence – and how can this be done unless the other person is an intellectual superior.

An afflicted Mercury will make the native too critical, tending to over-analyze his love relationships, and he is likely to be too proud of his intellectual capacity.

VENUS IN THE FIFTH HOUSE

It's a good placement indicating the native's love for life and huge importance placed on love relationships. The native will be liked by others and he will spend a lot of money on entertainment, especially things that he finds beautiful, like arts as well as quite a lot of money can be spent on things to do with romance.

This placement produces love of children and the native would do well in careers associated with them. Also, the native will excel in performing arts. If the native has children, they are likely to be beautiful and talented girls and he will probably be a very good parent.

The danger with this placement is excessive pleasure. You may start being addicted to pleasures which will lead to your fall. Many love affairs or dating a few people at the same time is a possibility with an afflicted Venus.

Speculative businesses and easy gains are possible if Venus is in some way connected to the second house. If Venus is afflicted, losses are expected from such pursuits.

MARS IN THE FIFTH HOUSE

This is the placement that gives the native lots of energy to pursue that which he finds pleasurable. They will confidently pursue that which they like, and they will have strong sexual drive and the need to be in a relationship most of the time. Usually passionate love affairs don't end well, leaving the native unhappy.

He will avoid long-term commitments and will usually not marry until later in life. Numerous intimate relationships is a high possibility, as well as many partners ending up with broken hearts. The native sees winning hearts as a game, not realizing that some people can get scarred for life when the native is no longer interested in them and moves on to something new.

However, when he or she gets married and has children, the native will love playing with them and spending time with them in other ways. The first child is likely to be a boy or it could be a girl who has male traits such as high ambition, interest in sports and being very competitive and courageous.

If Mars is afflicted, one has to be careful because passionate nature can get out of control. Such a condition of the planet sometimes results in accidental pregnancies or difficulty in childbirth.

This placement also gives an ability to make tools, sculpture and use hands in other ways to make works of art or something useful. It also gives a talent for sports of all sorts, and the drive to succeed, as well as ambition and the ability to compete. The native is likely to care for his body and exercise to maintain an athletic figure.

The native will like outdoor activities in general. He will excel at teaching children something physical, like teaching them sports or tactile arts. The native has the ability to motivate others and his high energy levels inspire people. He may become someone children look up to.

However, if Mars is afflicted, the native would be a poor teacher, because he would be too domineering and forceful, thus ending up emotionally harming children. This is especially possible if Mars is placed close to the fifth house cusp and has challenging aspects to Pluto or Uranus; such a placement also gives a high possibility that the native was abused as a child. So the native is likely to perpetuate abuse in one form or another and emotionally scar children, unless his own wounds are healed.

If Mars is afflicted, the native is discouraged from using any mind altering substances such as drugs or alcohol, because he is likely not even to remember the damage he caused when under the influence of such substances. He may be aggressive towards his children or partner and may not even remember it the next day. Or under the control of substance he may gamble and lose large amounts of money.

An afflicted Mars is a particularly dangerous placement for natives who have children, because it warns of dangers concerning them, and even their deaths. Gambling is also highly discouraged, especially in Mars is afflicted, as it may result in big losses.

The native likes to be noticed by others and to display his talent in public. That's why a career in sports is very suitable for him, as well as acting. One thing to guard against with such a placement is not to direct anger towards those whom he loves when he loses or things don't go the way that he planned. To avoid such unfortunate incidents the native should learn to direct his intense energy to sports or other ways to express it in a constructive manner.

Life for the native is about either winning or losing. He loves taking risks as it makes him feel alive. He has the same competitive attitude in sports, career, as well as love affairs. He finds it very difficult to acknowledge having lost, so he does everything he can to become a winner. There's even a possibility of using unfair means so as not to lose.

JUPITER IN THE FIFTH HOUSE

Jupiter is a great placement to have anywhere in the chart, as it's a planet of luck and expansion. So in the fifth house it gives great creative abilities, a philosophical and/or religious bent of mind. You are likely to want to express yourself in arts, entertainment, education, sports or get involved with activities to do with children.

One downside is that if Jupiter is not energized by other planets, it may mean that the native may have plenty of talents but might be too lazy to make something useful with them.

The native's children are probably considered lucky and may be interested in religion, spirituality or philosophy. They are likely to achieve heights in the careers they choose. The native is likely to have many children and the children will bring happiness to him. He will love his own children and children in general.

This placement also indicates luck in love relationships and the likelihood of being in a relationship with a wealthy person who will support you. Jupiter in this house could also indicate many love affairs, and that you enjoy getting involved with people who give you great time. Thus, intimate relationships are not based on any depth but on the amount of fun that could be exchanged.

In general, you love everything that brings fun and pleasure, and it's unlikely that you will form a deep bond with any of your love interests of short love affairs. This, of course, will change when you find the person you want to start a family with.

You probably love finding out new information every day and you are interested in life in general. You are like a child who never loses interest in life, and life for you is a big adventure rather than something serious and unhappy.

If the planet is afflicted, it is very important not to engage in any sort of gambling, because this could result in heavy losses. So if Jupiter is afflicted, it's wise not to make any unusual investment or get into stockbroking or similar activities where one expects to make money easily.

If the planet is not afflicted in any way, businesses and pursuits that are based on luck might indeed end up bringing a lot of wealth. The danger in starting to earn easy money lies in the fact that Jupiter is the planet of expansion and thus will encourage the native to continue with such activities, sometimes to the point of obsession. This is very dangerous, because transits may cause negative aspects to be formed with malefics which may result in heavy losses. Therefore, it's best not to start with easy money making in the first place.

SATURN IN THE FIFTH HOUSE

A well-aspected Saturn in the fifth house may show that the native has a structured approach to creativity. The native may become an ambitious business person with a desire to achieve ever greater power.

The native may take his life too seriously, not allowing any time for enjoying little pleasures of life. Another possibility is wanting to engage in fun activities but being too shy to do it. He is likely to lack spontaneity and instead function according to well-defined patterns, sometimes lasting for the rest of one's life.

If the planet is afflicted, it can mean difficulty in giving birth or trouble with the native's children. It could indicate a miscarriage, or that the native may have low fertility.

Another possibility could be that the native doesn't want to have any children at all, or might only start feeling like having children late in life. The relationship with children will be troublesome, due to the age difference or just the difference in the way that the native and his children think.

It could also mean that the native will find it difficult to express love towards his own children and thus they will not be able to learn what affection means. The native might be too strict with children and might even be cruel with them in some way (if the planet is afflicted).

Saturn gives an opportunity to earn money through well-thought out investments in traditional areas, as well as stockbroking. Yet, if the planet is afflicted, speculative investments will result in the loss of money. However, the native is highly unlikely to want anything to do with gambling anyway.

It's hard for you to enjoy yourself and you yourself put blocks in your way, which prevent you from enjoying life. You feel that you are unable to fully express yourself and somehow end up making even pleasurable activities not so enjoyable. You probably had to grow up earlier than other children, and though you might not be considered fun (due to what you had to go through in your childhood and your serious nature) you were able to gain more wisdom than most people.

You are likely to find mature, either in age or mind, people more attractive than young ones. You are serious in relationships and think long-term. Needless to say, you will avoid short-term love affairs. You won't express your feelings to your partner in public.

You don't base intimate relationships on pleasure. Being reserved in romantic relationships and sexual expression, as well as an inability to fully enjoy the pleasurable things in life may be the result of the way that you were brought up.

Your intimate relationships will be burdened with responsibilities. An afflicted Saturn will bring love relationships that would cause sadness.

The native may find it difficult to show who he is, as well as what his abilities are, to the world. Because of this self-restrictive quality people cannot see who the native truly is and thus he remains unsatisfied in relationships in general.

URANUS IN THE FIFTH HOUSE

Similarly to the planet Pluto being in the fifth house, the presence of Uranus here shows the likelihood of many love affairs. Romantic relationships will be formed quickly and probably some unusual circumstances will be present. Such relationships will be powerful and interesting but they will quickly end too.

If Uranus is afflicted, there could be drama, discord and even violence in love affairs. The most likely reason for break ups will be that the native will feel constrained by a relationship.

Extra-marital love affairs is a high possibility if Uranus is afflicted in an astrological chart. If the native is a woman, great care should be taken with regards to love affairs as it's highly possible to get pregnant when one doesn't want children. Miscarriage or abortion is also a possibility, especially if Uranus is afflicted by malefics.

The persons with whom the native falls in love are unusual in some way. They might be highly creative or eccentrics. The native may try to express himself in a unique way through love affairs. If Uranus is afflicted, it could mean some sort of perversity or sexual promiscuity.

Since this house rules gambling too, involvement in such activities can bring fortune or poverty, since Uranus is an unpredictable planet. Of course, it's more likely to bring fortune if Uranus is well-aspected, and poverty if it's ill-aspected.

The native's children can either be very individualistic, creative geniuses or may suffer from mental or physical problems. It all depends on whether the planet is well-aspected or not. The native, unlike were Pluto in this house, will give freedom to his children, and sometimes too much of it to the point that the children are not well looked after.

The native is likely to be highly creative and may express his creativity through some technological means. Internet or electricity may be involved as well. But in however way the native creatively expresses himself, his purpose will be to cause some sort of advancement of the society.

The fifth house rules the native's hobbies as well, and if Uranus is afflicted, the native may gain pleasure through antisocial acts and other negative means. Since Uranus rules technology, the native's hobbies can include playing online games or fixing gadgets as well.

NEPTUNE IN THE FIFTH HOUSE

The planet Neptune gives to the native traits of idealism and sometimes blindness towards the issues the houses in which it's located represent.

The native in this case, for example, may idealize his love affairs, or would seek a partner who is the image of what is his ideal lover created in his mind. So he may suffer many disillusionments in love affairs, but mainly through his own fault of seeking that which is unattainable because it only exists in the native's mind.

It could also be that the native cannot really see his partner in her true light and thus idealizes her. The native might even be victimized by the partner, but will deny this for the sake of keeping the mental image of the lover untainted. If the native is really in love, he will put up even with violence sometimes in order to keep the relationship going.

The native may fall in love with troublesome individuals – those who are addicted to alcohol or drugs, or are violent in some way. He will put up with physical violence just to stay with an idealized lover. He may really want to help out this troubled individual, and the illusory atmosphere of Neptune makes him unable to perceive the impossibility of many of such endeavors.

There could also be another scenario of native lacking boundaries when it comes to loving others. The native may have many love affairs, yet not consider this being wrong in any way. The native simply finds it wrong to limit his love, even intimate love, to just one person. He considers each person beautiful in his own way, and each love story unique and sacred.

This placement can indicate high creativity and creative children. If badly aspected, it can mean that the native's children may have mental problems. It can show an unusual situation with children such as adopting them or raising them without being married. Children will be idealists as well, sometimes tending to prefer the world of dreams to reality.

Since Neptune tends to blind the affairs of whatever house it's located in, it means that the native may not understand the needs of his children, or be in other ways disconnected from his children, not even realizing that it's the case.

There could be some secret or mystery associated with the origin of the children. For example, the children may not know their father or the mother may be mistaken about who the father of the children is.

A badly aspected Neptune by malefics may mean that there could be complications in pregnancy which results in the death of a child. Pregnancies may be caused when one doesn't plan for a child, so it's very important with such a placement to avoid any substance that clouds one's mind, so that no unexpected love affairs are indulged in.

The native might be very talented and creative, yet be unaware of the fact. He may undervalue his works of art, or simply not care in making money through them.

PLUTO IN THE FIFTH HOUSE

The native has intense creative energy. There could be intense love-at-first-sights, and the native would do all it takes to get his object of affection. When in a relationship, that hunger for intensity doesn't die out and it's likely that he would seek to express it through other people too, thus having other love affairs at the same time.

Having a good time is very important to the native to the point of obsession. He always wants to have fun and do things that feel pleasurable. The native doesn't hesitate spending a lot of money on entertainment, and is at risk of even getting into debt for such spending.

Native's children may be talented, and he has great creative power that can manifest in many ways. He is likely to want to control every aspect of his child's life, making the children miserable. The domestic life may become full of sorrows if the native doesn't control the urge to be domineering.

If the planet is badly aspected, the situation could get even worse, making the native an abuser, sometimes even a physical abuser of his children (especially if there's a challenging aspect to the planet Mars). There's a high possibility that the children will abandon the native.

In general, where Pluto is located in the chart, this area will be the department of life for which the native feels hunger. This could manifest either positively or negatively. The native with this placement may feel hungry to create works of art. However, this could also manifest as the hunger for love affairs.

This hunger can manifest in another way too. It could be that the native will be hungry for luck, always hoping to win in gambling games. And if Pluto is adversely aspected, this could mean heavy financial losses.

This is the planet that gives personal growth through change; therefore, with this placement you have a chance to evolve through your children, hobbies, love affairs and creativity. For example, you may achieve another level of self-expression or understand the meaning of spiritual love; but in order to evolve you should eliminate negative character traits like the urge to control others.

THE SIXTH HOUSE OF ASTROLOGY: YOUR HEALTH AND SERVICE TO HUMANITY

Watch The Sixth House of Astrology on YouTube.

The sixth house of astrology shows the kind of service that you are going to provide for humanity. It describes in what way you are going to be useful to the society.

It also shows your health condition, and what diseases, and how difficult, you might experience in life. It shows whether you have a strong or delicate constitution.

It's the house that represents people who work under you, like your employees if you own a business, or the people you employ to do house work or any other work, for example.

It also represents your pets and other small animals, and whether you are likely to have good relationships with them or you should stay away from them because of the risk of being bitten or for any other reason. It's also the house that stands for your father's brothers and sisters.

Here are the meanings of each planet located in the sixth house.

THE SUN IN THE SIXTH HOUSE

Natives with such a placement will seek to be known through the service they provide. They will have a natural need to shine in their service to the world. Sometimes they will do work only for the sake of being admired. Admiration and compliments is what fuels them to be excellent at what they do. If those aren't coming forth, they are likely to get demotivated.

If they don't feel that they receive recognition they believe they deserve, they might even change jobs. Jobs are likely to be well-paid, unless the Sun is afflicted. With an afflicted Sun the native might be average at work but will think himself excellent and will demand privileges which he didn't earn.

If the Sun is well-placed, the native will know how to care for his health and will be well-informed about how to maintain a healthy body. Maintaining good health is very important to the native and he is likely to invest quite a lot of time in keeping the body functioning at its best.

Having such a placement may make one a doctor or a healer. But sometimes such services will be provided not for the benefit of people but for the purpose of being admired. The native will spend a lot of time working, and may be a workaholic, causing problems to his health.

His identity is tied with work so it is difficult for him to ease off in this area. He is likely to be too invested in details, wanting to accomplish his service perfectly, when total perfection is a thing not possible.

The worst thing for him is not being appreciated for what he does or being criticized for his work. This might make him demotivated to the point that he may be ready to quit his work or it could even negatively influence his health.

It's advisable for natives with such a placement to have pets, because pets will be able to relax the natives and bring them joy. Pets may also act as natural healers to them.

THE MOON IN THE SIXTH HOUSE

This isn't a good placement as the Moon will influence the native to be unstable in employment. He may even quit his work due to some negative mood. His moods will be tightly linked with the way he performs at work.

Frequent job changes is a great possibility unless the moon is in a fixed sign. (Fixed signs are Taurus, Leo, Scorpio and Aquarius.)

If the native has his own business, his employees will be unreliable and their quality of work will largely depend on their moods. If the Moon isn't afflicted, this placement gives a good chance of succeeding in businesses or employments connected with food. Another good possibility is doing some sort of house work, like cleaning homes or designing home decor.

When the native has children, it is likely that he will give up his job to care for them.

When they are at work, they put a lot of energy into it. They sometimes become workaholics and this might be a quality inherited from the native's hard-working mother. Sometimes they might be taken advantage of by their employers who may keep asking them to work overtime. It's very important in this case to set clear boundaries because health is more important than work.

They also may have special routines they follow every day, like eating the same kind of food each morning, or going to bed at a specific time, or always watching a movie before falling asleep.

It's important for natives with such a placement to care for their health and eat healthy. This will influence them to remain in a good mood most of the time, which will improve their work performance also. There is a possibility of bad digestion with such a placement, and this malfunction will be associated with mood swings.

Sometimes problems with digestion can become great, leading to hospitalization. So it's important to make sure that the native doesn't stress out too much or that the situation at work doesn't cause emotional lows. Sometimes, however, the native will think himself ill when no disease is present, and this may cause him mental distress. Such constant worry might indeed create health problems in the future.

Sometimes natives with such a placement become burdens for others to take care of. They might actually want to get sick so that others would care for them, and this could indeed become a reality. They are likely to suffer from low moods regularly, and if the Moon is afflicted, great care of mental health must be taken because mental illness is a possibility.

MERCURY IN THE SIXTH HOUSE

This is an excellent placement, giving the native much skill and an attention to detail at work. The native is likely to be highly qualified for the job that he does, being able to accomplish it perfectly. He is likely to be keeping up with the trends in his field of work, always striving to become better at what he does.

He will do well in work involving the use of mathematics and work being done online. Administrative work or any kind of employment involving structure is excellent as well. He is likely to have a talent of persuasive speech or writing, thus influencing people to do what he wants. This makes it possible for him to succeed in professions such as public speaking, writing, advertising or anything else involving communication and influence.

Since Mercury is the planet of intelligence, the native may be gifted with superior intelligence. He's going to be not only meticulous at work, but also in his dress, hygiene and daily routine. It's important for such a native that the environment he finds himself in is orderly. Chaos can greatly negatively affect the native.

He is likely to be a workaholic with an inability to stop until perfection is reached. This taxes his body and mind to the degree that he may suffer mental breakdowns if he is not careful. An afflicted Mercury may make the native too critical of co-workers as well as himself, and he may excessively worry about things that don't matter.

Sometimes this placement makes it difficult for the native to stay in one job for too long, and for the sake of variety he may change jobs. Sometimes he may have more than one job at the same time.

He is likely to care about his health and may read a lot about how to keep the body functioning well. Sometimes he will tend to find problems with his health where there aren't any, and his constant search for health problems might unnecessarily stress him out.

If Mercury is badly aspected, the native is advised not to overburden his mind with too much information and give it rest from information at regular periods, because mental imbalances is a big possibility.

The native will pay a great deal of attention to his hygiene. He will also find it offensive if his colleagues or friends don't care about their appearance and aren't perfect in their grooming. The natives may perceive the lack of care in personal hygiene almost as an insult.

VENUS IN THE SIXTH HOUSE

This placement sometimes indicates love affairs at work and sometimes marriage to a co-worker. However, if Venus is afflicted, love affairs with co-workers might bring real trouble and loss of face.

The placement gives love of providing service to the public, and the native will be well-liked by co-workers. Co-workers will find him pleasant and they will feel that he brings more warmth to the workplace.

The native will usually work in pleasant environments, and sometimes he will feel joyful being at work just for the fact that the surroundings are harmonious and beautiful.

The native will love his work and will generally like the people he works with. He will find the job that he does pleasant and will treat it more like a hobby than as something serious. He will be a good team-player and will be appreciated by the colleagues for his helpfulness and kindness. The native is likely to do well in occupations connected with arts and beauty.

He will have a beautiful personal style and will wear tasteful clothes. If he has pets, he will care for them greatly, even to the extent that he will make sure they have their own style. He might shampoo them regularly and take them to pet grooming salons.

Health is good if the native takes care to prevent excesses and other negative influences affecting the body. He should especially guard against eating too much sugary food.

MARS IN THE SIXTH HOUSE

This placement gives plenty of energy for work to the native, and he might be attracted to working with heavy machinery or tools made from iron. Blacksmiths, surgeons, any kind of machine operators, fabric workers, and mechanical engineers are likely to have this placement.

Also, sports people, or those in military or other careers requiring wearing of uniforms are also likely to have such a placement.

The native is likely to be precise in his work and he will dislike associates who are lazy or are too laid back about work. He is competitive and most of his energy is spent on work, sometimes to the point of completely exhausting his body and mind. He can accomplish in a day much more work than most other employees.

If the native has other people working under him, they are likely to comply with his commands. He is intense and employees might comply with his orders not out of the desire to do what he says but out of fear. He might be very domineering and may create enemies as a result. But in general his way of managing will get the work done.

If Mars is afflicted, the native will often get into arguments at work and may be too competitive to the point of creating enemies at every turn. This is a dangerous situation, which can lead the native being even physically attacked out of hatred for his way of dealing with people.

Mars placed here will influence the person to be methodical not only about his work but about everything. His life will be highly structured, and he will stick to well thought-out routines. He might be in the habit of wearing a certain type of clothing all the time, and his waking up, eating and sleeping habits might remain the same all his life.

In terms of health, body inflammation and sudden high fevers are possibilities. Such illnesses will usually be caused by bad temper at work. If the native is extremely forceful and bad-tempered at work, this may cause a really serious, life-threatening disease. An afflicted Mars may cause accidents at work, especially if work has something to do with sharp iron tools or heavy machinery.

An afflicted Mars can also bring into your life aggressive small animals that will injure you in some way. In general, you may keep at home a guard dog or some animal that can protect you and is not friendly to other people.

JUPITER IN THE SIXTH HOUSE

This placement makes it easy for the native to earn a lot of wealth when offering service to humanity. If Jupiter is badly afflicted, then the native will tend to be lazy and therefore won't earn much. But the placement of the planet of luck in this house definitely gives you great chances in earning a lot of money from your work.

Your work might be associated with travel, higher education or religion. You may really love working to the point of becoming workaholic. Sometimes you don't know when to stop, and this may harm your health.

In terms of health, the placement of the planet of expansion may make it difficult for you to limit your food intake. For example, you may indulge in sweets too much, resulting in weight gain. Any kind of excess must be avoided, as it might lead to health problems. But since Jupiter is a positive planet, it also gives you great vitality and you will generally be lucky in matters of health.

You like working and you find joy in whatever employment you have. You find it easy to find new jobs. Unless Jupiter is afflicted, you get along with your colleagues and are liked by them. They find you a happy and well-meaning person. They find you inspiring and they appreciate your work ethic.

Such natives will usually offer their time for some free service to humanity. They may also be involved in some sort of healing activities, be it conventional healing, like working in the medical field, or spiritual healing of any sort. The natives' work might be associated with long-distance travel, or they might be working abroad altogether.

Animal care might also be a work choice, and such an undertaking will bring joy as well as income.

SATURN IN THE SIXTH HOUSE

Saturn influences the native to take his job seriously, work hard and be reliable. He will be efficient at what he does. He will function well at work involving routine. He may be given many responsibilities. He will be good with work that requires attention to detail and logic.

The native is likely to gain wealth by applying his specific skills to the chosen field of work. Wealth may come slowly, but once it comes, it will stay. The native is likely to get better at his work and earn more money with passing years. He is likely to be respected at work, but if Saturn is afflicted, then the native won't find much joy in conversations with his colleagues.

Health problems will most likely manifest as a result of working too hard or too long. Chronic health problems might be present, as well as low vitality, again caused by overwork. If this isn't dealt with, the native may become less efficient in his job.

In general, the native will take his health seriously, and if he notices something not right in this department, he is likely to seek specialized advice and fix the issue.

Due to the planet of restriction placed in this house, the native may not get many job opportunities. But once he does get a job, he is likely to excel at it. He's not likely to be creative and he will shun inventions at work. He will stick to tried-and-tested methods of accomplishing tasks. The native might be paid less than he deserves.

Sometimes this placement makes the native take his job so seriously that he forgets to enjoy life. So the work in this case should not be the only thing that's on the native's mind but he should also learn to relax, completely switch off from work and enjoy himself. This, in turn, will improve his performance at work, and will improve his health too.

If Saturn is well-aspected, this gives to the native the body and mind that can endure great struggles and the ability to work well even in old age.

The situation is a bit different if Saturn is afflicted, making the native shun responsibilities and making for him very difficult to find a job. Also, job situation and health might be affected when transiting malefics form negative aspects to the natal Saturn.

URANUS IN THE SIXTH HOUSE

The native with such a placement may employ very unusual or advanced, usually technological, methods in his work. The work itself may largely involve the use of technology, such as the production of music or films. People designing computer games, building machines of any kind or creating computer programs also often have Uranus placed in this astrological house.

If Uranus is afflicted, the native is discouraged from having anything to do with electricity, machinery or any other undertaking involving danger, because an afflicted Uranus makes one accident-prone. One should especially take care with anything to do with electricity in such a case and even be inside when thunderstorms rage.

The native should avoid any work involving small animals. Also, small animals in general should be kept at a distance, because the native may get some disease from them or may be bitten by them. This possibility increases with an afflicted Uranus.

Uranus placed in this house attracts interesting people through work. However, if it's ill-aspected, there might be disagreements and lack of harmony in the workplace.

With this placement it's important to give to the natives lots of freedom at work. They will strongly resent any rigid structures or being forced to do something they don't like. They will want to do work according to their own understanding and methods.

They will strongly react against disagreeable colleagues and might even quit their jobs if the situation becomes really difficult.

If Uranus is ill-aspected, the native will not be able to put up with routine at work and is likely to quit job when it becomes too monotonous. Work situation is going to be unstable with an afflicted Uranus and sometimes the native will change jobs quite frequently. He may quit jobs out of the blue.

Sometimes it's not because of the native that he loses a job. Work conditions can suddenly shift without the fault of the native. That's simply a peculiar influence of this unpredictable planet. Pluto also sometimes causes the native to get unexpected job offers.

The best work in this situation would be something that is always changeable and has almost no routine. Maybe a travel writer, musician, or inventor, especially if the work involves the use of technology. You should definitely not choose work where creative input is not appreciated.

The work sphere where you are welcome to suggest improvements and are allowed to work on your own terms is best, which usually is only possible in self-employment. But in case you choose self-employment, having Uranus placed in this house will probably attract employees that are hard to control and they will want to do work their own way too.

This, of course, may be a good thing, because eccentric or unusual employees might prove great at what they do, unexpectedly bringing gains and maybe even public acclaim. But that is never guaranteed, of course, because Uranus is an unpredictable planet – it's just one of the possibilities.

The best option with such a placement is working for yourself without employing anyone, and doing your work online, because this allows you the freedom to travel where you want so you are not stuck in the same place all the time. Also, the work should allow you a flexible schedule.

If Uranus is quite afflicted, you may lack stability completely; therefore, structure at work would benefit you, though it's unlikely that you would welcome it. You are most likely to rebel against anyone and anything that tries to impose rules and structures.

In terms of health, an afflicted Uranus would cause health problems arising out of an irritable temper and nervousness. Since most diseases will be caused by mental tension, it's most important for the native to avoid any sort of stress. Therefore, meditative practices of any kind are very beneficial for people with such an astrological placement. Spending time in nature is another excellent way to make the mind more peaceful.

Sometimes illnesses appear as though out of nowhere, and an afflicted Uranus can cause accidents as well. Sometimes healing from diseases will be spontaneous.

NEPTUNE IN THE SIXTH HOUSE

This placement usually indicates service to humanity done spiritually, as well as difficult lessons that will need to be learnt in this department. Work in hospitals, jails or other large institutions, or in the fields of psychology or psychotherapy is possible. Work connected with water is also a possibility, like working on a ship.

A well-aspected Neptune in this house gives an ability to intuitively understand how to provide better service in terms of work, or improving the way the work is done. It gives the ability to receive psychic energy from the environment and use it for healing; so with this placement it's important to be in harmonious surroundings and with positive people so that you get and transfer only positive energy.

Natives with such a placement sometimes are driven to work with pets or other animals. They might intuitively understand the needs of animals.

They are likely to be interested in helping people spiritually or physically.

Natives might deceive themselves about their health or service to humanity with the placement of the planet of illusion in this house, sometimes falling prey to religious sects which may drain them of money and energy.

The best description of this planet that I've heard was that this planet is like a misty mirror – it doesn't reflect the real thing as it is. So the native is likely to see what this house represents, mainly health and service to others, through rose-colored glasses. Because of this the native should never try to self-diagnose his health issues, as he's likely to be wrong.

This placement makes it difficult to keep things organized at work. Sometimes demands for structure and organization become too much to bear and the native may choose to disconnect from all obligations and day-dream instead. This is his way of coping with stressful situations at work.

The native may find it especially difficult to handle arguments and confrontation at work, because this planet gives great sensitivity, and also because Neptune is the planet of peace.

An afflicted Neptune can give mental illnesses that are difficult to cure. Illnesses might affect both mind and body, but their origin is in the mind. Sometimes illnesses are difficult to diagnose, and chosen doctors aren't helpful or might even worsen the situation or deceive the patient. So great care must be taken in selecting the right doctor: his qualifications must be checked, as well as the feedback from his past patients.

Illnesses are likely to be non-life-threatening; however, even if illnesses are insignificant, they will be chronic or persistent, making life more difficult or the native irritable.

Drugs and alcohol should never be used if Neptune is even slightly afflicted, and even unnatural medicine use is discouraged. There is a big self-poisoning possibility, so the native should be careful in dealing with any sort of chemical substances and take care that the food he eats is healthy.

When sick, the native should consume only natural foods and be healed with natural medicines. However, when choosing natural healing methods it's important not to fall for charlatan healers, which is again a big possibility with such a placement.

With an afflicted Neptune work situation is going to be difficult. The native might not be interested in working, might be unreliable because he's not satisfied at work. If he works for himself, his employees might be unreliable, lazy, and difficult in other ways to deal with even though Neptune is well aspected. It gets even worse if it's ill-aspected, because employees may steal from the native and use him in any other way to their advantage.

The native could be unemployed and may not even care about getting a job. He might be doing some work through which he gets cheated. This is especially possible if Neptune isn't energized by any other planet, as by itself it's peaceful and receptive. But if the planet is well-aspected, harmony will rule at work, and the native will have great relationships with work colleagues.

PLUTO IN THE SIXTH HOUSE

Pluto in the sixth house gives you the ability to introduce innovative approaches to the way that the service is done to customers in any industry. It gives you an ability to invent a better way to work and serve humanity.

This placement also indicates that you will need to put effort for your health to be good. You will need to take care of your health so that you remain free from illnesses. If Pluto is badly afflicted, there will need to be a lot more work done to this area of life in order to maintain good health. However, this placement also promises great recuperative strength and great strength in general.

An afflicted Pluto can increase the possibility of getting sexually-transmitted diseases or diseases to do with reproductive organs in general. So great care must be taken to avoid such health issues. There's also a possibility of being bitten or getting diseases from small animals and bugs, so it's not recommended having pets with such a placement.

Pluto placed in this house also may influence you to work beyond your limit, which may cause you to get physically or mentally exhausted. So care must be taken not to become a workaholic. Balance between relaxation and work must always be kept, and equal importance must be given to mental and physical well-being.

Pluto is also the planet that gifts in this house an ability to heal people spiritually. Thus, the career of a spiritual healer is right with such a placement. Whatever path of service you choose though, it's through it that you will be able to progress and transform yourself.

With such a placement it's likely that you don't like to be commanded, so you are better off being your own boss. You may also find it difficult to get along with employees that don't have the same opinions or values as you. This placement shows that disagreements at work can cause mental problems so discord of any sort at work must be avoided.

Also, it's important to be honest in your work so that you don't have to deal with any legal problems, which is again likely with such a placement. However, if you work honestly and try to get along with people, Pluto promises a good income, respect and even fame in this department of life.

This placement may influence you to do a job that's mysterious or hidden. Sometimes it could be something illegal, or sometimes it could simply be work in the background, where your presence is not known in the open but you contribute to the work that's eventually seen in the public.

Governmental positions or work to do in any way with death could be possibilities, or the occupation itself might be standard but some aspect of it could be unusual, like a fashion designer making only black clothes, or a poet specializing in writing about death.

Some kind of secretive or unusual work might be engaged in too and sometimes it's kept secret because the public would not approve of it, such as prostitution. Work to do with exploring something new about the universe or involving trying to understand this reality could be possibilities as well.

It's a poor position for people who have to work under anyone, because the native will resent following orders and doing something he doesn't feel like to. Power struggles and competition at work is highly possible too.

THE SEVENTH HOUSE OF ASTROLOGY: MARRIAGE, PARTNERSHIPS AND PUBLIC ENEMIES

Watch The Seventh House of Astrology on YouTube.

The seventh house of astrology is the house of partnerships of all sorts, including business partnerships as well as marriage.

It describes what kind of husband or wife you will have; for example, if the planet Mars is located here, the husband might be violent. If Saturn is located here, you may have a strict or older partner.

And if the planet Venus is located here in a man's chart, he may have a younger, sometimes irresponsible or flirtatious wife, but other aspects must be taken into consideration to arrive at the full conclusion.

This house also shows whether you are likely to divorce and if you will remarry.

Since this house is about unions of all sorts and not only marriage, it shows how well you will do in business and any other kinds of partnerships. It also shows whether you will be successful in legal matters, and whether all kinds of contracts will usually result in happiness or unhappiness for you.

It also shows whether you are a team player or it's better for you to work on your own. It shows whether you will have enemies in the business world or enemies to do with your employment.

Those will be visible enemies, as it's the twelfth house that deals with secret enemies, such as the ones that use occult forces to cause harm. But sometimes it's not even about enemies but simply people who have different views to your own.

Here are the meanings of each planet located in this house.

THE SUN IN THE SEVENTH HOUSE

This placement makes the native want to shine in personal relationships. You derive your sense of identity through unions, and you express yourself best through joint work. If the Sun has negative aspects you may completely dissolve into the partnership and not know yourself apart from another person. Another possibility could be befriending someone wealthy or famous in order to gain benefits through the friendship.

You might try to find a father figure in relationships with others. Life will teach you that you should only depend on yourself, no matter how good a role-model you may find.

This placement might produce an individual who bases his entire life on the possibility of finding the one and uniting with him; it's found in the natal charts of people who do everything they can in order to attract the right mate. Such people dislike being alone, so if they break up with someone, they will try their best to yet again get into a relationship.

Such people can make great sacrifices in order to get married. They will be highly motivated to change themselves to appeal to a potential partner. The native is likely to marry someone of a higher social standing, and his status will get better as a result.

The partner they are likely to select will be strong and domineering, but that is okay for the native because he's seeking support through marriage in the first place.

Also, although the partner is going to be domineering, his nature won't be evil but he's likely to be generous and kind. Possibly he would be self-confident and proud. If the Sun is afflicted, the partners' ego might be huge and he might be too domineering.

Marriage is very important and in general if the Sun is well-aspected he will attract powerful, loyal, generous and maybe even famous individuals. Marriage will be happy and stable, and will get more fulfilling with passing years. The native may feel proud and show off his partner, and the same applies to him being proud of business partnerships.

If the Sun is ill-aspected, either the native, the partner or both will be domineering and will try to enforce their own will on others. The lesson in such a case would be to be tolerant. In a woman's chart, she will go for a father figure in marriage with such a placement; in a man's chart it shows that the man lacks confidence and may get into marriage to better his social status. His wife may be domineering and he would be okay with that.

Persons with this placement know how to act in public and would excel in work to do with promotion and sales. Your work should definitely involve dealing with many people. You will be excellent in occupations requiring diplomatic skills, and you will have the ability of using people to your own advantage, but this natural manipulation will usually work out for the good of all.

In general, you will be more successful in business in a partnership than if you are the only owner of the company.

THE MOON IN THE SEVENTH HOUSE

The native is likely to marry for domestic security or because of an emotional need. The family may influence the marriage, and the native usually seeks a father or mother figure in a marriage partner, so that they are cared for and their life is made more structured.

The native is likely to marry someone who is emotional and unstable in some way, like who travels a lot and is not at home most of the time. In a man's chart this placement usually indicates that they will marry someone who has the qualities of his mother.

You will dislike being alone and will prefer doing everything in union with others. You will desire to merge completely with your other half. Your emotional stability will largely depend on your partner's moods and his interaction with you and attention to you.

With such a placement you are likely to have many relationships and will not be able to see your partners in their true light. There will be much disillusionment in such affairs, because you will continuously deceive yourself into thinking that the next person you like is the one. This is especially true for natives born during the full Moon.

In a man's chart if the Moon is well-aspected, it gives a good caring home-loving wife. His mother probably was lovely too. If the Moon is afflicted by Mars both in a man's or woman's chart, the spouse may suffer from outbursts of violence.

Because the native is afraid to be alone, he jumps into relationships too fast, and tries to bond with another partner as quickly as possible. An afflicted Moon can attract partners who are mentally unstable and depressed, or even dangerous due to psychological traumas.

It's likely that the native will have many relationships and more than one marriage. When it comes to professions, the native will probably choose occupation where he's seen by the public, but his fame will usually not last long (unless there's a relationship of the Moon with some slow planets like Saturn or Jupiter).

Occupations to do with art, design or cooking are suitable for the native.

MERCURY IN THE SEVENTH HOUSE

This is an excellent placement for work relating to legal affairs unless the planet is afflicted (in which case the person should avoid anything to do with legal matters).

A writing occupation is perfect as well; also work that involves the use of diplomacy is going to be suitable, as well as the one requiring attention to detail. Whatever work is selected, it has to involve communication as that's how the native will express himself best at work. The native feels at ease in social situations.

The native will look for a partner that is intellectually superior, because he strives to mentally grow through marriage partnerships. He will need to find someone who is challenging in some way; otherwise the native will quickly get bored. He will seek such challenges not only in marriage but in any sort of friendship. He will strive to improve himself through stimulating talks with others.

An afflicted Mercury may create problems with relationships. There might be misunderstanding in marriage or business partnerships, and the native might not be reliable in some way.

He might not keep appointments or agreements, and in marriage disagreements may arise due to different views on life. The partner may be younger, and if Mercury is afflicted – a player, so to speak; unstable in many ways, and a liar. He might be a thief also, by the way.

Otherwise the marriage is also possible with someone who works with you. You may marry quite young. You may meet your other half when traveling, through writing or education. It's important not to over-analyze and intellectualize your relationship, which might be the case with such a placement, especially if Mercury is retrograde.

With such a placement the intellect of a partner would be more important than looks. Also, communication might be more important than sex or any other thing in marriage. There could also be a difficulty in selecting a marriage partner; it's possible that there would be two valid options, and the native will have difficulty in selecting one.

If Neptune is also present in the house, the marriage could be celibate or spiritual in some way. Also, it can indicate a marriage that only exists on paper, like marrying someone overseas so that you could permanently live there. This also applies if Neptune is not there but the sign it rules – Pisces – is on the cusp.

You judge yourself through the way that others react to you. The more people you meet, the more you evolve and learn through them. It might be difficult for you to commit because you don't want to miss out on anyone better. Some people you get into relationships with may prove unreliable.

VENUS IN THE SEVENTH HOUSE

It shows a great ability to deal with the public and therefore occupations to do with facing the public, such as sales, would suit the native perfectly. Occupations to do with performing arts are suitable also, as well as those where diplomacy is required. Your public image is likely to be good.

You are likely to prosper through business unions. Your business partners are likely to be pleasant characters who would be not only business partners but friends as well. Work atmosphere is going to be pleasant.

It also shows a happy marriage, if Venus is not afflicted.

Marriage is very important for the native and he will try to fulfill his romantic fantasies through it. The native is likely to marry early and will probably prosper through marriage and in general his marriage will be successful.

He will find no difficulty in sacrificing his goals and other things he finds important, like personal freedom, for marital happiness. Your other half is likely to be of a beautiful appearance but if Venus is afflicted the spouse might be lazy or shallow.

With this placement the native may sometimes idealize his partner and may overlook some negative features of theirs. The native have probably dreamt of being married since he was a child, and if Venus is not afflicted, his marriage would definitely be the fulfillment of his dreams.

If Venus is badly aspected by Saturn, there might be delays in marriage. If it's badly aspected by Jupiter, the native might be too indulgent in good living. An ill aspect from Neptune will make the spouse unable to be seen in his or her true light by the native.

Some people can only express love to the wider public, like some actors or singers do; but with this placement love is shared through friendships, and the native receives love and appreciation in the same way. The native will feel at ease in social situations. Partnerships and financial and other benefits through friends will come effortlessly to the native.

Like the placement of the Sun, this placement makes you dislike your own company and sometimes you will make friends simply out of fear of staying alone.

This house also rules legal affairs, and since Venus is the planet of peace and harmony, the native will probably not get into any difficult legal situations and will prefer to settle things out of court peacefully. And if there are some legal disputes, they will usually work out to the advantage of the native.

MARS IN THE SEVENTH HOUSE

The placement of the planet Mars in this house means that a lot of energy will be expended in partnerships. Impulsive nature might be the quality both of the native and of his partners, in business or marriage.

If Mars is well-aspected, a lot can be accomplished in business partnerships. If it's ill-aspected, there will be disagreements with employees and quarrels or even violence in marriage.

There could be divorce as well. The lesson with such a placement would be to learn to be more diplomatic when dealing with others. Sometimes the native will only mind himself in partnerships and might be too competitive.

In relationships you might be domineering and will probably not tolerate if your partner wants to be in control. Relationships can serve as a source of passion, inspiration and development, or contentions, depending on Mars' aspects. Also, it's possible even with bad aspects to make this placement work, if the energy of domination and aggression is released in appropriate ways without hurting anyone.

Your other half is likely to be energetic, competitive, impulsive and aggressive. He is likely to have a powerful athletic figure. With such a placement you will tend to be attracted to active individuals and would find passive potential partners a turn-off. Sexual attraction and the beauty of body would be primary reasons for getting into the relationship and getting married, which might lead to regret later on.

Both you and your partner might be into extreme or aggressive sports, into active travel or you might both have military, police or similar careers. It's good with such a placement to get involved into competitive sports or to release accumulated energies in any other way so that it doesn't get released through arguments.

Also, since the seventh house is the house of public enemies, having Mars placed here will bring quite aggressive opponents.

When you're in a relationship, it's well worth checking the natal chart of your partner. If he has Mars negatively aspected, especially by Saturn or Pluto, then it's more than likely that he will be violent in a relationship and it's best not to get into a relationship with such a person.

Another danger with an ill-aspected Mars is that you won't have any luck in the matters to do with law. So if you ever need to divorce, it's not likely to be in your favor; and in general matters to do with paper signing and other legal issues won't be favorable to you either.

If Mars is well-aspected, this is a good placement for work which requires aggressive selling.

JUPITER IN THE SEVENTH HOUSE

Since Jupiter is the planet of luck, being placed in this house it brings fortune in matters to do with partnerships. In other words, you will be lucky in partnerships of all sorts. You will be honest in your dealings with others and will expect the same honesty and fairness from others.

Usually the spouse is wealthy or from a noble family. He is likely to be kind-hearted and of a noble character; he could be overweight. He might be from a foreign culture and with a spiritual/religious bent of mind.

The marriage will last, and will be happy. In general, you will look for happiness in partnerships, be it marriage or any other kind of interaction with people.

Sometimes, due to the expansive nature of Jupiter in the house of marriage, you might find it difficult to limit yourself to one person only. This is especially true, or more than one marriage is a possibility, if Jupiter is located in Sagittarius, Pisces or Gemini.

There might be some difficulties in accepting some marriage responsibilities and you may sometimes think that you are missing out on something better. Also, you might be irresponsible or too light-hearted about certain marriage or business matters. In marriage it's important to find a partner who gives you enough space.

When it comes to business partnerships, they are going to be prosperous. Areas that will be easier to succeed in are to do with negotiations, sales, law, contract making and other legal occupations.

This placement gives the native excellent diplomacy and negotiation skills, so any occupation requiring these abilities would be suitable too. Also, work involving long-distance travel, education, religion, spirituality and philosophy is also favorable.

The native will be open and caring, and this will bring appreciation and friendships. He will truly want others to be happy and successful.

However, if Jupiter is ill-aspected, the native will take things for granted and will expect too much from others. Also, the native will choose wrong partners, believing in their exaggerated stories without feeling the need to check facts about them. This would lead to business failure.

SATURN IN THE SEVENTH HOUSE

This placement gives a sense of responsibility in all partnerships. Marriage is likely to be late in life or the native may marry an older or just more mentally mature, serious and career-minded person. This placement gives long marriages and both parties will take the institution of marriage seriously, if Saturn has good aspects.

Sometimes the native may decide not to marry at all, or will marry only when he is financially secure.

Natives with such a placement are responsible and can be trusted in work-related tasks. They will work well with others, usually excelling in law, contract making or business management. What will assure their financial success and stable employment is working well with others.

An afflicted Saturn will make the person critical and strict in marriage and other relationships. He will also feel confined, not able to express himself. The other half may be domineering, negative, cold and not able to show any love. He/she could be a father/mother figure to you more than a lover. They may try to create obstacles where there aren't any. Life with such a person will seem a struggle.

Also, you should definitely think twice about marrying if your Saturn is ill-aspected by malefics, because this would attract an abusive and domineering partner who would make your life unbearable.

With such a placement it's important not to get married before the 30th birthday. Only after the Saturn's return the native should consider marriage. That's because before the return the native is still not mature enough to see what marriage really is about, and may bitterly regret having tied the knot before the return of the planet.

There might be big responsibilities involved in marriage and other partnerships.

When it comes to business unions, a well-aspected Saturn will provide stability in such unions; partners will be reliable and the business will experience slow but steady growth, eventually bringing a lot of wealth to the native.

URANUS IN THE SEVENTH HOUSE

This isn't a very good placement because the native will strive for total freedom in marriage and will probably not be able to compromise at all. This usually leads to a divorce.

Usually the native with Uranus in this house will not think getting into marriage through. The marriage might take place out of impulse under unusual circumstances and with an unusual person.

The spouse might be a genius, or he might simply be eccentric or a really strange person. The marriage would only work if both partners are unusual and give plenty of space to each other, so that the native doesn't feel his freedom restricted in any way.

Friends can suddenly appear in the native's life and then disappear as quickly. The native is usually intuitive about the kind of people he's with.

Sometimes relationships with others don't go well because the native might too quickly change his opinions and attitudes making others feel confused or even upset. This may cause his public image to suffer. The native's own partner might leave him confused because they too are unpredictable.

You are likely to want from marriage inspiration and creativity, if you marry at all. Sometimes natives with such a placement choose not to marry, which is quite wise. You will probably have some unusual marital structure, where much freedom is given. You might have a few marriages, and you are likely to get in and out of relationships frequently or at least unpredictably.

You are likely to be a poor team player. With a badly aspected Uranus it's important to avoid legal matters because you will be unsuccessful in them.

This isn't a favorable placement for business partnerships. Business partners might be strange and unreliable, the business itself will have no stability, and legal problems might also arise. Also, he should avoid being a public persona as his public image might get destroyed having such an erratic planet in the house of partnerships.

NEPTUNE IN THE SEVENTH HOUSE

This placement usually indicates that you have a karmic connection with the person that you will marry. It also gives you an ability to feel other people, as well as take on their moods.

The marriage is likely to be a spiritual one, especially if Neptune is well-aspected; and in general in this case your relationships with other people will be based on spiritual values, such as compassion and unconditional love.

However, if Neptune is ill-aspected, the situation changes. Then Neptune casts a shadow over the seventh house affairs, making you unable to see others for what they are. This may make you get into the wrong partnership and you will fail to see people in their true light in general. This will cause many disappointments, like you being cheated by other people.

When it comes to public enemies, this planet will not cause any truly harmful people to come into the native's life (this being said, one should also pay attention to the twelfth house of secret enemies).

Also, when it comes to legal problems, this planet can create lack of clarity about contracts and other legal matters, like mistakes and misunderstandings with legal papers that will be annoying but not of a life-changing nature.

Even if Neptune is well-aspected you might idealize your relationships, but it gets much worse if the planet is afflicted. Then you are likely not to see the other person for who he is at all, but have your own ideal version of the partner, and this eventually ends up in disillusionment.

If the planet is well-aspected, the native may marry someone very creative or spiritual. If it's ill-aspected, the native will find himself attracted to people with problems, such as drug or mental problems. He will try to be the savior in the relationship, believing that he can help that person.

With such a placement it's best not to marry at all, because Neptune doesn't favor legal unions.

The native might also end up being totally used by the partner energy or money-wise, but he will prefer to keep his pink glasses on and not to face the truth. When it comes to business partnerships, Neptune will attract irresponsible and unreliable business partners who are not serious about business activities. So it's not recommended to have a business partner with such a placement.

With an ill-aspected Neptune you also may be unreliable in business partnerships and your marriage partner would find it difficult to trust you. With really harsh aspects the native will become so unreliable to the point that he may consciously mislead others; and the same will apply to those interacting with the native – they will be equally as unreliable.

Either the native or his or her partners might be psychologically unstable and the native is at risk of being involved in painful legal quarrels and his public image suffering for one reason or another.

PLUTO IN THE SEVENTH HOUSE

Pluto here is in its detriment – Pluto doesn't like to make compromises and this is the major lesson of the house of partnerships. It can attract partners that are intense, obsessive, violent or domineering. It could also mean that you both will try to dominate each other and whoever has a weaker will will lose out.

However, if it's well-aspected, a partner may be very powerful and may cause significant spiritual growth or any other kind of great permanent change. The change can either be bad or good, depending on Pluto's aspects. The partner's will will be strong and they may be in some sort of occult activities.

Also, if Pluto is well-aspected, this placement gives you an ability to understand other people well. This makes you able to avoid bad business dealings and signing contracts that work to your disadvantage. With such a placement it's also important not to try to dominate others, and to play in a team as a part of a whole and not as the most important person.

The location of Pluto shows through which house you personally evolve. And if it's located in the seventh house, it means you evolve through partnerships and marriage. Your partnerships and marriage will be intense. Depending on the aspects of Pluto, your partnerships and marriage may fill you with energy or deplete you of it.

Since Pluto is the planet of intensity, it may cause you to act in an extreme way in partnerships, making others distance themselves from you. For example, at the start of the relationship you may be too obsessed about your partner which will make you lose him or her. Sometimes you may be jealous, greedy and revengeful in relationships and in order to transform yourself you must acknowledge this to yourself and change yourself.

With such a placement you are likely to treat people you don't know as potential enemies. You will be on the defensive when starting a relationship, and will only lower your protective barriers when a person meets your expectations of a friend or lover.

You have this defensive nature because you feel insecure and threatened in the presence of others; to combat that you project a powerful persona so that nobody could hurt you.

With such a placement you are likely to attract people who are powerful and intense and they will probably dominate you.

If the lessons of not domineering each other are learnt by both persons in marriage, this placement will unify both persons making them experience what it's like to blend with each other in the most perfect manner. Also, this placement, if Pluto is well-aspected, gives long marriages if plutonian lessons are learnt.

On the other hand, if this planet is ill-aspected, a divorce is very likely, and an obsessive ex will create all sorts of problems, including legal ones, and it will be very difficult to get rid of this person from your life.

Since the seventh house is also the house of public enemies, the placement of Pluto invites really obsessive and even dangerous and cruel enemies. So the best advice is to avoid people whom you notice are obsessive or extreme in some way; and in general, try to coexist with people peacefully so that no bitter enmities are created.

Also, with such a placement it's wise to avoid business partnerships because it will attract very intense partners and in case your business fails, the consequences could be very bad. It is always wise to check the natal chart of a potential business or marriage partner, especially if your Pluto is ill-aspected. If you find that another person's Pluto is ill-aspected, the sanest thing to do is to keep far from such a person.

THE EIGHTH HOUSE OF ASTROLOGY: SEX, OTHERS' MONEY AND YOUR DEATH

Watch The Eighth House of Astrology on YouTube.

Whilst the second house of astrology is the house of personal resources, its polar opposite, the eighth house, is the house of joint resources.

It's about marriage and corporate resources, and it in general deals with inherited money and property. It also rules the resources of other people in the native's chart. It indicates whether the person is driven by fear or any other emotion;

It shows the quality of the mind that is always at the background, though the person might not pay conscious attention to that quality.

For example, the presence of Saturn in this mysterious house may make the person feel anxious at the back of his mind, though he may not know why, or may not even acknowledge that that feeling is always there.

This house is ruled by Scorpio and rules the generative organs of the human body.

Since this house is ruled by Scorpio, it's also about mysticism, death and regeneration. It's one of the mystical houses of astrology. It deals with receiving messages from the spirit realm and other occult subjects.

It also indicates whether you will have a long life, and what kind of death you are likely to die.

It deals with mysterious energies, the dissolution of material bodies and it's also concerned with higher mathematics and atomic physics.

It deals with personal and group spiritual experiences.

Here are the meanings of each planet located in this house.

THE SUN IN THE EIGHTH HOUSE

The native may probe deep into the occult subjects that others are afraid to touch. He's interested in what happens after death. He feels it's his duty to research such important subjects, and doesn't relax until he finds out the depths of occult knowledge.

After he finds it out, he is reborn. He's not afraid of going through real spiritual experiences, such as personality disintegration so that you're put together the right way.

If the native isn't evolved, however, this development doesn't apply and the person will be interested in inheritances, insurance, taxes and similar subjects. He might be in some financial occupation.

This placement means that the person's work or personality will be known after his death. This is a classic placement of artists and writers whose work becomes more known after they're no more on this earth.

Things that other people consider mysterious are easily understood and sometimes intuitively known by the native. It's the placement that gives people openness towards occult phenomena such as apparition manifestation.

The native isn't afraid of spiritual things that others would be absolutely frightened of, such as visiting haunted places. In fact, such occult experiences fascinate them and they research them.

Their will is very strong and they achieve what they set their minds to. They always want to go deeper into life in general, as opposed to the shallow existence that the masses accept. They want to know how life works, what its spiritual mechanism is.

He might have many extreme spiritual experiences which transform him forever. Because of the knowledge that they hold, they have a mystical aura about them and some people feel afraid of them.

The native will live many lives in one, being almost a totally different person in different periods of this one lifetime. This serves to dissolve his ego.

Death might be dramatic in some way or in the public. Another cause of death could be sunstroke or death by fire, if the Sun is afflicted.

A father might leave a large inheritance after his death. If not a father, than some father-figure. The native is good at managing other people's resources. The father may die early, or leave home when the native is a teenager or a child.

If the Sun isn't afflicted, borrowing money from individuals or institutions is easy.

These natives are sexually attractive and have an aura of mystery and magnetism about them. They might pay a great deal to the topics of sexuality.

THE MOON IN THE EIGHTH HOUSE

The native is emotional and is able to feel the non-physical realm. He is attached to his family and if some member dies, he may use the help of a psychic to contact the dead.

He might take interest in managing joint finances, taxes or insurance. He may inherit property or money from family, especially from the mother's side. There might be fluctuations in joint finances.

If he's not careful, the native may degenerate into engaging in animalistic passions. He will want to engage in sex frequently, but not into a meaningless kind. He will seek for depth in such pursuits. Because the desire for sexual experiences will be great, sometimes the native will be too impulsive in getting into relationships, regretting his actions later on.

The native may at first be very interested in a new love affair, only for it to end soon as the disenchantment sets in. He might be possessive, obsessive and jealous in relationships.

He might be emotionally affected by picking up on others' feelings. He may have a natural understanding of how to use occult energy, and may sometimes use it for evil. He is likely to have many psychic abilities and might be able to use the energy of others, which, of course, should not be done.

Sometimes the native may gain energy through the act of sex, thus abusing the partner as the partner is left without much energy. The native may be reluctant to see this truth, and might blame the other party for relationships going wrong.

If the Moon is located in Libra, Pisces or Cancer, there's a danger of the native being abused energy-wise also.

He might receive precognitive dreams and this, as well as many psychic abilities, comes from the mother's side of ancestors.

This placement could also mean that the native's mother died or left home early, or it can mean the death of a mother figure or a woman who was very important to the native.

It's possible to receive some inheritance from someone who is female. Also, this placement shows that the native's husband or wife will have average, fluctuating wealth.

MERCURY IN THE EIGHTH HOUSE

The person having Mercury in his eighth house may choose to delve deeply into occult subjects and may even write about them. He has the ability to understand mysteries and to uncover secrets.

He is able to see separate pieces of information and put them into an understandable structure, to really understand the truth of subjects others don't understand or think too complicated or mysterious.

They are great at seeing inconsistencies and therefore it's very hard to lie to such people and for the lie to remain undetected.

This is a very powerful placement to manifest things through words; but it's a double-edged sword because negative words may be manifested too. Also, the native's speech greatly affects others, so he must take great care in what words he uses.

He should try not to criticize others and use soft, pleasant words. Because words used in order to disturb or shock would do more harm to others than the native may realize. This is important also for the reason that what you send through the occult doors of the eighth house will always be brought back to you.

When the native talks, it feels like his speech is authoritative even though he might not be fully knowledgeable about the subject. So he easily makes himself seen as an authority figure. There's a temptation to use this great gift for the manipulation of the public.

His morals, especially dealing with other people's resources, might not be strict. He might manipulate business outcomes to his own advantage.

He might also be interested in working in the area of taxes, insurance, or managing other people's resources. He will know how to manage joint resources in marriage.

He will usually not share with the public what's important to him and the goals he is currently striving for. This is very powerful because no negative thought of others can influence or destroy his to-be-manifested thoughts.

He may even use words to mislead, so that his true plans or intentions are not known by others.

He might be perceived as secretive by others. The native researches human behavior and is able to understand motivations of people he comes into contact with.

When it comes to sex, such natives will seek out partners with whom they are able to communicate well; because for them a sexual activity won't be enjoyable if they don't fully understand the partner. They might even use words to influence their partners to act in a certain way.

Also, with this placement the native is likely not to trust anyone until they are proven to be reliable. So the native might even do some checks to make sure someone is telling the truth.

He is likely to come across secret information, like some secret occult book, or information not related to spirituality, like some important hidden documents.

With such a placement the native might die as a result of some psychological problem or it could be problems with respiratory organs that may cause his death, if the planet is afflicted.

He might find it difficult to forgive and forget, especially if the planet is afflicted. He might inherit money or property from relatives or siblings.

VENUS IN THE EIGHTH HOUSE

This isn't an ideal place for the planet Venus, though this beneficial planet gives some gifts through this house too.

You will financially benefit through marriage or collaboration with others and managing their resources. You are likely to receive an inheritance, unless Venus is afflicted. Also, you may be lucky in taxes, insurance and matters to do with law.

With an afflicted Venus it's also possible that the person is at risk of degenerating into animal passions.

Sometimes the person marries so that he would gain financially. He can be too possessive and jealous. Such a placement may make the person quite emotional and for him sex is much more than a physical union but can be seen as something artistic.

A spouse is likely to be wealthy and will improve the financial situation and public standing of the native. In fact, if Venus is not afflicted, the native might gain great wealth in joint finances or through other people's resources.

This planet gives a peaceful and even pleasant death in a good environment, like being surrounded by loved ones or in a beautiful place. But if Venus is afflicted, the native might experience disappointments in love, such as a loved one leaving him or her.

The native might be attracted to partners who have darkness about them. They would be attracted to the mysterious and dark energy that those people have. Very sexual, mysterious or wealthy individuals will also be the type that these natives would get into a relationship with.

Other people find the native sexually attractive without being able to point out the reason why. There is a danger of using people by the native, so he should take care not to abuse this influence he has over others. The native might break sexual taboos and might be interested in deep occult subjects others fear to touch.

MARS IN THE EIGHTH HOUSE

Mars in the eighth house manifests through emotional intensity. The native has strong desires and uses emotional intensity to achieve them. He expends a lot of energy in achieving goals, and doesn't give up until he has what he wants.

The native is extremely passionate and might be interested in mystical sex. There might be interest in spiritual and occult subjects in general. There might be also a near-death experience which will leave the person transformed, usually for the better and in a spiritual way.

He will expend a lot of energy in sexual activities. He will use sex as a way to release energy and to recharge at the same time. He might be violent in sexual activities. He will break sexual taboos.

If Mars is afflicted by Saturn or Pluto, the native might suffer sexual or other physical abuse.

The person might have lived in a place where war was going on; his death might be sudden. It might be violent, if Mars is afflicted.

A heavily afflicted Mars may indicate that the person could be a criminal. If Mars has a negative aspect to Mercury, it means that the person may be a thief.

If Mars is afflicted, there might be disagreements about other people's resources, inheritances, taxes or insurance. The native might get such resources after much quarreling.

He will be actively involved in managing joint finances. His spouse might be impulsive in spending money, and might lose a lot of it. This placement warns against taking out loans as it's likely that they won't be paid back.

He might be very jealous and possessive in a relationship. He may do everything he can to get the person that he likes. He may treat another person as a possession.

If things don't go well, he may even use violence, like if a person he loves wants to leave the relationship.

The native might be involved in something secret, either good or evil. He will be interested in the occult but might be too impulsive about trying out occult methods without doing enough research which might harm him.

JUPITER IN THE EIGHTH HOUSE

It shows luck in inheritances, other people's money, taxes and insurance. The native may be interested in careers involving financial matters like corporate fundraising and tax accounting, or occupations to do with death, like providing funeral services.

He might be spiritually inclined but usually along the traditional/religious lines. His thoughts on spiritual subjects will be deep, and he will be a lifelong student of religion and spirituality.

Great inheritances will easily come to the native if there are no harsh Jupiter aspects. The native will find it easy to borrow money from individuals and institutions.

If Jupiter is afflicted, the native is likely to quickly use up whatever comes to him from other people, or he would only receive finances from others after a long time or after some strife.

The native is likely to live a long life and will die peacefully.

He will benefit from joint finances and other matters ruled by this house, like other people's money and inheritances. He will increase his wealth through joint resources. The individual will be protected in all the eighth house activities. Also, if the native decides to share his own resources with others, he will only gain more.

This placement will also make the native think a great deal about sex and this may turn into an obsession if he's not careful. This placement also indicates a wealthy and good husband or wife.

There will be spiritual experiences in sexual unions. The native is able to completely merge with his other half. Since Jupiter is the planet of expansion, its location in the house of sex, death and rebirth may make the native spend a lot of time on sexual activities to the point that sex becomes mindless, so this should be guarded against.

This placement makes one protected from psychic attacks and other negative spiritual experiences. It gives high intuition and an easy understanding of mystical topics.

The native will be interested in life after death topics and similar ones.

SATURN IN THE EIGHTH HOUSE

It shows that dealing with joint finances, other people's resources, taxes and insurance will involve responsibilities, sometimes heavy ones. A lot of responsibility might have been entrusted to the native by others.

If Saturn is afflicted, there might be burdens or obstacles about the just-mentioned subjects. The native might not receive what other people gave him through inheritance, for example. He also might be heavily taxed.

It shows that the cause of death might be a long illness or it could be that the person will simply die of old age. The individual, if spiritually undeveloped, may fear death.

Dreams might be of a dark nature, and the native might have frightening spiritual experiences.

The spouse might lack money and the native may financially lose out through marriage. There might be insufficient means to finance some project of his desire. But if Saturn is well aspected, money can be made through wisely, thoroughly and systematically managing other people's resources.

The native will be spiritually insightful if Saturn is well-aspected by Neptune, Pluto or Uranus.

Saturn in this placement indicates a long life. Wealth will come later in life through much hard work.

You might be a loner, fearing your emotions getting hurt. You might be sexually restricted and it might be difficult for you to fully open up to your partner. You fear uniting fully with another person not only because of sexual or emotional restrictions, but also because you fear losing your individuality.

In general, it's the emotion of fear in your subconscious that drives you. This emotion cuts you off from other individuals.

You are likely to be practicing detachment. You will be picky when it comes to long-term partners to make sure that the right one is selected. Once the partner is found, the relationship should be steady.

With this placement help is not likely to come from other people, especially financial one, so you will have to get out of trouble yourself. But in general you are not likely to ask others for help anyway.

This placement can give inheritances such as a house with debts or any other resources through which you are likely to lose money. So it will look like gain only at the beginning. Or it could be that you may spend a lot of money on legal matters to get that inheritance.

A well-aspected Saturn shows that the native will be reliable and thorough with other people's finances, so work in banks or other financial institutions is suitable.

It's also good to work in human resources as you will be economical and will know how to efficiently use such resources, knowing who's efficient and who simply wastes company's funds.

URANUS IN THE EIGHTH HOUSE

The native will be interested in the occult, science fields and physics. He may be able to understand these subjects deeply.

Since Uranus is the planet of unpredictability, being placed here it can either bring good or ill luck, in terms of joint or other people's finances (like inheritances), taxes and insurance.

It tells of an unexpected and sudden death, and the native may sense his last hour.

This placement teaches that change is the only predictable thing in this world. So if the native learns this lesson by going through many unexpected events, he will feel fulfilled.

There might be some unusual sexual habits or willingness to experiment with such a placement of Uranus, the planet of unconventionality. The native's spouse may earn money in some unusual way.

This placement can bring unusual and unexplainable spiritual experiences.

If Uranus is well-aspected, the native will receive financial support unexpectedly. Sometimes he might gain and then lose a large amount of money.

If Uranus is ill-aspected, you should be careful with money and you should never borrow. But even if you lose it all, you might quickly and completely unexpectedly gain it all back.

Uranus is a planet influencing the native to break barriers and to be free. In this house the native may break sexual or spiritual taboos. He might be highly intuitive and spiritually gifted, like being able to project his double or to astrally project.

The individual might not want to pay taxes, or he might be against financial institutions or the way that finances work. His work might be online and getting paid online might be his only or the main source of income.

NEPTUNE IN THE EIGHTH HOUSE

The individual will be interested in psychic experiences and in establishing contact with the non-physical realm.

When it comes to joint resources, taxes, insurance and in general other people's money, there might be some deception or lack of clarity about them.

A well-aspected Neptune here may make the subject clairvoyant. An afflicted Neptune may tempt an individual to use spiritual forces selfishly.

Also, you have to be careful with handling money if Neptune is afflicted, because other people may deceive you.

The native may try to avoid paying taxes or might use deceptive techniques for other financial matters.

The native will be able to feel the spiritual realm but might interpret those forces and experiences incorrectly. A badly-aspected Neptune can create individuals who believe in any spiritual piece of information they hear, falling prey to fake gurus and other spiritual deceivers.

Since the eighth house is an open door to other realms, having Neptune placed here might make the native vulnerable to be spiritually vampirized. The native might be easily hypnotized and he might be easily spiritually influenced in other ways.

With this placement the native is capable of completely uniting with his or her other half on all levels, but especially on a spiritual level. In fact, sometimes a deeply spiritual and platonic love is possible with such a placement. Sometimes the native will willingly allow himself to be used and abused in relationships, whilst giving unconditional love in return.

This placement may plunge the native's death into mystery. For example, a death cause could be never found out, or the disease that causes death might be of a mysterious origin.

Water as a cause of death would also be possible, as well as poisoning. Alcohol or drug overdose might be the death cause too.

With this placement it's important to protect your energy and not just be open to anything and anyone, as this placement puts you at risk of being abused energy-wise and spiritually.

You may receive precognitive dreams and you might be able to astrally project. You will be interested in life and death topics.

PLUTO IN THE EIGHTH HOUSE

You might be interested in spiritual topics such as reincarnation, other eastern spiritual branches, or western occult tradition. You will naturally or easily understand subjects dealing with the investigation of subtle energy or physical matter.

If Pluto is well-aspected, you will be spiritually strong, sometimes highly intuitive. You will be determined to accomplish what you want despite of the obstacles. You will not have time for things that do not matter.

Since this is the house of death and regeneration, the planet Pluto having the same qualities as it's naturally placed in this house, may make you go through dangerous situations and you will be a changed person afterwards. Life crises are harsh gifts from Pluto which greatly enrich you if you learn from them.

Wherever Pluto is located, that's the area through which you evolve, so you evolve through spirituality, sexual experiences and learning to deal with joint finances.

With a strong Pluto you will be able to successfully go through even the most challenging experiences. You tend to get to the basics of things – you are not one of those individuals who is happy with receiving only shallow information about the subject of interest.

Sometimes you engage in certain activities secretly or not show what you are up to, until it's accomplished or is at its final stages. You will be determined to accomplish anything that you desire no matter what obstacles are in your way. You will also not likely to deal with frivolous matters – you will not waste your time on them.

However, if Pluto is afflicted, there will be difficulty in dealing with other people's money, taxes, insurance and similar matters. The native may also employ occult forces for evil, if Pluto has harsh aspects with other planets.

The native is likely to have a high sex drive to the point where this could become an obsession. If Pluto is afflicted, he might be violent in sex, and will enjoy it. In general, his sexual taste could be very dark, but of course this will remain a secret.

With this placement the spouse of the native might be obsessed about money and the native might use his spouse's money. Sometimes he may even sell sex for money. Or he might be involved in illegal activities concerning money or other illegal things, such as using violence to get debts repaid.

These people are secretive and are usually energy vampires. They might have many phobias and might be into dark arts. They are insightful about people and are capable of uncovering their secrets. Therefore, work involving such research skills would suit them.

If Pluto is ill-aspected, great care must be taken with money because the native may lose it or get into debt. So loans must definitely be avoided with this placement. Wherever the planet Pluto is placed, it creates hunger in that area. And since this house is about other people's money and sex, the native might feel obsessed about those subjects.

THE NINTH HOUSE OF ASTROLOGY: TRAVELS, SPIRITUALITY AND HIGHER EDUCATION

Watch The Ninth House of Astrology on YouTube.

As the third house is concerned with personal expression in terms of communication, the ninth house, its opposite, is concerned with group thoughts and self-expression.

Those collective thoughts are especially crystallized in religious and philosophical ideas, the law, as well as higher learning. So this house is in charge of all the major social institutions.

Also, this house is about long-distance travel and the knowledge obtained during it. It's also related to foreign cultures and everything that is foreign in terms of things to do with collective communication and thoughts.

So it's the house of the collective mind, so to speak. It also shows whether the native is able to access higher level of inspiration, is wise, and is able to develop social conscience.

Here are the meanings of the planets located in this house.

THE SUN IN THE NINTH HOUSE

This placement gives high intuition and an active interest in long-distance travel, philosophy, spirituality and higher education. The native will be interested in foreign cultures. He regulates his life according to his own morality that might be quite narrow-minded.

There will be a desire to become well-known in some ninth house area, such as travel, philosophy, spirituality, religion or higher education.

If the Sun is ill-aspected, the native may attempt to impose his philosophical and religious views on others. He would also find it difficult to obtain higher education and would have disagreements with foreign people.

With a well-aspected Sun the native will seek higher knowledge in an active manner all his life. He will love long-distance travel and will try to spend as much time abroad as possible. When there, he will delve deeply into the foreign culture.

It could be that his father is of a different nationality or the native as a child was brought up in a foreign country. He might adopt a different set of religious beliefs than what he grew up with.

He's driven to delve deeply into spirituality, philosophy and higher education because his self-esteem depends on it. He may strive for authoritative positions in those fields or the field of law. He will be able to see the bigger picture in whatever that he gets really interested in and he will be able to see the interconnection of different pieces of information.

He will remain a life-long student of the subjects that interest him such as travel and spirituality. He might be interested in many subjects, and will try to learn the basics of them all. Sometimes he will spend all his time on the pursuit of knowledge and not enough time to keep the body strong and healthy. So balance is required here.

He would be good in professions where he is seen in the public. People are inspired by him so he has the power to motivate as well as educate them.

THE MOON IN THE NINTH HOUSE

This placement makes the native attached to the worldview he was raised with. The native will live his life based on spiritual and moral concepts.

The native might be quite close-minded as he will fail to open up to the concepts that are very different to the dogmas instilled by his parents. The parents might be involved in the life of the native and might not allow him to expand his horizons.

If the Moon is afflicted, the native will be very close-minded and dogmatic. Also, his philosophies of life will not be fully thought out but he will be guided by them because of how he feels about them.

The native has good intuition and might be even psychic and may be able to foresee events. It's likely that he will travel a lot and may even relocate to a distant country. Foreign travel will make him develop his personality and will be good for his mind.

Sometimes this placement promotes escapism. If the reality is not satisfying, the native will delve into the world of dreams and the occult.

The native's mother might be a foreigner or of a different religion than the father. The native's spouse might be foreign too.

As the Moon is considered a passive luminary, the native will probably prefer listening to speaking. So he will be an excellent listener, deeply absorbing what he hears. That's actually his best way of consuming and assimilating new information.

His mother might be highly educated and it might be that the native felt that her body was at home yet the mind was somewhere else. She might not have paid a lot of attention to him as a child, because she was focused on career or things that interested her, such as travel, writing or spirituality.

The native might be interested in many things or it could be that he keeps changing his hobbies. So he might become a person who knows about many things but whose knowledge is never put to the practical use. He will do all it takes to avoid boredom.

If he cannot afford to travel, he will travel in his mind. He has an amazing imaginative ability.

MERCURY IN THE NINTH HOUSE

The person will be highly educated with an interest in the ninth house activities of travel, spirituality and education. He might be some sort of a teacher or a professor. He will try to understand on what ideas the society is based and will research deeply into the mass social ideas.

They will be guided by morals and will take actions that are practical and ethical. They might travel to distant countries to research their cultures and might make travel or teaching about some aspect of it a profession.

His mind is quick and can quickly understand abstract concepts. He will enjoy having conversations with intelligent people about social trends, travels and education. He will believe that this reality could be fully understood and all his life will research things to do with how this universe works. He will see the big picture, but might be not that interested in details.

He might be good in learning foreign languages though. He may become a writer, writing about spirituality, foreign cultures or his travels. He will write out of love for delving deeply into things that interest him; he will try to escape the every day life, the shallow existence, and things that are common and perceived by him as boring. So writing could be used as a means to escape the ordinary.

He will be highly interested in life and research many aspects of it. He might consume too much information not giving the mind the required rest. So this may lead to stress or even mental imbalances. It's important to sometimes stop consuming information and allow the mind to process all it has absorbed.

This placement also may make the native jump from one subject to the next. Multitasking could be his way of life. He might have knowledge about many subjects, but totally mastering them might lead to boredom so he might jump to another subject as soon as research into one subject becomes monotonous.

Sometimes the native will be aware of the sharpness of his mind from a very young and will rebel against teachers and parents thinking himself to be smarter than them. If his convictions that he's smarter prove wrong, he will be motivated to learn even more deeply so that he gets more intelligent and proves others wrong the next time.

The native might be in the law occupation. He might be highly dogmatic if Mercury is afflicted by malefics. He might seek positions of power out of selfish reasons.

Sometimes they will travel to distant countries for spiritual purposes, such as to learn from some spiritual teacher that they like. He might even live in a foreign country for some time. He might be highly intuitive with an ability to see into the future.

If Mercury is afflicted, the person will be proud of his learning and will make others dislike him due to his boasting and the habit of trying to impose his views on others.

VENUS IN THE NINTH HOUSE

This placement makes the natives lovers of art, literature, travels, spirituality and philosophy. The native will love taking journeys to distant countries.

He might meet the person he falls in love with during one of his travels or in the fields of publishing, spirituality or higher education. The native might be strongly attracted to foreign people and to those holding other beliefs, especially spiritual ones, to their own.

He may be idealistic in love and might take time to select the right person. He will be well-educated and may try to convert others to his own way of thinking.

The native will be fascinated by foreign cultures, diving deeply into some aspects of them. Foreign people will find the native attractive. He will be better known and will have more friends abroad than in his own country.

The native will have good in-laws.

With such a placement the native may become a writer or publisher. He will love his occupation and this placement will gift the native with the ability to write well about a wide range of subjects.

Sometimes the native will be distracted from his studies and research by the available pleasurable activities or even pleasing environments. If Venus is afflicted, the native may even cut his studies short, and usually this will happen by his own choice rather than some obstacle.

They will love observing religious ceremonies of foreign cultures and other cultural events. Finally, they will fall in love with one country which they will keep visiting. They might even move to live there, and they will feel at home there rather than in their own country.

Sometimes, if Venus is afflicted, it can create escapism tendencies, especially at a young age. The native may perceive his childhood environments cruel and restrictive, and will finally feel free and happy when he escapes that environment in later years.

Exciting adventures are promised in far-away countries. You are likely to be a teacher and educating people comes naturally to you. You are a life-long student.

A well-aspected Venus gives a natural ability to get along with everyone and knowing when and what to say in different situations.

MARS IN THE NINTH HOUSE

The native will be interested in outdoor sports, travel, higher education, religion and spirituality. He can be the pioneer of a new social thought because he can passionately and aggressively promote what he stands for.

He will have high morality and other people will be inspired by the way he leads his life. Adventure is very important in his life and he will travel and research spirituality with that spirit.

Sometimes he will try to convert others to his way of thinking too aggressively and this will make people turn away from him or they might even become his enemies. This usually happens when Mars is afflicted and this would also cause the native not to want to understand and to be against people who think differently to how the native does.

With this placement the person can become a writer and he will have massive amounts of energy to use for research into higher education, spirituality and travel.

Also, with this placement the native will usually be convinced that his opinions are correct although this might not be the case in reality.

An afflicted Mars may cause the native to experience injuries while traveling, so one should be careful whilst visiting far-away destinations. Also, an afflicted Mars may cause the native to have disagreements with foreign people.

There is a possibility of being attacked or even in a place of war with an afflicted Mars.

This placement may also make the native have an excellent sense of humor; he will be positive in life and will have passion for living. He will be very enthusiastic and sometimes too impulsive. He might be into extreme and dangerous sports.

With such a placement it could be that the native will want to relocate to another country and once this happens, he will find spiritual fulfillment there.

This placement produces natives who put their philosophies into practice.

JUPITER IN THE NINTH HOUSE

These people will base their entire lives on some religious philosophy and will be very interested in long-distance travel, religion, philosophy and higher education. They are natural teachers and may be members of or they may support certain religious or educational institutions.

They will have a great thirst for learning if Jupiter is well-aspected. If the planet is afflicted, they may want to learn but will be too lazy to do it, or they may not have much opportunity for this.

They will aim for some teaching occupation in religious institutions and will tolerate other religious views. However, if the planet is afflicted, this can make the natives into narrow-minded religious extremists.

They will travel to far-away countries to understand and learn from different cultures. They might be in an occupation to do with travel, teaching, religion or philosophy.

The native will benefit from foreign people in some way. He will take long-distance travels to broaden his mind. He is likely to become a teacher or his occupation will be connected with sharing his knowledge with others.

Jupiter will protect the native during his travels and dealings with foreign people, unless it's ill-aspected.

He will learn by focusing on main trends rather than looking at the details. He will prefer studying on his own things that interest him, such as spirituality, travel and philosophy. He will remain a life-long student. He's likely to become successful quite early in life.

He will also benefit from travel, law and spiritual institutions. He will benefit from researching foreign cultures.

There's a natural desire to teach others what the native learns, and he is capable of influencing the masses either with his spoken or written word. He might even become famous if his Jupiter conjuncts Midheaven.

He's likely to be sexually attracted to foreign people and may marry a foreigner. If this planet is ill-aspected, the native may sacrifice a lot to obtain higher knowledge and sometimes he will regret that later in life.

SATURN IN THE NINTH HOUSE

This placement makes a person judge social structures in terms of their practicality and contribution to human well-being. The native will be educated in the orthodox way and would seek to establish himself in a good company for a respectable career.

He will want to be known through religion, spirituality, some philosophy, travels or higher education. He will try to attach himself to or get employment in traditional and well-established institutions.

Lawyers, professors of reputed universities and heads of traditional religious institutions can all have Saturn placed in this house. They will want their public name to stand unsmeared and they will hold conservative views about social affairs.

They will travel long-distance for business purposes and career advancement rather than for enjoyment. If Saturn is afflicted, the person will be too traditional and strict, and will hold narrow views.

The native may take great interest in ancient esoteric texts. There could be a tendency to stick to religious structures and ceremonies without understanding the deeper meaning.

He might find it difficult to pursue higher education. He may stop his higher studies, and, if Saturn is not afflicted, may resume them after the age of thirty.

The native might have been born into a strict religious family and inherits many of their beliefs. If Saturn is ill-aspected, the native will not think of breaking out of dogmas inherited from his family. He will remain conservative for the rest of his life. There might be obstacles and general unhappiness in distant travels.

It's especially not recommended to travel to distant countries if Saturn is afflicted by malefics, because those journeys or relocations will bring more misery than happiness.

Yet if Saturn has good aspects, the native will gain greatly by travelling to far-away countries, especially in more mature years.

Also, Saturn will slowly and gradually bring luck to the ninth house activities such as higher education, philosophy, law and religion. So the rewards won't come fast from such pursuits and careers, but when they do, they will be long-lasting.

URANUS IN THE NINTH HOUSE

These people will have unique views about religion and spirituality, or they might be interested in the occult branches of spirituality. Their views could suddenly change.

They are capable of bringing advanced concepts into the field of higher education, and they will not subscribe to traditional modes of thought. They will rebel against established social institutions. They will stand for social freedom so whenever they encounter social restrictions, they will stand against them. They might also rebel against strict outdated modes of conduct and religious morality.

He will live by this own created morals with which other people may disagree. They might have been rebellious children and students, arguing with parents and teachers and trying to break free from orthodox ideas and beliefs.

They will usually travel without much planning for inspiration, education or excitement. With an afflicted Uranus, the native's ideas about education won't be practical, and it could also influence people to blindly subscribe to sectarian spiritual views.

These people could be extremely intelligent and innovative yet they are unlikely to finish higher education because they rebel against established ways of learning. They might self-educate themselves though, so it's unlikely they would feel that they're missing out on higher education. It could be that they start higher education but then out of boredom or rebellion cut the studies short.

It's also likely that the native will start some career, maybe in the fields of travel, education or spirituality, and then decide to take up some other career. He might also become involved in better the society through some social reform. His ideas might be idealistic and the society may not be ready for them, but his ideas might make the society advance at least in a small way.

If the planet is ill-aspected by malefics, the native should not get involved in any mass-political activity abroad because it won't end well. Also, make sure you research a foreign country quite well before booking tickets to go there, because Uranus may influence you to be too impulsive, and problems will result from that.

For example, at the airport it will turn out you don't have the required visa, or you don't have some required medical document, or you are not aware that it's dangerous to visit that particular country because of war or political unrest, for example.

An afflicted Uranus may create a rebel without a cause, a person who stirs up masses just for the sake of rebellion or just because he wants to destroy the existing traditional structure.

This placement could also produce a person who loves to give moral lectures and teach without putting those teachings to a personal test. The person might become an astrologer or philosopher and might employ the use of internet or technology in his career. His intuition could be highly developed and he might be able to sometimes predict the future.

NEPTUNE IN THE NINTH HOUSE

The native is interested in mysticism and eastern forms of spirituality in particular. A well-aspected Neptune here can make one a seer and can give immense knowledge of spirituality. But an afflicted Neptune can make one into a blind follower of some fake guru, or he can become a religious extremist.

He's one of those people who will not care about formal education or wealth or anything material and his whole life might be dedicated to living out some spiritual idea.

The native might make all his life about spirituality and he will have great faith in the Higher Power. He will be a truth-seeker. If Neptune is positively aspected, the native will experience extraordinary psychic phenomena of a positive nature.

He will be in communication with the Divine/Higher Self and think it to be communication with an external power. He will receive answers to his prayers and motivated by this strong connection with the Divine may become a spiritual leader.

If, however, Neptune is afflicted, he might fall prey to spiritual charlatans. So in such a case it's best not to trust anyone in the religious field but to research it independently. It's especially important to beware of foreign spiritual teachers, because they will most likely sense that the native's spiritual gates are wide open and they may abuse him. So the native is advised to steer clear of getting too involved in some foreign religious sect, no matter how genuine it might seem.

This placement also may make the native get lost in a foreign country.

He will find it difficult to study dry subjects but might excel in the study of spiritual or artistic subjects. This placement may make legal matters not very clear and if the native has to deal with the law side because of his occupation, it's best to find someone tried and tested to deal with it.

The native might be simply not interested in the legal side of his work and fail to protect some creative work of his properly. His work rights might be stolen or he might be unable to earn money from it.

He is likely to travel to distant foreign countries because he will be attracted to their culture and spiritual beliefs.

Neptune often guides people's searches in the wrong direction. With this placement it's very important to exercise discernment in spiritual matters. The native should guard against wanting to become a spiritual martyr. He should also guard against delusions of spiritual greatness or spiritual mastery.

PLUTO IN THE NINTH HOUSE

This placement gives to the native an ability to correct flaws in social thinking and institutions. The native is tuned into the collective unconscious and is able to come up with social structures that suit the society of the age better.

If this planet is well-aspected, the native could be a powerful spiritual leader.

There will be hunger for higher learning and spirituality. The hunger could be great, leading to high competitiveness in these fields, as well as spiritual pride.

The native might be highly educated and will seek to be known in the area of spirituality, travel, law or higher education.

Unlike most other placements of Pluto, in this placement the native will be guided by morality in his pursuit of becoming well-known or achieving heights in the areas mentioned.

If they see that there's unfairness or malfunction in the current social institutions, he might be the cause of their destruction and regeneration.

However, the situation is not that good with an afflicted Pluto. In such a case this placement would produce a religious extremist whose goal of life is to convert others to his way of thinking. Also, with an afflicted Pluto the person could be an atheist, or his social or religious philosophy might be harmful to the society.

But even if this is the case, it's very likely that he will naturally have to go through a life-changing experience which will force him to change his personal philosophies.

It's through the areas ruled by this house that the native evolves and regenerates himself. He also has the ability to rekindle interest in social ideas that are ancient or simply no longer popular.

He might whole-heartedly subscribe to some ideology which eventually he will understand to be wrong and this will shatter his life but also will regenerate him.

He might be intolerant to people who think differently to him or whose religion and spiritual belief system is different. In such a case, something will happen for him to change this attitude and he will become more tolerant.

He's likely to be capable of manipulating the masses. He might be aware of this ability or it could be dormant. It's important not to misuse it.

Another possible field of interest or even occupation is in the field of science, social psychology, or teaching doctrines of some school of thought.

If this planet is in conjunction with Mars, the native might even use force to convert others to his way of thinking.

This placement also promises life-changing experiences during long-distance travels. The native might even move to a distant country to live there for a long time or for the rest of his life.

With this placement it could be that the native couldn't afford to visit foreign countries and when finally he is able, he falls in love with the culture he visits and decides to stay there.

Also, the person may pursue careers in politics and religion, but usually out of the desire to control the masses (their thoughts) rather than for some humanitarian purpose.

He will want to revenge those who think him wrong.

If he's interested in law, he will strive to become a judge and if he strongly believes in the correctness of the legal system, he would make a fair and strict judge who will not make verdicts based on a soft heart.

He gets a rush when people are afraid of him, thus all the striving to achieve positions of real influence and greatness. An occupation of a priest, a spiritual leader of any sort also gives that rush.

THE TENTH HOUSE OF ASTROLOGY: CAREER, FAME AND HELP FROM INFLUENTIAL PEOPLE

Watch The Tenth House of Astrology on YouTube.

The ruler of the tenth house is Saturn and its sign is Capricorn. As you may know, this sign is all about work; so this house deals with what service you provide to the society, as well as your public image.

Interestingly, from the fourth house one can judge with what resources the person starts life, whilst from the tenth – what he will do with the given resources. Whether he will make the best of them, as well as with his talents and abilities, or whether he will misuse/not use them, thus not achieving much in life.

This house shows whether the person can reach fame and importance in the public world. It shows whether the person is driven and ambitious, or whether he lacks the enthusiasm necessary to succeed.

It shows how the native will succeed, and whether people of renown/in some kind of authority position will help them. It shows the likely relationship with the person's employers.

Since this house is ruled by Saturn, this planet rewards hard work; so those who persistently try to succeed through much honest work will have this house favoring them.

It also rules people of importance in politics, like those holding high positions in this sphere. It rules the governmental structure as well.

Here are the meanings of the planets located in this house.

THE SUN IN THE TENTH HOUSE

You are ambitious to attain a high position in your career. You like to be seen as an authority figure in your field. Sometimes people involved in politics have this position. You are not afraid to work hard to attain the position of power.

You are likely to be an excellent manager.

You may be from a wealthy or even famous and respectable family. You are guided in your career by morality. You appear noble to others and the people are inspired by the way that you conduct yourself at work and in public in general. You feel it's your duty to lead an exemplary public life.

If the Sun is afflicted, you may be ruthless in your climb to power and may be domineering and attempting to control others. This might result in the loss of position and the damage to the public face. This is highly possible if Saturn ill-aspects the Sun.

A well-aspected Sun, however, brings success and high honors. You will love being in the public eye and the public will see you as a powerful person and as a leader.

Your self-esteem depends on the position that you hold in life. Like the Sun, you will strive to shine in your occupation. It's important for you to be recognized in your profession.

Your father is likely to be a strong authority figure. Sometimes this placement shows a father who outshines his children or is so powerful that the children find it difficult to form separate personalities.

Fame and great success is quite likely with such a placement. Your self-confidence is also connected with how others see you. Acceptance of the public is something really important to you and you will strive to be respected and seen as an exemplary figure.

This is a good placement for work in the field of politics, it being a profession where it's required to be in the public eye. Acting is another favorable career.

This placement might inflate one's ego, so humility must be practiced because if it's not adhered to, this may cause the native to fall from his high position, especially if the Sun is afflicted. Otherwise success is likely to be life-long.

The native might invest in his appearance so that he's liked by the public not only for what he does but for how he looks too. Sometimes the native can be a totally different person in his public life to what he is at home. So this might create problems between the public and family life of the native.

Sometimes with this placement the native might start his career as a result of the support from his father or family. In general, people in high positions of power are likely to help him in his career.

He will strive for independence at work and might become his own boss. The goal of such natives will be to leave an impact on humanity through their professional pursuits as well as to prosper from their occupations, rather than simply getting by.

Again, it's vitally important to be humble if you have this placement, as this will assure continual success.

THE MOON IN THE TENTH HOUSE

The native will feel the need to become well-known in his career. His family might be prominent in the public and the native's mother will push him to achieve career heights. Women will greatly help the native to achieve prominence in his career. The native is likely to become well-known in the public life.

The career might not be a steady climb towards success but the native will experience fluctuations. He is intuitive about public trends, able to catch the right opportunity to start some business or to further his career.

His family might have instilled in him the belief in the importance of financial security. He might try to impress the public because he wants to gain their respect and admiration. He might be needy in his career and his force with which he achieves success could be emotional rather than mental.

What others think of him will matter a great deal to him. He will also feel emotional about his career in general.

He can achieve success in jobs that are traditionally considered suitable for women, like connected with food, beauty or the fashion industry.

This placement also shows that the native's mother is a strong character and might have been dominating. She might have been quite often not at home, likely due to her employment or other duties. It could also indicate the family of renown, and that the native was instilled the importance to become well-known in his career from childhood.

It's likely that his career, public image and finances will more depend on external influences than on his personal choice and actions. So sometimes he may do much for the benefit of his career without any effect, yet sometimes he may do nothing much, yet success and money suddenly come.

He will be aided in his career by women and in general he may be surrounded by women in his occupation. He will be perceived as emotional and charismatic, and might be photogenic.

An afflicted Moon will cause the native to worry about his career, finances and public life. It may also cause him to take ill-thought-out emotional actions that may damage his career opportunities and public image.

It's a good placement for employment to do with taking care of people, or for being involved in the service industry in general.

The native's emotions are easily hurt and he is greatly negatively affected by critical remarks. He may never forgive the individuals who criticized him and might even seek revenge. He might be overly concerned about the public opinion about him. So the native should learn to disconnect from what others think of him; otherwise negative emotions may affect the native's career.

MERCURY IN THE TENTH HOUSE

With this placement the native will study hard to succeed in his career and will have excellent planning skills for the future of his professional life.

The native will know how to talk to persons in high authority positions. This placement is excellent for being involved in the field of politics. Other great occupations are writing, media, publishing and lecturing.

If Mercury is afflicted, the native may use his intelligence selfishly to climb the height of his career, hurting others as a result. Since Mercury tends to take the qualities of planets located close to it, if there are any conjunctions, you will be able to acquire more information about the work field and career from the qualities of the conjunct planets.

You might have more than one career at the same time. It's easy for you to get along with many kinds of people because of your excellent communication skills.

You like to challenge yourself in your career and to mentally evolve through it. When people positively comment about your intelligence you feel truly satisfied.

It's likely that your family or father strove to educate you and have instilled in you the belief in the importance of thorough education. You are likely to be multi-talented. You might know how to manipulate your speech to influence various kinds of people. Your father might have had excellent communication skills from whom you learnt this ability.

Although you will get along with employers, you could also have your own business, preferably in the field of communications, finances or work involving calculations or the attention to detail.

The public will perceive you as an intellectual person. You are appreciated for the smart way that you go about your career or the smartness you display in your every day work.

You might be involved in different work activities at the same time because of your active mind and the need for mental stimulation. You are likely to change quite a few jobs in your life. Sometimes you will quit jobs when they become monotonous, because you can't stand boredom and lack of intellectual stimulation.

Sometimes you may receive high positions not because of hard work but because of your extraordinary ability to speak persuasively to the people in authority (if Mercury is well-aspected, that is).

VENUS IN THE TENTH HOUSE

You are likely to be in the public eye in some sort of artistic occupation. You are likely to marry for status and money. You will maintain excellent relationships with influential people and you will know how to speak with the other sex. You may reach career heights through the help of the opposite sex.

If Venus is afflicted, you might rise high in life by using other people. You will feel at ease in the public eye. Being recognized by the masses is something that makes you feel good. You have probably been popular from very early on.

You also try to improve your public image through the way that you dress and through your personal appearance in general.

You are likely to have a good relationship with your father. He might have been a refined and good-looking person.

You will love your occupation and this will make it easy for you to become excellent at what you do. You will sometimes rise in career simply because other people will perceive you as a lovely person.

This placement also shows that you are likely to find love through work. You might be attracted to older individuals. Sometimes you will feel attracted to your employer or people in high positions, and they may also become your mentors.

Sometimes this placement indicates that the native gets so blended with his work that it becomes his only love.

The public perceives the native as likable and a charismatic person, and it's quite easy to become famous with such a placement, especially if Venus is strong and well-aspected. Venus in this house also gives appearance suitable for cameras; the native will shine/look attractive in the public, and photos and videos of him will look great.

The native has a natural ability to mesmerize the masses and make them like him. Sometimes with an afflicted Venus this might be used selfishly to gain money. For example, the native may use his image to sell something of low quality.

The public may view him as an idol and may even try to imitate his public image.

MARS IN THE TENTH HOUSE

You really want to achieve fame and a high position in life. You are very ambitious and energetic, and you will spend most of your energy to achieve career heights. Professions to do with sports, military, politics or business management suit you. Also, professions where you have to wear a uniform are going to be attractive to you.

You may become a leader in politics or military. Your energy may inspire others to be more productive. An ill-aspected Mars may mean that the person will stop at nothing to achieve success in career and this ruthlessness may cause his downfall. Also, he will strive for material success, so money with an afflicted Mars may be more important than ethics or morals. It can make the native reckless and extreme.

He will never be satisfied with a low position in life and will do all it takes to rise high in his career. He is happy when his achievements are seen by the public. With such a placement it's possible to have a personal "rags to riches" story.

If Mars is ill-aspected, this could mean that the native's childhood was difficult and that his father was overbearing and maybe even violent. So this may create an individual who is driven to succeed just to show to the father that he can achieve heights in life.

Also, an afflicted Mars may make it difficult to get along with people in power positions, and the native may not be able to accept any career advice or suggestions about his career from the public. He may go into the defense mode whenever such a comment is made. Also, he might be too competitive if Mars is afflicted, sometimes using underhand tactics to achieve what he wants.

Since Mars simply shows force, it's the aspects from other planets that will show whether the native will achieve success in his work or his hard work won't be much acknowledged. Aspects from Neptune, Pluto and Uranus may grant success. However, if Mars is located in Taurus or Libra, it could be that the native will use underhand techniques and will be caught, resulting in the loss of a good public image.

The native's self-esteem is linked with the heights he reaches in his career; thus, he will invest a lot to achieve the highest position possible.

The native will be enthusiastic about achieving his goals and this may motivate others to do the same. For a woman, this placement gives a masculine drive and ambition, and it's likely to make her into a high achiever. She will display masculine traits in her work.

If the native experiences failure at work, it really goes to his heart. But also when he experiences success, it makes him feel happier than most people.

If Mars conjuncts the Midheaven or is quite near it, the native might be too obsessed about reaching career heights. It could become everything in his life, his single goal. Mars also could grant success very early in life.

If Mars is afflicted, the native might be violent at work and may have troubles with government, police, or people in high power positions. The native might be a poor team player, preferring to have his own business or do work independently from others. Also, the native might choose careers where he can show off his athletic figure.

He might be in general an aggressive individual, but if he channels that aggression only into his drive to succeed in an ethical way, he can achieve amazing career heights.

JUPITER IN THE TENTH HOUSE

It shows that the person will achieve wealth and success, maybe also will be well-known in his or her career, but that this will usually happen later in life. This benefic planet makes him experience few obstacles and attract lots of success, especially if the planet is close to the Midheaven.

Jupiter placed in earth signs is an especially good position to acquire wealth. People of position and authority are likely to help the native in his career. People from the law and spiritual fields are likely to help him too.

He is likely to work in a moral manner, and his profession might be associated with education, spirituality, religion or long-distance travel. He will study in order to be recognized for what he does. He will feel happy when the public knows who he is. Others are likely to perceive him as an authority in his field and as a teacher. His employees, or the people he works with, are likely to appreciate him.

His happiness depends on being known in his career, as well as doing well in his work. He is likely to be very lucky in his career and may not need to try as hard as others to succeed in it. He is also going to be charitable and will be truly concerned with the well-being of humanity.

This placement also shows that his father is likely to have been an influential and positive figure in his life who contributed to the person that the native is today. He was probably a very successful person who taught the native business or work principles. The father is likely to be respected by others and have a great reputation at work, and this inspired the native to achieve similar goals.

The native is likely to be very ambitious, but also honest and reliable in his work. Due to his high principles he becomes acknowledged by the public for the way that he works, and for the kind of person that he is. Sometimes this placement can produce good politicians or those who hold official public positions of other sorts, as well as those having their own or manage businesses.

It's likely that the native will study and research in order to become the one considered most knowledgeable in his sphere. It's possible that the native will sacrifice his time with family and loved ones in order to achieve more in work.

If Jupiter is afflicted, the person may think that he deserves more than he does in terms of career rewards. It can also indicate the loss of public prominence, or a fall from a high position. The native might do almost nothing at work after achieving the status sought for.

SATURN IN THE TENTH HOUSE

It's an excellent placement for this planet, making the native responsible and mature in his work. Great responsibilities might be placed on his shoulders. The native is likely to be very ambitious in his occupation.

He will have a great drive to achieve prominence in his career, especially after the return of Saturn, at around the age of twenty-nine to thirty.

If Saturn is well-aspected, the person will achieve wealth and recognition through his career because of his moral code, good work and reliability. But if, due to the desire to rise in the career, the native doesn't act in accordance with his morals, this may lead to his downfall.

It's very important for natives having Saturn in this house to remain moral because Saturn is a very strict teacher wherever he is placed; and this is the house of his strength, so he may easily cause the native to fall if he doesn't adhere to moral code.

The native is likely to plan well about the future of his career. With an afflicted Saturn there might be obstacles in the native's career as well as the lack of opportunities. He is disciplined and persevering in his work. Usually success with this placement comes later in life but when it comes, it will last. The native is likely to work on projects that leave a long-lasting impact on the society. He can sacrifice a lot for his work and not perceive it as such a big sacrifice.

His focus and discipline are great. He is very realistic at work; therefore, he is not likely to be deceived or have unrealizable goals or unreasonable expectations.

URANUS IN THE TENTH HOUSE

You are likely to have an unusual profession or reputation. You may be a science or spiritual leader. You might be a great humanitarian. You might also choose careers to do with mathematics, electricity/electronics or astrology. You are likely to create innovations/improvements in your selected career.

You are not bound by traditions in your work; but if Uranus is afflicted in this house, you might be a rebel without a cause.

You will dislike working under anyone and you will strive for personal freedom in your career. You will try to achieve prominence in your work. You might find it difficult to get along with people holding authoritative positions.

You might change quite a few jobs in order to find something that suits you. This placement can make you very picky in your career. You might feel uncomfortable in usual jobs. You need lots of mental stimulation to keep you interested.

An afflicted Uranus might lift you high in your career and then make you fall. It might be difficult for you to stick to routine.

Since you value freedom in work so much, it's best to be self-employed or find work where work hours are flexible and your creative input is appreciated. Hypnotism, writing, or work connected to the field of internet or technology might be good for you also.

You have progressive ideas about the society. Your father might have been very unique, a genius, or an eccentric.

One of the best options for your career is in the field of technology or working online. It's best for you to have freedom of movement in your work, thus internet jobs are preferable.

You may quit work absolutely unexpectedly and quickly. If Uranus is ill-aspected, you may have to go through long periods of unemployment. You might dislike the process of going through formal work selection and therefore might end up doing unusual jobs.

Sometimes this placement might make you famous without you wanting to. You might become famous due to your unique way of approaching work.

In general, this placement makes you not much concerned with your public image or career. So though Uranus can make you lose good public face as well as to regain it, you are likely not too much care about such matters anyway.

NEPTUNE IN THE TENTH HOUSE

Through the help of intuition you will be able to select the right career. This placement makes you able to have occupations in the field of psychology, spirituality and psychiatry. You might be a good spiritual leader, actor, artist, musician or any occupation requiring creativity and spirituality could be good for you. Your profession is likely to be unusual in some way and some strange circumstances may surround it.

If Neptune is ill-aspected, you may be impractical in your job, not being able to get along with co-workers or employers, and not being able to properly plan your career.

If the planet is well-aspected, you may achieve career heights, especially if the career has something to do with spirituality, water or creativity. An afflicted Neptune may make one unreliable and dishonest; these qualities may cause the native to lose occupation or a good public image. It can serve as a good lesson not to be selfish, so this downfall can benefit the native if he corrects his faults as a result.

It might be that the native goes about his work by simply transferring what he gets from spiritual planes. He should be careful with self-deception, however, especially if Neptune is afflicted. He needs a job that allows him the freedom for his imagination.

He might be a good hypnotist or he can spellbind people when he is in public, like through his performance of some sort, or simply through his personality, eyes, or the way that he uses words.

This placement may also indicate that the father of the native was a dreamer, spiritual, or it could be that he was a drug addict or an alcoholic.

He might not be good at jobs requiring strict structure or organization. The native is just not designed for following strict protocols or doing routine jobs.

It's very likely that the native won't have a stable job until the age of thirty. If Neptune is afflicted, the native is likely to be tempted to sell illegal mind-altering substances but he is very likely to get caught.

This placement, if Neptune is afflicted, can influence deceptive people to enter the native's life through his work. It could also mean that the native himself is deceptive at work. He might even be an energy vampire, and might deceive himself about this fact as Neptune tends to blind.

Occupation connected with water could be profitable. A creative occupation, like acting, dancing or painting is also possible, especially if Neptune aspects Venus.

With this placement it's important to distance yourself somewhat from an occupational praise and blame, because you are likely to be greatly affected by public comments about you, to the detriment of your service to the public.

Neptune may obscure the native's view about the future so it might make sense, therefore, to get external qualified advice about it. The native may also ask less in payment than what he is really worth.

PLUTO IN THE TENTH HOUSE

It shows that the person will do anything it takes to succeed. He can be a political or spiritual leader, destroying the structures that no longer work and establishing new ones. He might have the ability to foresee the future or to heal in a spiritual way.

He understands and can well deal with people in the positions of power. He feels the need to change the world, to make it better in some way. This results in powerful supporters as well as relentless enemies.

He is likely to be misunderstood. If Pluto is well-aspected, the native will plan well for the future of his career and will be able to foresee likely future events and help the society to avoid downfalls or obstacles.

However, if Pluto is afflicted, the native will do all it takes to achieve his selfish occupational interests, sometimes at the expense of others.

There could be a huge career change, sometimes for the worse; but if the lesson is learnt, the person can, like a phoenix, rise from the ashes; since that negative career change will happen due to some character deficiency.

Also, you will evolve through your career and public responsibilities. Pluto may make you achieve extraordinary heights in the public life or the depths of infamy, or you may have to experience both.

You may find it difficult to work for someone else. You will probably despise the power others have over you and will not want to do as they say. Sometimes self-employment is the only valid option for happiness with such natives. You will feel happy, secure and confident when you reach power in your career.

Pluto is able to shred your public life into pieces, but this can also cause you to be reborn, to regenerate yourself, to overthink your life and actions.

This placement may also show that your father was domineering. You are likely to fear your father, consciously or unconsciously.

You are likely to be a workaholic and achieving high status can become the major goal of your life. You are likely to have good relationships with mature people or those in high positions in life.

The native may receive help from secretive and powerful individuals. Sometimes he may not know from whom the help comes, as the individual wants to remain unknown.

With this placement it's easy to get involved in politics. If Pluto conjuncts or is near the Midheaven, the person will be known in public. If it's located towards the end of the tenth house, he may hold powerful secretive occupations/hold power away from the public eye, like being a member or a leader of some occult society.

If Pluto is ill-aspected, the native is likely to become infamous.

He will get noticed by the public whether he wants it or not. He is likely to know how to persuade others, and no obstacle will stop him from achieving career goals. He is likely to be a perfectionist in his work.

Possible occupations can be connected with finances, research, occult and politics.

THE ELEVENTH HOUSE OF ASTROLOGY: FRIENDS, COMMON GOALS AND AMBITIONS

Watch The Eleventh House of Astrology on YouTube.

The eleventh house of astrology is to do with friends and common goals and ambitions. The fifth house is about your way of expressing yourself creatively, whilst its opposite, the eleventh house, is about the creative expression of groups.

It reveals the ability of the native to form group relationships, and shows whether he is social or reclusive, and how he appears to his friends. It also shows what kind of friends the native is likely to attract.

This house also shows how the native reacts to new ideas and innovative things; whether he easily accepts them, or is skeptical and traditional; whether he is open or closed to new experiences.

Whilst the fifth house deals with the expression of the individual ego and relates to sex to a high degree, the eleventh house is more impersonal and is concerned with humanitarian purposes. It's about realizing unconditional love and understanding the Universal Mind rather than gratifying personal desires. Those kinds of common goals that the eleventh house is concerned with give a sense of fulfilment to the individual.

Here are the meanings of each planet located in this house.

THE SUN IN THE ELEVENTH HOUSE

You want to shine in a circle of friends and you express yourself very well in group activities. What others think of you is important to you. A well-aspected Sun gives you popularity in the group, as well as many friends. You might be interested in inventions, technology and science; maybe even occult.

You will have friends who are powerful and who will help you in life. They will be generous, maybe proud; they will be people in leadership positions. You might be able to achieve fame through some group activity. You will be good at managing groups if your Sun is well-placed.

This placement makes you feel connected to humanity and you will desire to improve humanity in some way. You will probably be very fair, even supporting those who are not your friends for the sake of truth. This may create enemies because not all people are as impartial.

An afflicted Sun may influence the person to want to be in control of the group no matter through what means. They will also be boastful and create enemies through their desire to shine in a group at any cost.

But in general this placement gives friends who are loyal, generous and honest and who will help the native in life. It also shows that the native likely to achieve fame or at least be known in a community through his social involvements.

Friendships and groups are very important in his life. It's likely that he will not mind blending his identity with that of the group he identifies with. He will probably belong to quite a few groups. The native will have an especially good relationship with male friends. They will be the ones helping him to achieve career goals and other heights in life.

It's likely that with such a placement he will dislike solitude and prefer doing something social in his free time. Sometimes his great involvement with friends and in group activities may cause disagreements with his spouse and family, because they will think him dedicating more time to his friends than them, which would be true.

It gets even worse with an afflicted Sun; in such a case the native might dedicate his entire time to group activities, completely neglecting his family and work. An afflicted Sun could also cause his friends to betray him or to mistreat him in another way.

If the Sun isn't afflicted, the native's friends will help him when he is in difficulty either financially or in any other way. Also, this placement might indicate that the native's father holds an important position in the society, or that he is very respected by the community.

If the Sun is well-aspected, the native will have goals to improve the society. If it's ill-aspected, he will use groups as a means to gain power and fame.

THE MOON IN THE ELEVENTH HOUSE

You will be emotionally attached to your friends and you won't feel well without being socially active. Sometimes you may even be with people you don't much like, just so that you would not be alone. Such a placement will attract friends for sure, but sometimes relationships will not be meaningful. In fact, most of your friends might be unreliable and friendships – shallow. Also, friendships may not be stable, and friends will come and go.

A well-aspected Moon will provide help from women in times of need. It's possible that the native viewed his mother more as a friend than a parent.

Your goals change according to your mood. You are likely to have many female friends. Your home will be a gathering place for friends, and it's likely that many friends will be made through your family. You will be sensitive to the opinions of your friends, and may get really upset if some criticism about you is made. Your emotional well-being depends on what your friends think about you.

Such a placement will encourage you to allow everyone into your life. However, discrimination is required, because you will end up inviting some really nasty people into your life, causing you much grief.

With such a placement it's important to spend at least some time alone so that you get in touch with your feelings, find balance, and understand yourself. However, it's not advised to spend too much time alone, because by being deprived of any social interaction you might sink into depression.

In some cases the natives with such a placement need constant closeness of others because they take the energy of other people – they are energy vampires, in other words. Sometimes they may not realize that they are taking the energy of other people and thus are draining them.

When with friends, the native cares about them and sometimes pampers them. He is likely to entertain them and cook for them. He is likely to often invite them to his home.

This placement can make the native excellent in socializing. But if the Moon is afflicted, he will be oversensitive about this area of his life. He will join groups that will have feminine energy and the groups could be about home decor, relationships, making food, fashion or other female-related subjects of interest.

It's important for you to belong to a group and you feel revitalized after spending time socially. An afflicted moon will give group disagreements of an emotional nature. Some members could even become hysterical, the native included.

MERCURY IN THE ELEVENTH HOUSE

It's very important for you to exchange ideas with friends, and communication is of great importance in your life. You try to find friends who are intelligent and who can be mentally stimulating. You easily get bored with friends whom you notice not displaying much intelligence, but you will be open to exchanging ideas and learning from everyone.

With this placement you can easily take on the qualities of your friends, so it's very important to choose your friends wisely and to stay mainly with those whom you perceive to be your role models. You are likely to be impartial and to highly value the truth. You are original and objective.

You will investigate subjects such as science, occult, spirituality in general and things to do with helping the society. You may be perceived as unemotional, but friendly and intelligent. You will be perceived as a mental type by your friends, as opposed to physical or spiritual.

Because you have the ability to learn from anything and anyone, you develop every day and this results in a really broad mindset and an open attitude towards various experiences and people. If Mercury is afflicted, your ideas might be impractical and you may use your intelligence to influence people for selfish purposes.

You may prefer travelling in a group than on your own. When it comes to problem-solving, you prefer bouncing ideas off each other in a group rather than coming up with a solution on your own. This also expands your understanding of life as you are exposed to various views.

You truly try to understand the point of view of others; in turn, this makes you loved by others because of your open mind and the willingness to look into the opposing points of view. You are likely to be involved in your community in some way, or be a member of some groups, maybe to do with improving the life of humanity.

Your friends aren't likely to permanently stay in your life, but they come and go. Sometimes you only feel balanced when with friends. You may dedicate a great amount of time on social activities. If Mercury is placed in a dual sign, it's highly likely that you will run several projects in your mind at the same time and will be great at multi-tasking.

You should guard against the habit of gossiping, which is very likely with such a placement. Since you know so much about others, it's going to be natural to want to share this information. But it's important to do it with tact, and to get into the habit of sharing only the information that is positive and is not going to hurt the discussed person.

Also, if Mercury is located close to the twelfth house, it's likely that you will find out some secret information that is best to leave secret, as if revealed, it could even lead to some harm being done to you.

This placement doesn't usually give loyal friends, but it does give a lot of them. An afflicted-by-malefics Mercury may influence friends to abuse the native and to betray him. So if this is the case, the native should take care whom he allows close as friends. Also, an afflicted Mercury may cause some legal problems with friends. So effort should be made to settle matters out of court as the native is likely to lose.

You will be good at jobs requiring attention to detail. You might be excellent in work involving much communication or do work related to social sciences.

People with such a placement will take care of their appearance and try to look acceptable, to blend in with the group to which they belong, rather than trying to stand out. They might unexpectedly gain great wealth through some communication activity, like writing or speaking.

VENUS IN THE ELEVENTH HOUSE

You will have warm relationships with your friends and you will love spending time in groups. Your friends will help you when you are in trouble. You will probably attract many friends of the opposite sex, and also you are likely to find your intimate partners in a circle of your friends.

Your friends might be of beautiful appearance, having great taste in dressing, and they might be artists of some sort. You might be able to even financially profit from your social activities.

You will be perceived by your friends as lovable and charming. You will love giving and taking love within a group. You are likely to be flirtatious in a circle of your friends, which will gain you lovers. This placement could also indicate that you will spend more time with your friends than with your lovers, which might bring their displeasure.

You will probably belong to some social club, and will love being its member. You might be quite a prominent member there. With an afflicted Venus there is a danger of accepting everyone as friends, even those who can potentially harm you in some way.

If Venus is afflicted, it could be that the native will play flirting games with different individuals in the same group, creating unpleasant situations. He is likely to attract quite wealthy friends who will help him in his career.

If the chart owner is a man, he will have many female friends, some of whom will help him greatly in life. This placement also may indicate that the person will have many love affairs. He might find it difficult to stay with one person only. He may have simultaneous love affairs.

MARS IN THE ELEVENTH HOUSE

You will spend a lot of energy on your friends, on building friendships and on being involved in groups. You are likely to have more male friends and women who have masculine energy. Your friends might be energetic and ambitious, helping you to get your work done.

An ill-aspected Mars may make one into a rebel; the native may try to cause societal unrest in order to change the society in some way; for example, to destroy the existing societal structure. But if Mars is not afflicted, the native might be motivated to improve the order of the society rather than just destroying it.

Friends will be inspired about the proaction and energy levels of the native. But if Mars is afflicted, the native will be quarrelsome and will cause disorder in groups. The native might be impulsive in group activities, causing injuries or even death to himself or others.

You are not afraid to be the first one to make friends. You are not passive about your friendships. You are great at starting projects, though if Mars is afflicted, it might be difficult to finish them. So it's good to be in a position where you start some projects and then employ people to carry them through.

You should also be good in public performances. You are so energetic in a group setting or in front of the public that this can make you an excellent choice in being the host of some event. You are excellent at heading any sort of activity or event where lots of energy is required.

However, you might have difficulties in cooperating with others. You may want to do things your own way and not look at the reactions and preferences of others in the group. With this placement you will strive to be the one people notice; it will matter you greatly how you are perceived by others. It's important in your case to strive to be cooperative and to reduce the ego in the group. This will result in group harmony.

It's also important not to join any group that promotes any sort of violence, because this will make Mars function in a malefic way in an individual's life. Also, if Mars is afflicted in this house, the native might have been bullied as a child so he might join such organizations to express the suppressed energy of hatred. If Mars is afflicted by malefics, it could be that the native was physically, maybe sexually, abused as a child. It's important to seek for non-harmful ways to release this energy, such as through competitive sports.

The native might be part of some sports or military groups, or other groups involving physical activity or something to do with metal, weapons or fighting, like martial arts groups. Sometimes this placement encourages the native to aggressively go for new friends but failing to maintain existing friendships. This results in many friends but no real friends.

The native needs constant activity in a group setting and dislikes passive people. If friends no longer excite him, he may easily end the friendship. He may want to compete with his friends, so there might be power struggles in a group.

A well-aspected Mars may influence the person to become the leader of a group or organization. But if it's ill-aspected, the native will try to get to the top, sometimes through immoral ways, and will not succeed. He will hate being unnoticed, but because his approach about getting to the top is so selfish, he's not likely to reach the position he aims for. That, of course, could be changed, if he tries to attain higher positions through humane ways.

JUPITER IN THE ELEVENTH HOUSE

You will be lucky in your friendships. Friends will help you to expand your mind and will cause great spiritual and intellectual growth. Your friends see you as good-natured, kind and magnanimous. You will be concerned not only about the well-being of your friends but the society at large. In response, you will attract kind-hearted and generous people.

If Jupiter is afflicted, you may attract people who will try to teach you about things spiritual or educate you in other ways, but usually those lessons will be of a philosophical kind that cannot be applied in the real world. You would also take your friends for granted and be irresponsible towards them. Sometimes you will be friends with them only because you see that some benefit can be gained through them.

With this placement it's possible to achieve large group goals, such as helping humanity at large in some way. Also, a great impact could be made in the field of law, religion, education, or the organization of the society. With a well-aspected Jupiter, friends will be sincere and honest, and will support you in whatever you do. They will bring you luck.

You might have some high-profile friends, especially employed in some career to do with legal matters. You are very giving in your friendships and people love the kind of energy you exude. They feel it's the energy of pure goodness and love. It's through your associations with friends that you will be able to achieve prosperity.

There might be many group activities in your life. For example, there might be parties with lots of eating and drinking, and also with lots of discussions about travels abroad, spirituality, philosophy and higher education. You will feel at home and happy in a group setting. You will love giving of yourself to your friends.

If Jupiter is afflicted, it could be that you spend too much time with your friends and enjoy group activities to the neglect of your work and studies. This placement can attract many friends from abroad. Interestingly, this house also deals with huge wealth. Like Saturn, this placement can gift great wealth to the native.

This placement promises that you will never be left alone in trouble. There will always be someone to help you out. You will be naturally good at planning and organizing group activities, even if they involve very large groups. You will be great at jobs that require you to deal with large amounts of people. You will feel fulfilled when giving of yourself to the masses.

SATURN IN THE ELEVENTH HOUSE

You will take your friendships seriously and people will find you reliable. Through friends you will be able to reach high positions at work; you will naturally make connections with people who are stable and influential, and they will help you to achieve career heights.

You will help friends who are in need, and you will carefully select the people you hang out with. You will have few friends, but those whom you will have will be true friends. They will help and support you, remaining with you even if some huge misfortune happens to you, and you will help them as well.

If Saturn is afflicted, the native will selfishly seek gains through friends, and his friends will do the same.

Your friends are likely to be older, emotionally mature and disciplined. They will be probably business-like and career-oriented. It's possible with such a placement to attract people whom you knew in your past life. The older people who are your friends will feel like they are talking to their equal, though you will be younger than them. They perceive you to be an old-soul. You find that you have nothing in common with your peers.

You are likely to join groups that help you to achieve greater heights in your career; those groups will probably be something to do with business or occupational concerns. In a group setting you will act mature and probably quite conservatively. People might perceive you as unemotional and business-like.

You are not a very social person and you trust people very slowly. It takes time for you to make strong friendships. You prefer solitude to being with friends. You may not feel well in group settings. When in a group, you strive to keep your individuality and guard against being influenced by the mass-mind. One of the reasons you avoid groups is exactly this – that you don't want to lose your individuality and become like others.

With this placement you have an excellent ability to filter out poor friends and only choose a few that will remain loyal and reliable. So although this sign definitely doesn't promise many friendships, the ones that you will have will be great and long-lasting ones. But most of the times you will enjoy staying alone. You will find balance and peace in solitude.

If Saturn is ill-aspected, it could be that you will tend to repel everyone and usually will spend large amounts of time alone. It can influence you to hate all people. You may really dislike being in groups and would do everything possible to avoid being a part of social gatherings. You may feel claustrophobic when in a group setting and may hate being close to too many people.

If Saturn is afflicted by malefics, it could be that you had bad experiences with friends when you were a child. For example, they might have hurt you in some way, and because of that now you dislike being in groups. You might feel that friendships are burdens and bring great responsibilities, and thus you will strive to avoid forming many relationships.

This placement also promises wealth in the second part of life. Usually people who work hard and consistently start earning large amounts of money when they are mature, and this wealth keeps getting bigger and lasts till the end of life. (Actually the eighth house is responsible for wealth that comes without any effort; but Saturn rewards great and persistent effort with wealth; so both of these possibilities apply.)

Caring for old people and providing your company to them will increase this wealth even further, because Saturn rules the people of old age so the way to please this planet is to show respect and support for those ruled by it.

This placement definitely makes you a lone wolf, but it also gives you an ability to organize people and lead them. You will also be able to plan well into the future when it comes to group activities. However, you will never blend into a group; you will either be a leader or a rebel in a group, or take any other position that will separate you from the crowd.

You will be unemotional about the group. Though you might invest a lot in some group, you will never become emotionally attached to its members. You view the group as a structure, and are able to organize and manage it well because no emotions or attachments are involved.

URANUS IN THE ELEVENTH HOUSE

This is a great placement indicating that the person is very open-minded and compassionate. He deeply feels the bond that people share with one another and will try to do something to contribute to the well-being of humanity. It's likely that he will have no regard for tradition or established rules that do not serve to improve the human life.

The native will be in tune with universal currents and will have a natural understanding of how the universe works in its spiritual aspect. They are likely to be interested in occult subjects and science. Friends of the native will be unusual in some way; they will be innovative thinkers, artists, performers, writers, psychics and some might even display the traits of a genius.

When it comes to marriage, the native may find it difficult to function in such a union if the spouse is insecure; because the native will value freedom above all else. He also may have an unusual approach and philosophy about marriage, which may be shocking to those who support this traditional institution the way that it functions now.

They might feel that being only with one person limits them and makes them as though imprisoned. So such natives are unlikely to easily agree to any permanent union. If the planet is afflicted, the native might be irresponsible and too idealistic in a relationship as well as when in a group. He might come up with ideas that cannot work if put into practice. If the planet is well-aspected, he will come up with ideas that could establish world peace, if applied.

You will probably expect higher ideals from your friends than they will be able to embody. Humanitarian goals will drive you, and you might become the change in the society for the better.

People view you as an inspiring figure because you work towards the peace of the society. You feel a part of your community and a particle of humanity at large. You know that you cannot separate yourself from this organism, and neither do you want to.

You will be intuitive about your friends and will sense energy vampires, so such people will not be able to use you. You will sense if people will want to use you in some way or will be overly attached, and this intuition allows you to prevent such friendships.

If some friends feel much attached to you, you might feel like distancing yourself from them because you value freedom in relationships.

You might communicate with your friends irregularly; sometimes friends suddenly appear in your life, and then disappear. You probably meet people suddenly, without arranging an occasion, and you will not be able to keep communications with those who need constant attention.

If Uranus is positively aspected, this placement can help you earn quite a lot of money from group activities where internet or technology is involved. For example, with the help of friends you might come up with some useful app or something like that. Sometimes it can help you to succeed as a musician or any other artist when working in a group.

This is especially possible if the planet positively aspects the second house, Venus or Jupiter. But when it comes to something stable and permanent, this planet definitely cannot be relied on because it's the planet of unpredictability and change.

If your Uranus is negatively aspecting the planet Mars, you should avoid taking part in demonstrations as you might suffer from violence, fire, explosions and might be injured quite seriously. Uranus can also bring spiritual people in your life through whom you will experience events connected with the non-physical aspect of this universe.

NEPTUNE IN THE ELEVENTH HOUSE

You have high expectations of your friends which might be unrealistic. Your friends might not be able to live up to them. You are very open-minded and spiritual in your friendships. You are sensitive and emotional in your interactions with your friends.

With a well-aspected Neptune you will be generous to your friends and compassionate. It's likely that your friends will be spiritual and will cause you to mature spiritually too. It's likely that you will attract friends who have a link with you from past lives. So the relationship will feel spiritual from the very beginning.

You might be interested in groups that help humanity in some way or those that explore spiritual subjects. Your friends might be highly artistic. You have the opportunity to evolve through associations with them.

If Neptune is ill-aspected, you might have delusions about your friends. For example, they might be using you, but you will not see this, and instead consider them good and reliable friends. So with an afflicted Neptune friends might deceive you and may cause you other difficulties. It's important to see the situation as it really is rather than as you want it to be. An afflicted Neptune is powerful in blinding the native, so great care should be taken to really see the situation as it is.

Also, an afflicted Neptune will encourage the native to make friends with people who are alcoholics, drug addicts or have the habit of using other addictive mind-altering substances. Such friendships will lead to the native becoming an addict of some sort too, so great care should be taken with an afflicted Neptune to select only those people to hang out with who don't have such damaging habits.

You may sometimes feel so blended into a group that you might even forget your own identity. There are almost no personal barriers when it comes to friendships, and this puts you at risk as energy vampires may abuse you. So developing healthy boundaries when in a group is important.

If Neptune is not afflicted in any way, this can make you highly intuitive about your friends. But that's usually when it's located in a spiritual sign such as that of Pisces. Otherwise, if, for example, Neptune is located in an earthly sign such as Capricorn, this will make you highly observational about the material things about your friends rather than spiritual. So it's important to also look at which sign the planet is placed.

You understand and feel the connection to humanity as a whole, and you might proactively do something to help the world, such as through supporting the poor. This placement is a little unfavorable when it comes to collaboration for money-making ventures, as you are likely to have unrealistic expectations and plans about the business.

If Neptune is afflicted, your friends will be of a passive nature and unreliable. They might be unpredictable as well. It could be that you would do a lot for your friends and would help them when they are in difficulties, but will not receive much help when you are the one in trouble.

This kind of placement, if Neptune is well-aspected, could lead to the creation of some utopian spiritual society.

PLUTO IN THE ELEVENTH HOUSE

This placement indicates that the individual will have strong desires associated with group activities, such as to reform some aspect of the society, for example. It depends on the aspects whether those desires would serve the public well or ill.

The individual will attract powerful people who may help him to achieve his goals. Again, those people might be powerful in a good or bad way. It's very important with this placement to respect the freedom and rights of your friends and other individuals, as Pluto may encourage you to be too domineering, not considering the likes and dislikes of other people.

You are able to transform yourself through other people; it could be that some catastrophe involving many people will deeply touch you (as you will be a part of it) and will transform you. You have a powerful influence over your friends, but they too can cause a huge transformation in you.

This placement influences the native to attract friends who are interested in the occult. The native might join an occult society and this will cause either negative or positive transformation, depending on the aspects of the planet. If Pluto is well-aspected, the native could even run a powerful occult society and be able to gain a deep insight into the workings of the hidden side of the universe.

The native might hold a powerful position in politics, but operate behind the scenes. If Pluto is well-aspected, the native will have a powerful insight into the motivations of his friends, as well as into the fields such as science.

This placement could also mean that there were traumas associated with being with friends; it could be that a close friend died and his death deeply affected the native. The loss of friends may cause the native to be obsessed about maintaining friendships through control. He might always fear at the back of his mind that friends will leave him, or that he will be asked to leave some group he's a member of. So some people can use this weakness and manipulate the native through suggestions of the possibility of ending the friendship.

This placement gives you the power over the masses. You are able to dominate them and to influence their thoughts. However, if the Planet is ill-aspected, then that kind of domination will negatively affect you. You quickly understand the workings of any group and are able to influence it for your own ends.

However, if Pluto is ill-aspected, friendships will end unexpectedly (sometimes due to the native's fault) and there will be losses of money due to overspending on group activities and individual friends.

Friends will be powerful, but if Pluto is ill-aspected, they could be domineering, jealous and obsessive. Powerful friends may help the native to attain high positions at work, especially if Pluto is close to the tenth house. Those friends, however, will want the favors back from the native, and can be quite cruel and dangerous if he refuses to pay the favor back.

Once you get the help of such individuals, they will consider you as their property. You will feel within their sphere of influence and it will be hard to break out. So be careful in accepting the favors of the powerful people with such a placement, as that could entrap you.

THE TWELFTH HOUSE OF ASTROLOGY: YOUR SUBCONSCIOUS, CONFINEMENT AND HIDDEN ENEMIES

Watch The Twelfth House of Astrology on YouTube.

This house stands for secrets, the subconscious mind, fears, places of seclusion and confinement; it rules big animals and can give information about hidden enemies, especially the ones using dark spiritual ways to negatively influence the native.

It can tell about dangers, unfortunate incidents and how you may cause your own undoing. It shows if there are any afflictions to your feet. It is considered one of the most mysterious astrological houses of all.

It shows the limitations placed on you by stars, as well as your behavior which causes personal sorrow. This house rules secret forces, and it can also indicate whether the native may experience insanity. It's the house which can tell some information about your past lives and with what spiritual debt you came into this life.

It also indicates whether you are likely to develop spiritually and whether you can discover the meaning of life. It's a very important house to study in your natal chart, so that you're aware of what may cause your undoing and whether your spiritual potential is promising.

Here are the meanings of the planets located in this house.

THE SUN IN THE TWELFTH HOUSE

The native will be interested in exploring his own subconscious, and fields such as psychology. He is likely to work behind the scenes rather than being in an occupation which allows him to be seen in public.

He might feel lonely at times. He might feel fulfilled when he provides some useful service to others. He is likely to work in places of seclusion such as hospitals, religious institutions or prisons.

An afflicted Sun here may make the individual a really shy person who likes to avoid people. He will also avoid the limelight if possible. Sometimes this is due to the fact that the native was bullied as a child. This possibility increases if the Sun aspects Chiron. If the Sun is afflicted, such a placement can even influence the person to fear open places.

Such an individual may also employ secret means to control other people. He may develop mediumistic skills out of the unconscious need to be recognized.

The native may have powerful enemies due to his own fault, but he will have power to overcome them. If the Sun is well aspected, the native may easily understand things that are hidden from the eyes of others, as well as the workings of the subconscious mind. There will be some psychic abilities and they will be best developed when in solitude.

The native should take care what people he spends time with, because he is likely to take in their energy. Sometimes this placement makes people highly attuned to the energies around them, and because of this they may prefer to be alone because they may feel many discordant vibrations when with others.

This placement sometimes means that the native will remain shy until around the age of forty. His self-esteem problems might have been caused by the native's father. The father might have been an insignificant and weak figure, sometimes an addict of some sort. Sometimes this placement can signify that the native doesn't even know the identity of his father.

The native is likely to be excellent at giving psychological advice to others. He is likely to prefer the spiritual world to material, leading to the lack of care for the body.

Sometimes the native will be motivated to help others without in any way drawing attention to himself for his good deeds.

THE MOON IN THE TWELFTH HOUSE

The native's moods are strongly influenced by his subconscious. He may have some psychic abilities and might be intuitive. He may be too shy to express himself emotionally; this might have been caused by a relationship with his mother.

The mother might have been emotionally unavailable when raising the native. She might have even been hospitalized due to mental instability. She might have been very unpredictable, depressive, and the native perceived her more as a threat than a mother. This later creates relationship problems as the native fears being abandoned or not loved by others.

The native's inability to fully express himself emotionally might cause problems in intimate relationships. He might be easily hurt. With an afflicted Moon the native might be lonely and may suffer from some mental health problems. If the Moon is heavily afflicted, the native might suffer from extreme mental imbalances, even leading to hospitalization or imprisonment.

The native may sometimes have secret love affairs. He will benefit from being alone and spending time in developing psychic abilities. He is likely to be engaged in the type of work where he is not seen by the public.

He is likely to be perceived by others as mysterious and secretive. He might be highly tuned into the environment, being able to sense various energies and read people on an emotional level. He may have powerful dreams and visions which will affect him greatly. He may have multiple dreams in a night.

This placement makes the native easily influenced, so it's important to be surrounded with people who will affect him positively. Sometimes he may need time to be completely alone, to regain balance and understand himself better, as he is very sensitive to the energies of others.

The native may indulge in quite a lot of daydreaming. Sometimes he may be unable to fall asleep because of too many thoughts. He can be fragile and withdrawn, and easily gets hurt. But the native might be an excellent healer, providing care in places of confinement, for example.

This placement gives female enemies. It's likely that at first they will look like friends, but in truth they are nothing of that sort. So if there's some strange behavior displayed by women in the native's life, care should be taken to understand whether they are real friends or just pretend to be.

The native is able to hide his emotions well. He may have strong healing abilities (if the Moon is strong and well-aspected) and he might be a psychic. He may spend a lot of time helping those in need but not caring enough about his own self.

However, if the Moon is badly aspected, this may cause the native to have irrational fears that are to do with his emotions. He may go through periods of depression, and he may feel emotionally lonely.

He could be easily hypnotized and is highly affected by the moon. So it's important to sleep without the exposure to this luminary; otherwise the native may sleepwalk or have some other unpredictable behavior when sleeping.

The native may fear of being abandoned by his friends or people close to him. Sometimes he may isolate himself from others so that he would not get too attached and too emotional about them.

MERCURY IN THE TWELFTH HOUSE

The way that the native thinks will be very much influenced by the unconscious content of his mind. Sometimes the native comes to some conclusion intuitively, or guided by the feeling coming from the subconscious mind. The native is not likely to share his thought processes and ideas with others. He might be able to tap into other planes of consciousness to gain wisdom and creative solutions to his problems.

Some psychic ability may be present. The native might be highly imaginative. However, if Mercury is afflicted here, it can create mental problems and mental fixations on the past. It can create various unreasonable phobias. The native may find it difficult to learn new information or learn in a conventional way. He might have difficulties in expressing himself, even if Mercury is not afflicted.

This is a great placement to explore your subconscious, but it's important not to lose balance – you should be grounded so that you don't lose touch with reality. This placement makes you able to establish communication with other realms. You might be able to tap into the collective subconscious and gain information from it.

The native may understand the power of speech and may use his words carefully; he may learn powerful mantras to manifest something he desires into this reality. He is likely to be trusted by others, and some great secrets may be imparted to him.

An afflicted Mercury can make the native mentally unstable, being afraid of all sorts of things. Heavy transits of Mercury may even cause the native to be hospitalized due to mental problems, in such a case. It's very important to stay grounded with an afflicted Mercury as well as not to overthink, so that no mental instability results.

Also, with such a placement it's very important to avoid any mind-altering substances, as they will really obscure the native's thinking and he will end up making mistakes. This kind of placement may also encourage the native to gossip; sometimes he may reveal really secret information to his own harm; so it's important to limit one's communication about things secret, so that the native doesn't get into trouble.

VENUS IN THE TWELFTH HOUSE

The native will love to spend time alone and may have hidden love affairs. In general, he will prefer his love life to remain secret, usually because as a child he was taught that love is something shameful.

He might have hidden friendships also. He might be socially shy. During the time of solitude the native can be highly creative.

He might be highly artistic, able to tap into the vast amount of information from his subconscious which is connected with the mass-mind. He will be compassionate towards the sufferings of others. He is likely to be easily emotionally hurt.

He enjoys adventure and mystical things, but sometimes this is connected with hidden love affairs. He loves large animals, like horses or elephants.

This placement is quite beneficial because the warm energy of the planet Venus may keep the native at peace in the times of solitude, when other people in such cases start feeling uneasy. The native might be secretive about his hobbies and might spend a lot of time alone in the quiet pursuit of that which he enjoys.

He might be involved in creating some art, but it's unlikely that he will share it with the world. He is likely not to believe in his artistic talents, and may feel shy to display his work to the world.

If this planet is aspected by Pluto or Jupiter, the native may indulge in excessive shopping, like buying things he doesn't really need, and then regretting afterwards. Such a placement may also indicate the love of sweets, and the native sometimes may excessively consume sweets in secret, such as at night, and then feel guilty later.

If Venus is negatively aspected by malefics, the native should not engage in any love affairs with people already in relationships, as this could end really badly. Also, although there is a potential for becoming a professional artist, if this planet is not strengthened by other planets, the native is likely to simply daydream about a possible artistic career without taking much action to achieve it.

An afflicted Venus may make the person attracted to mind-altering substances or he may attract love partners that are addicts of some sort. Also, when in love, the native may blend his identity to that of the other half to such a degree that without the partner he may no longer know who he is.

This placement may make the native very compassionate and he may dedicate a lot of time to serving others, like in places of seclusion, for example.

Venus located in the twelfth house may make the native unaware of his personal attraction and how others perceive him. So if you have this placement, it's very likely that you are more attractive than you think you are. It will be very difficult to really see your beauty with Venus hidden in this house of secrets.

Sometimes the native is not aware of his beauty because his parents never positively commented on his personal appearance. Also, the kind of beauty that the native projects could be mysterious; some people may not understand why they are so attracted to the native.

If Venus is near the ascendant, it will gift the person physical beauty. The native is likely to be stalked, as Venus is the planet of attraction, and that attractive power is projecting through his body with this particular placement. Sometimes the native's body could be so attractive that some people might become obsessed about it.

MARS IN THE TWELFTH HOUSE

This placement shows that the person's motivation comes from his subconscious mind and therefore he might even not be aware how he gets motivated to take certain actions.

He tends to plan in seclusion, sometimes to avoid the opposition of other people. This could be very useful, since the plans he forms in his mind have the potential to manifest rather than being extinguished in their etheric form due to the disbelief of other people.

This placement encourages the native to blend in with the workforce; so he might be working in large organizations and do the kind of work that doesn't draw attention to him.

An afflicted Mars is a dangerous position here, because it can indicate that the person might be imprisoned or may be locked up in a mental institution. It could indicate that the person will do something against the government or be confined for some other political reason.

This placement also shows that the person tends to repress his anger and aggression, and if no outlet is allowed, the person may do something self-destructive or destructive to others eventually. So with this placement it's important to get into the habit to let people know if something is not right, so that the issue is resolved straight away and no anger repressed.

Also, if some irritation manifests, it's important to look at its cause and deal with it, rather than allowing it to sink into your subconscious. This placement sometimes indicates that the native was bullied as a child, or experienced physical violence in childhood. He may have suppressed strong emotions manifesting as a result of violence deep into his subconscious, and now the habit has formed to always deal with uncomfortable negative emotions in such a way.

The native might have been beaten by parents; the trauma, in whichever way it was experienced, now causes the person to be not willing to deal with potentially dangerous situations – the native is likely to try to escape the situation rather than dealing with it.

This placement can indicate that the native's parents were against the expression of unpleasant feelings, so the native learnt to store anger and other negative feelings inside. This causes the native to self-destruct, like through some negative habit such as smoking or drinking. So it's important to learn to direct this energy in constructive ways, such as into sports or some outdoor activities, so that no self-harm results.

If Mars is well-aspected, the individual will have almost limitless energy to explore occult fields. He will be fully immersed into the occult, but if Mars is afflicted this gets dangerous because he may attract negative spiritual events as well as dangerous people from the occult realm.

Also, the closer this planet of war is to the ascendant, the more the native should be careful with getting involved into any sort of dangerous activity, like something involving sharp metal objects or guns, or mass demonstrations – as the native is very likely to get hurt. Remember that Mars gives energy, but it also can spill blood.

This placement can give fears with regards to enemies that don't exist, or with regards to some impending imaginary disasters, sometimes of a massive scale. For example, the native might fear that he would die due to some natural disaster, like an earthquake.

The native, being hurt as a child, has serious trust issues. He might be always on the defense when with new people, so that he would be able to avoid possible hurt. This might make him view people as enemies, and sometimes he might read into their actions something that isn't true.

JUPITER IN THE TWELFTH HOUSE

This placement shows that the native will take great interest into spirituality, the subconscious, occult or mysticism. He might be practicing some spiritual way to attain liberation, such as meditation. The native is kind-hearted and tries to help those in need.

It's likely that the native will work in some place of seclusion, like a hospital, prison, or an ashram. Work in a university is possible too.

If Jupiter is afflicted, the native might want to be perceived as someone who sacrifices himself for the good of others; he might be too idealistic and might be mentally unstable. He might then seek for people who feel compassion for him, so that he lives off their energy, money, or through their other display of kindness. If the native finds reality unsatisfying, he may try to create his own world of fantasy.

This placement can bring many supernatural events, but they are likely to be of a positive nature, or will affect the native positively. It's very likely that the native will experience most of the supernatural events whilst living in solitude, meditating, or doing other solitary or spiritual activity.

It's best to keep spiritual experiences to himself and to analyze them thoroughly; because they are meant to be messages to be understood by the native for his spiritual progress. That's because this house is about one's subconscious, rather than representing the sphere of public teaching or anything of this sort.

If Jupiter is not afflicted, the native has spiritual protection against psychic attacks, and will be helped in times of need. With such a placement he will experience more success in life when he is middle-aged and from that time onward.

This placement may influence the native to indulge in utopian dreams about a better society without the action to implement any of the ideas. So it's important to stay grounded because this may cause the native to be more realistic and therefore some of his ideas might be able to be put into action.

It's also important with such a placement not to give into the need to always sacrifice oneself for others so that the native feels better about himself. That's because some people aren't as unselfish and they might take advantage of the self-sacrificing nature of the native.

This placement makes the person have strong intuition and the native will be a life-long student of spiritual subjects. He might find it easier to understand mystical subjects than most people. He may also intuitively understand the workings of the subconscious mind. He will even be protected against hidden enemies, and he may cause those enemies to become his friends eventually.

Jupiter's expansive nature in the house of secrets may make it difficult for the native to keep secret any information entrusted to him. So great care should be taken not to reveal any sensitive or personal information.

This placement sometimes shows that the native is not willing to reveal his spiritual beliefs to the world. Also, it could be that the reason he chooses to hide his spiritual beliefs is because he lives in an intolerant and dogmatic society.

SATURN IN THE TWELFTH HOUSE

This placement indicates that the person will spend a lot of time alone. He might be working in the places of seclusion, such as hospitals, ashrams or prisons. It might be that he will work in the home for older people, or caring for individuals in their homes.

It could alternatively mean that the native will have to care for some elderly family member, and therefore his movements will be restricted (he would have to spend a lot of time at home).

An afflicted Saturn in this house may give the feelings of depression, and the person will feel lonely. What will help to escape loneliness is focus away from personal misfortunes or negative feelings and by contributing as much as possible to the good of others, as this placement is likely to make the person too self-absorbed.

A badly afflicted Saturn here means that the native may suffer from mental problems and might even be confined in a mental institution or another place of seclusion such as a prison. Also, there might be fear associated with exploring one's subconscious mind, and if Saturn is afflicted, the native may even get frightening dreams.

This placement may also make it difficult to achieve recognition in one's work, or fame. This kind of placement might influence the native to work behind the scenes.

Sometimes this placement shows that the native had a difficult and traumatic birth, and that this trauma, for example, manifests as fear that cannot be defined (that's at the back of one's mind). The way that the native may deal with such fear is through isolating himself from the world; as he may think that it's the hostile world which causes that uneasy feeling. He is very unlikely to show his inner condition to others.

If Saturn is afflicted, it may indicate that the native will spend the end of his life hospitalized or in some sort of other restrictive environment. If, however, Saturn is not afflicted, it can indicate that the person loves solitude and functions better when being alone than when in the company.

Since this house rules hidden enemies, Saturn can bring serious enemies; they could be older people, or the ones that are from the business world. They could be really cold and cruel.

URANUS IN THE TWELFTH HOUSE

The person will be interested to understand the unconscious mind. He might be doing yoga, meditation, and might be interested in the eastern spirituality. He might be intuitive and possessing psychic abilities. He could be a member of some secret esoteric society.

With an afflicted Uranus here the native should be careful, as he might be misled by non-physical entities. Thus, contact with such entities is discouraged with an afflicted Uranus.

Freedom is very important in your life, but sometimes you feel as though confined. If Uranus is afflicted, actual physical confinement is possible. For example, if it negatively aspects some planet in the second house, it could mean, for example, that due to some illegal dealings with money you might be imprisoned.

If it negatively aspects the eighth house, it could mean that there might be some illegal activity concerning other people's money, which results in imprisonment. So you should look if there are any negative aspects of this planet, and to which houses and planets they point, in order to understand the cause of a possible confinement.

This placement gives behavior to the native that is unpredictable and chaotic. He may have irregular sleeping and eating hours, one day he might feel very energetic and the other – completely lethargic. The native may feel different from others, but he himself may not realize that he is perceived as different.

Sometimes this placement could indicate that the native as a child experienced loneliness, because other children did not consider him as one of them.

The native may receive a lot of information from other realms, through dreams or visions. He might receive warning dreams and visions, so he can be greatly aided to avoid disasters by listening to the messages that are sent to him from other realms. Sometimes the native may even be able to tune into some idea of other realms that is of a type that helps the society to progress in some way. He might even get information through dreams and visions about what direction to take in life, or how to solve some problems he has.

The native will need a lot of time alone. That won't be difficult, since he's unlike other people so his unusual way of life can make him into a natural loner. Solitude is important because through solitude the native will come to understand himself.

The native may experience very realistic or lucid dreams. If Uranus is afflicted by malefics, there might be nightmares. It's more than likely that he will experience many extraordinary spiritual events in his life, like seeing apparitions, being able to leave his physical body, being able to stay conscious whilst dreaming, and so forth.

He might be tuned in to higher realms and be able to channel information from them. He might attract electric currents because of this placement, making him electrically charged, and therefore others may get small electric shocks when touching them.

This placement can easily make one a magician or a mystic. However, it's very important to be alone in spiritual search if Uranus is afflicted, because there's a possibility of creating dangerous enemies. Also, with an afflicted Uranus it's advised not to join any secret organizations, because the twelfth house is about confinement, so it's possible that the native might not be able to leave the organization as such if he joins.

Also, with an afflicted Uranus the native should stay away from anything illegal, as again there's a great possibility of being caught and imprisoned.

With such a placement, when the native ages, he is likely to understand how unusual he is and will try to hide some of his eccentricities and unusual habits from the world so that he fits in better. But it's likely that even in old age the native will rebel against the established order of certain institutions which might be functioning in a traditional, but not as useful, way. The native might actually cause some changes to such institutions.

The native's hidden enemies will be unpredictable and might even use some hidden technology to negatively affect the native. Thus, with such a placement, especially if the planet is afflicted, the native should try to be careful in his speech and actions so that he doesn't create harsh enemies.

In his young years, the native might have been very rebellious. He probably rebelled against the established order of things, whatever way it manifested itself. However, later with age the native might rebel more for some specific reason, like if he sees that some established order serves to bring harm to some group of people.

This placement also warns of danger in using electricity. Great care must be taken in using electric devices, especially if Uranus is badly aspected by malefics. In such a case it's even possible to get hit by a lightning. But the native might also be great with technology and might be the author of some technological inventions.

NEPTUNE IN THE TWELFTH HOUSE

The person with such a placement will need a lot of solitude. He will understand his subconscious mind intuitively. The person will naturally understand things spiritual, and he may even remember his past lives. He will find it easy to develop psychic abilities and will benefit from them (if the planet is not afflicted).

He may be a natural healer. The native may become an excellent musician or artist, because he may be able to perceive images on a psychic plane or music vibrations. However, if Neptune is badly aspected here, the person will tend to focus too much on the past and will be a target to low-vibration entities. He will have deceptive psychic experiences which may affect him mentally.

Sometimes with such a placement it is difficult to deal with the real world and the native may prefer spending time in his own dreams and fantasies. He might prefer being tuned into the astral plane than being fully conscious in the material one.

With such a placement it is advised against taking any mind-altering substances because they might become a way to escape the reality. You are highly sensitive to the non-physical realms already, so if the mind-altering substances are taken in such a case, you may risk getting completely out of touch with reality. The closer Neptune is to the ascendant, the more you will be affected by such substances.

You might be in touch with the mass-mind, and may understand how to heal psychological problems of others. Your dreams may warn you of impending dangers and they might be highly symbolic. So with such a placement it's worth learning symbology, so that you can understand your dreams better.

You could be highly compassionate and able to console those in distress. Sometimes this placement can make you so sensitive that feeling various energies may even affect your body. So it's very important to learn to spiritually protect yourself if you have such a placement.

If Neptune is really badly aspected, it could indicate that the native will be locked up in a mental hospital or prison. If the planet is not afflicted, it could simply indicate that the native will spend time in an ashram, work in a prison, or stay (usually work) in other institutions of seclusion.

It's also possible that with Neptune in the twelfth house the person will feel guilty if he's unable to help someone. It's impossible to help everyone, so it's important to understand this so that no feelings of guilt arise.

PLUTO IN THE TWELFTH HOUSE

You are going to be highly interested in the processes of the subconscious mind, trying to understand them through psychology, spiritual search, dreams or in any other way.

A well-aspected Pluto will give you great intuition and an ability to develop psychic powers. You will be able to understand mystical topics and get proficient at spiritual practices. You will naturally feel the energies and intentions of others.

However, if Pluto is afflicted here, some mental problems may result. It also indicates dangerous secret enemies. It warns about dangerous spiritual experiences. Thus, if Pluto is badly aspected in this house, it is advised to avoid getting involved into anything spiritual where there's a risk of danger.

You experience transformation through spiritual regeneration. There is persistence that almost seems unlimited to go for your goals; you draw this strength from your subconscious. You will have a natural attraction towards things secret and mysterious.

This placement may also indicate subconscious troubles; it could be that you experienced very intense trauma during your birth, and this pain is still felt in the subconscious. This placement can give sexual fantasies, sometimes of a dark nature.

A badly aspected Pluto may indicate that the person has experienced rape, sometimes of a violent nature. Also, due to the planet of underworld being in the twelfth house, the native can be a magnet for mysterious and dark individuals as well as dark experiences.

The native may become subject to spiritual attacks, and may attract dangerous enemies if this planet is afflicted. However, if it's well-aspected, it can actually protect him from black magic and the impact of psychological attacks.

Sometimes the native will want to stay alone for long periods of time. This helps him to understand his subconscious as well as to heal himself. There will be a lot of secrecy in the native's life, and secret romantic involvements are highly possible as well.

This placement will encourage the native not to share his feelings; he may keep intense feelings inside, which will prove harmful in the long-run, unless some healthy outlet is found, like sports. The native with such a placement must strive to know and accept himself; otherwise he will always feel some negativity and intensity in his subconscious.
